State Hopes To Punish Gettle Gang On Gallows

Prosecutor Asserts He Will Demand Death for Kidnapers.

Police Conducting 'Cleanup' of Case

Authorities' Trap Set for Bank Robbers Caught Abductors.

Los Angeles, May 15 (AP).—The law began "cleaning up" on the kidnapers of William F. Gettle today and the three men who confessed their parts in the abduction were started down the legal trail that may lead to the gallows.

District Attorney Buron Fitts said he would seek the death penalty under the California law prescribing death in cases where the kidnap victim is harmed. Gettle, who was delivered by police from his abductors last night, complained his wrist had been hurt when the snatchers forced him over a stone wall of his Arcadia estate last Wednesday midnight. Fitts said he believes this injury comes within the law's description.

One by one the steel-shackled kidnapers told their stories in monosyllabic answers to questions put by officers.

Roy Williams, who was seized while standing guard over the abducted millionaire, and Larry Kerrigan, who fled and was captured, answered readily. James F. Kirk, the little red-necked, puffy-faced fellow who reputedly was the brains of the snatch gang, was more defiant. But he became meek when he saw his pals had talked.

Say Women Are Innocent.

The three men were emphatic, however, in denying that Loretta Woody and Joan Burke, the women taken by the police in their round-up of the gang, had anything to do with the abduction.

The facilities of the United States Department of Justice in prosecuting the kidnapers was promised in Washington today by Attorney General Cummings.

A green parrot was the means of establishing negotiations with the kidnapers of Gettle, Ernest E. Noon, who acted as intermediary for the millionaire, said today in relating the story of events leading up to the rescue.

Dillinger Girl Escape Foiled

Walks From Courtroom During Recess; Seized by Bailiff.

St. Paul, May 15 (AP).—John Dillinger skulked from the law today while his sweetheart, after a casual, though vain effort to escape from the courthouse, went on trial with two codefendants under the eyes of guards in a locked courtroom.

Evelyn Frechette, the gangster's sweetheart, and Dr. Clayton May and Mrs. Augusta Salt, both of Minneapolis, were charged with harboring Dillinger more than a month ago in the Twin Cities.

They watched the questioning of prospective jurors in Federal Judge Gunnar H. Nordbye's courtroom and at the noon recess Miss Frechette made a bid for freedom.

Unnoticed as the crowd swarmed out of the small courtroom, the woman in blue with flashing black eyes sauntered out with them. She walked down the corridor unmolested and was preparing to enter an elevator when Ed Picha, bailiff from Federal Judge M. M. Joyce's courtroom, spotted her.

Picha grabbed her arm and walked the woman back to Judge Nordbye's courtroom.

Completion of the jury marked the end of the day's session.

Belittling talk of a Dillinger rescue raid, the Government nevertheless planned an ever vigilant guard.

Two uniformed policemen stand guard outside the locked courtroom and plain-clothesmen are stationed at strategic spots.

Joe Jacobs Is Arrested On Spanish Tax Count

Barcelona, Spain, May 15 (AP).—Joe Jacobs, manager of the former heavyweight champion Max Schmeling, today was arrested at the frontier on a charge of having failed to pay a tax of $2,000 on Schmeling's share of the purse from the German's fight with Paulina Uzcudun Sunday.

Gaza, promoter of the bout, preferred the charges against Jacobs, who was taken from the train at the frontier and is being returned to Barcelona.

Europe Out of Her Travels.

Lynbrook, N. Y., May 15 (U.P.). Mrs. Ella G. Munson, 72, returned home today after 700,000 miles of travel to announce she'll cut Europe off her list until debtor nations pay the United States what they owe.

Rome Fliers Are Down In Ireland on Sea Hop

A great ovation was waiting last night in Rome for Cesare Sabelli (left) and Capt. George Pond, but they were stranded in a small town in Ireland, after being forced down on their attempted 4,900-mile nonstop flight to Rome. They were pictured a few minutes before their take-off Monday in New York.

Lahinch, Irish Free State, May 15 (AP).—Barely escaping a plunge into the sea, Capt. George Pond and Lieut. Cesare Sabelli brought their Rome-bound monoplane to earth on a sandbank near here early tonight.

The main connection between the gasoline tank and motor of the craft broke just before the New York fliers came down on a small field about an acre in size.

Forced to cut off their motor, the fliers ran their big orange plane into a sandbank, causing some damage to the under-carriage.

They landed at 8:30 p. m. (2:30 p. m. Washington time), 32 hours and 6 minutes after taking off from Floyd Bennett Airfield at 6.24 Monday.

Although defeated in their attempt at a nonstop New York to

Arrests Near As June Gives Kidnap Clews

Federal and Arizona Police Rapidly Close in on Robles Abductors.

Tucson, Ariz., May 15 (AP).—Information that may lead to the quick arrest of the kidnapers of June Robles was given to authorities today by the 6-year-old girl herself, as she forgot the terror of 19 days chained to an underground box in the desert.

Suspicion was directed toward two unidentified persons, by fragmentary remarks June made to officers who renewed their determination to run down the abductors.

The law was free to close in at last after having been held in restraint most of the time while the girl was in the hands of kidnapers who demanded $15,000 ransom and finally lost their nerve and notified officers where their victim could be found—"buried under a cactus."

Announcing fragmentary remarks made by June as she played contentedly at home once more had given him a definite lead, Colby S. Farrar, Pima County undersheriff, said arrests probably were "only a matter of a few hours."

Cummings Pledges Aid.

Farrar did not go into details, but it was understood June told him something of the appearance and

J.H. Stedman Divorced; Gets License at Once

Reno, Nev., May 15 (U.P.).—James H. Stedman, wealthy Boston and Montreal rubber tile manufacturer, won a secret divorce today and immediately obtained a license to marry Helen B. Mosher, a nurse, whom Stedman's attorney said saved his life in a recent illness.

They planned to marry as soon as possible and leave by airplane for Sacramento, Calif., on their honeymoon. Stedman's bride was said by George Springmeyer, his attorney, to have arrived from the East last night.

Plane Crashes Kill 2 Army Fliers, Cadet

Parachute Saves One Life in Louisiana and Texas Mid-Air Collisions.

Crashes in Texas and Louisiana yesterday sent to their deaths two Army fliers and a cadet, according to word received here.

A telephone wire stretched high above Red River at Shreveport, La., caused the death of two men, First Lieut. William H. Doolittle, 32, of Hillsdale, Mich., and Second Lieut. Norman W. Speaker, 25. The plane of one man struck the wire and caused an aerial collision which sent both pilots into the river, 100 feet below.

At San Antonio, Tex., Preston A. Kennedy, a Kelly Field cadet whose home was in Middleburg, N. Y., lost his life after another mid-air crash in which the pilot of the plane he struck took to a parachute and safety. Kennedy's plane collided at 3,000 feet with the plane of Cadet Joseph Stanley Holtoner, of New York City. Holtoner abandoned his ship and fluttered down to safety. Kennedy stuck to his and tried to land at an emergency field. He overshot it, according to the Associated Press, and in attempting to climb again banked up on a turn and put his plane into a tail spin.

Kennedy was 21 years old and Holtoner, who was uninjured, is 23.

Doolittle, a veteran of 2,200 flying hours and a member of the Caterpillar Club, had been a pilot eight years. He was born in Elyria, Ohio, in April, 1902, and later moved to Hillsdale, where his father, Charles H. Doolittle, resides. Doolittle received his training as a flying cadet in 1926 at Brooks and Kelly Fields, Tex., and was commissioned a second lieutenant in the Air Corps Reserve. He served with the Ninety-

30 Thought Dead In Mine Explosion

Brussels, Belgium, May 15 (U.P.).—Thirty men were believed killed tonight in a "fire damp" explosion in a mine at Paturages au Fief. Rescue squads rushed to the aid of those trapped in the pit.

Second Holy Land Cloudburst Takes Living Away With Dead

Tiberias, Palestine, May 15 (U.P.).—A second deluge devastated this ancient city in the Holy Land today, causing terrific loss of lives and property along the storm-battered shores of the Sea of Galilee.

The storm burst at noon as mourners were preparing funerals of a score or more stricken in the first cloudburst yesterday. Death of many children was feared.

Mothers shrieked as they saw their children swept away in swirling waters running deep in the lakeside streets. Troops and frenzied parents struggled knee-deep in mud and water in futile attempts to save them.

Horror of the scene increased as bodies of humans, donkeys, cats, chickens and other animals, lost yesterday, came to the surface of the wind-lashed lake and were swept inland along the flooded thoroughfares with the struggling victims of today.

The population fought for high ground in the suburbs of the stricken city. Efforts to check the dead were futile. Twenty-five were known to have perished yesterday and as many or more were feared lost today.

The cloudburst lasted 25 minutes. The water descended in sheets and swirled like a strong river through the town, destroying houses and carrying off victims in its relentless current.

Streets only cleared of debris a few hours previously were again choked with goods, furniture and debris of every description.

The town has a population of 8,600 persons. Tiberias was founded by Herod Antipas in the first century. It was named in honor of the Roman Emperor, Tiberias. It is 27 miles southwest of Ancre, on the west shore of the Sea of Galilee.

7 Lose Lives As Olympic Rams Boat

Nantucket Lightship Is Sunk in Heavy Fog; Cutter on Guard.

Close Following of Radio Directional Beam May Be Cause.

New York, May 15 (U.P.).—The huge White Star liner Olympic loomed through the fog over Nantucket Shoals today, struck the Nantucket lightship amidships, and with the crashing impact of her 46,000 steel tons sent her to the bottom with a loss of seven lives.

Of the lightship's crew of 11, keeping vigil over the foggy banks, four never were seen again. Small boats, hastily lowered from the steep sides of the Olympic, rescued seven of the floundering seamen. Three, crushed in the sinking wreckage, their lungs filled with water, died in the ship's hospital.

The sea drama was heightened by tragic inference that it may have been the Nantucket's radio directional beam—the beam along which the Olympic presumably was riding—that lured the liner directly into the small orbit of the lightship.

A heavy fog blanketed the entire New England coast past which the Olympic was steaming on her inward-bound trip from Europe. Coming down from the Grand Banks her progress had been delayed until she came within the position-finding radio devices—the most modern known to maritime science—that made the Nantucket an aid to coastal navigation.

Olympic Changes Course.

The Nantucket's signals appeared to fade, it was said, and the Olympic poked her way through the fog. Then the signals came clear and strong, so strong the veteran commander of the Olympic, a skipper of 35 seafaring years named John W. Binks, suddenly ordered the helm swung over until she was taking a 10 degree angle from the true course towards the lightship.

The maneuver came too late. Before the massive vessel could swing in the heavy sea, the smaller lightship was athwart the Olympic's sharp bow. Instants later the liner's prow had severed the Nantucket with a rending crash of steel and planking.

Within those few seconds, Capt. Binks had given two commands, with them, the Olympic's propellers were whirling at full speed astern, checking her speed. And the crew were at the lifeboat davits, tumbling the small boats over the sides through the rattling blocks.

Lightship Wreckage Sinks.

From the first moment there was no doubt as to the fate of the lightship. She sank, a mass of tangled wreckage, crushed like a cockleshell under the ponderous weight of the liner. She lies in 30 fathoms of water, far off the sharp ledges she had guarded.

The four lost in the swirling waters were:

I. Pina, cook, New Bedford.

M. S. Rodriguez, seaman, New Bedford.

J. Fortes, seaman, New Bedford.

E. B. George, New Bedford.

Those who died in the Olympic's hospital were:

W. W. Perry, engineer, Reading, Mass.

J. F. Richmond, oiler, South Boston.

A. Monterro, cook, New Bedford.

The survivors being brought to to New York were the master of Shifting of Deck Cargo Causes Ship to List; All of Crew Saved.

Helsingfors, Finland, May 15 (AP). Twenty-one passengers, including three children, drowned today as the steamer Louhi sank in Lake Kallevesi within 100 yards of the shore near Kuopio.

The entire crew and 19 passengers were saved. Survivors said the captain swerved the ship suddenly to avoid a rock, the deck cargo shifted, causing a heavy list, and the boat sank within two minutes.

Some of the passengers lost were trapped in their cabins.

Bank Head Kills Robber, Saves Theft of $15,000

Los Angeles, May 15 (AP).—Harry Silver, manager of the Belvedere branch of the Bank of America, shot and killed one of two men who held up the institution today.

The dead robber was identified as Charles Hoffman, 30, of Los Angeles. Deputy sheriffs captured his companion, who said he was James Wilson, of Detroit. The robbers had $15,000 stacked on the counter when Silver opened fire with a pistol.

Glass Quits Committee In 'Affront'

Indicates Resignation; Robinson Refuses to Accept.

Leader Denies a Slight, Virginian Replies "Poppycock."

By Franklyn Waltman, Jr.

Senator Carter Glass (Democrat), of Virginia, one of the Nation's foremost authorities on finance, yesterday indicated he had resigned as a member of the Senate Banking and Currency Committee in protest against being passed over as one of the conferees on the stock market control bill, which he termed a "deliberate gross affront."

Democratic leader Joseph T. Robinson, while evading questions as to whether he had received Glass' resignation, asserted that "there would be no change in committee memberships," and that he would not accept any resignations if offered. Committee assignments are made by the party leader, with advice of the Steering Committee.

Chairman Duncan U. Fletcher of the Banking and Currency Committee, who selected the conferees, explained he had followed a practice of naming to those places members of the sub-committee in charge of a bill; that on previous occasions he, although committee chairman, had been passed over; that he "loved Glass," and that, anyway, he did not know why "people are so damned sensitive about such matters."

Glass Replies "Poppycock."

To which the peppery Glass replied "poppycock," that he was "the sub-committee which had revised the bill," and that it was "obvious" he was omitted as a conferee to make way for Senators who had opposed changes in the stock market measure proposed by him and approved by both the Banking and Currency Committee and the Senate.

The amendments sponsored by Glass are the only major points in controversy between House and Senate. One would place administration of the bill under a new five-man Federal securities exchange commission, instead of the Federal Trade Commission as voted by the House. The other Glass amendment would give this commission discretionary power to prescribe marginal requirements, whereas the House version of the bill sets as a standard a 45 per cent marginal requirement, with authority vested in the Federal Reserve Board to raise or lower this percentage as conditions warrant. The Senate bill also committed a series of amendments to the 1933 securities act.

The House and Senate conferees will hold their first meeting at 2 p. m. today. Meanwhile, Representative Sam Rayburn, chairman of the House conferees, conferred with President Roosevelt and Federal Trade Commissioner James M. Landis at the White House concerning the bill.

Rayburn Doesn't Object.

3 in Slavery Case Get Prison Terms

Trio in Arkansas Admits Kidnaping Youth.

Hot Springs, Ark., May 15 (AP). Three men pleaded guilty today to charges of kidnaping a 16-year-old youth they were accused of having held as a slave on a Montgomery County farm, and were sentenced to three years each in prison by Circuit Judge Earl Witt.

The men, Homer Markham, 26, his brother, Albert, 19, and Ruben Von Marsh, 28, had been held several days while officers investigated the disappearance of Jabo Fox.

They waived indictments and were sentenced after they told officers they beat Fox, put him on a freight train bound for Oklahoma and warned him never to appear in this State again.

Prosecuting Attorney Houston Emory said he was convinced the youth is still alive.

McDermott Wins Operation Honors

Members of Congress yesterday were looking about for an award to give William J. McDermott, chief bill clerk of the House, for his rapid recovery from an appendicitis operation.

McDermott was operated on shortly after 10 o'clock yesterday morning at Georgetown Hospital.

At 11 o'clock the telephone rang in the House bill room and McDermott's still lusty voice inquired:

"Is everything going along all right?"

$1,322,000,000 Relief Is Asked by President; Hits Huge Works Plan

Senate Adds 5 Million And Passes D. C. Bill

Appropriations Total $37,678,484, With Lump Sum Restored and Funds for Schools, Health and Relief Boosted.

The Senate yesterday passed the District bill for the next fiscal year, carrying $37,678,484.94 in appropriations.

This was an increase of $5,027,827 over the amount voted into the bill by the House. The Senate also restored the Federal contribution to the $5,700,000 carried in the current appropriation law and recommended by the Budget Bureau for the next fiscal year. The House had cut this to $4,364,295, lowest in the history of the District.

Material increases in appropriations for schools, public health, public welfare and relief, as well as other items, accounted for the larger Senate total.

The bill was passed in approximately 20 minutes with a burst of speed such as the Senate puts on now and then. With the same promptness with which it passed the measure, it voted to stand by its amendments when its representatives meet in conference with representatives of the House.

Senator Elmer Thomas (Democrat), of Oklahoma, chairman of the Senate District Appropriations subcommittee, who had charge of the bill and heads the Senate conferees, was responsible for the instruction to stand by the increases. This instruction, however, will be followed with reason and undoubtedly various Senate amounts and provisions will be changed before the bill becomes law.

Vice President Garner named the following as Senate conferees: Senators Thomas, Carter Glass, of Virginia; Royal S. Copeland, of New York; King, of Utah (Democrats), and Gerald P. Nye, of North

Senate Passes Radio, Wire Control Bill

Measure, Creating Federal Commission, Goes to House.

Without a record vote and after less than five hours' debate, the Senate yesterday passed the Dill communications bill, earlier rejecting a proposal to nullify all radio broadcasting licenses in the next six months and reallocate all facilities with one-fourth reserved for educational, religious and other nonprofit-making associations.

The only fight in connection with the bill centered on the proposal to give the nonprofit-making associations one-fourth of the radio facilities of the country. Proposed by Senators Wagner (Democrat), New York, and Hatfield (Republican), West Virginia, this amendment was defeated, 23 to 42.

The bill, which must be acted on by the House, would create a five-man bipartisan Federal communications commission, sitting in two divisions, to have jurisdiction over all forms of communication by wire and radio. The radio commission would be abolished and its functions transferred to the new agency.

Clarifies Law.

Aside from the creation of the new agency and the consolidation under it of jurisdiction over radio, telephone and telegraph communications, the bill adds little that is new to existing law, which is codified and clarified, however, by the bill.

The commission would be directed by the bill to study and report to Congress on the need of legislation to regulate leased wires and additional legislation to control what is termed the telephone "monopoly" and on whether Congress should allocate a fixed percentage of broadcasting facilities for nonprofit programs.

Senator C. C. Dill (Democrat) of Washington, in charge of the bill

Reed Leading Pinchot, 2-1, In Early Vote

Pennsylvania Senator Is Ahead, 20,330 to 8,930, in Primary.

Philadelphia, May 15 (AP).—First scattered returns in the Republican Senatorial primary tonight gave Senator David A. Reed a lead over Gov. Gifford Pinchot. The vote in 175 of 7,936 precincts gave Reed 20,330 and Pinchot 8,930.

For the Republican gubernational nomination, 87 districts gave: W. A. Schnader, 5,131; C. J. Margiotti, 2,968; E. G. Shannon, 846; J. A. McSparran, 123, and T. W. Phillips, 221.

Joseph F. Guffey, Roosevelt patronage dispenser, led Roland S. Morris, Ambassador to Japan under President Wilson, for the Democratic senatorial nomination. Returns from 79 districts gave Guffey, 3,529, and Morris, 469.

For the Democratic nomination for Governor, 22 districts gave:

Bonniwell, 100; McSparran, 14; Copeland, 308, and Earle, 1,603.

Philadelphia, May 15 (U.P.).—A moderately heavy vote was cast today in the Pennsylvania primary elections.

When polls closed at 7 p. m. officials estimated about 2,000,000 ballots had been cast.

Watchers in various counties reported that William A. Schnader, Edward C. Shannon, Charles J. Margiotti, John A. McSparran and Thomas W. Phillips were receiving most votes in the Republican gubernatorial contest.

Reed said, "The balloting is over and my nomination is certain. The only question is the size of my majority."

George H. Earle for Governor, and Joseph F. Guffey for Senator on the Democratic organization ticket, according to reports from their leaders in the 67 counties, indicated they had been "swept into the nominations for their party."

The Roland S. Morris for Senator and Judges Charles D. Copeland for Governor Independent Democratic headquarters were "satisfied with preliminary reports from the field."

Judge Eugene C. Bonniwell, opposing Earle and Copeland for the Democratic Gubernatorial nomination, was said to be cutting into votes claimed by the oppositions.

Balanced Budget Hope Emphasized in Asking $1,322,000,000.

Adamant Against Further Increase

Battle Line Established for New Fight Over Relief Funds.

By Leon Dure, Jr.

Emphasizing his hope for a balanced budget in the fiscal year 1935-36, President Roosevelt yesterday asked Congress for $1,322,000,000 for the year beginning July 1—most of it for the recovery and relief war chest.

The new budget message carried conservative implications, for despite the size of the sum involved, estimates were held strictly within the budget projected at the opening of Congress last January. It laid down a broad policy looking to a tapering off of heavy recovery expenditures and blasted hope of any Presidential sympathy for advocates of further large-scale public works.

The new budget message appeared to have established a battle line for a fresh fight with advocates of still greater spending who have been pressing various relief projects in Congress. Hearings will be begun by the House Appropriation Committee this morning.

Because public works and other emergency disbursements have fallen far behind earlier estimates, the President foresaw expenditure of $1,500,000,000 out of previously authorized funds for public works during the next fiscal year. Hence, only a few hundred millions is provided in addition.

Asks for Lump Sum.

Deducting a half-dozen specific allocations, Mr. Roosevelt asked for $1,225,905,000 as a lump sum for the continued operation of the Civilian Conservation Corps, public works and relief activities. The figure for public works and relief is cut still farther to $552,580,000 by elimination of the CCC and other earmarked estimates.

"It was thought in January, and is my thought now," the President said, "that this sum should be appropriated to me under fairly broad powers because of the fact that no one could then, or can now, determine the exact needs under hard and fixed appropriation headings."

This request for authority to

"Jewel Queen" Silent on Shot

Mabel Boll Shut in Villa After Dancer Friend Tries Suicide.

Nice, France, May 15 (AP). — A dancing boy friend of Mabel Boll shot himself on the lawn of her new villa here today, but if he was trying to kill himself, the police said, his aim was inaccurate.

Also, if the 27-year-old professional hoofer, Georges Charlot, was despairing because the "Queen of Diamonds" was about to throw him over, which is the police theory, the Countess de La Porcerie would not confirm it.

The countess, who is divorced from the man who gave her the title, found Charlot in a pool of blood on the lawn when she returned to her villa at Saint Jean Caperrant after a shopping trip to Nice.

A bullet was extracted from Charlot's side, and physicians at the Nice clinic said he will recover. The countess, after hearing this news, shut herself up in the villa and refused to talk about the affair.

The incident brought into the limelight again the woman who was a close friend of Charles Levine, passenger in a transatlantic flight with Clarence Chamberlin.

Once a cigar clerk in Rochester, N. Y., Miss Boll made her home in Paris for many years and became known as "The Queen of Diamonds" because of her lavish display of jewels.

Prof. Schmidt Relates Amazing Details of Cheliuskin Odyssey

By Kendall Foss.

A magnificently bearded Russian, with pale blue ice-bitten eyes and a startling forehead, sat at a big table in the Soviet Embassy yesterday afternoon and told of fantastic Arctic adventures while marooned on a heaving ice floe.

It was the first eye-witness account of the ill-fated Cheliuskin expedition to reach this country.

Prof. Otto Schmidt, as Russian as they come in spite of his German name, was in charge of the Cheliuskin's attempt to make the passage from Murmansk to the Pacific in one season. He had done it in 1932 in an ice-breaker; last summer he tried it in a commercial vessel, albeit one built to navigate ice-strewn waters.

Storm Spoils Trip.

In sight of its goal, half-way through the Bering Straits, a storm struck the vessel and drove it northward, back into the restless Arctic ice. That was last November 3, three months after leaving Murmansk. The ice held the little freighter fast, driving it hither and yon as the winter storms willed until February 13. Then she collapsed under the pressure and sank.

State Will Ask Death Penalty In Gettle Case

Prosecutor to Demand Kidnapers Be Sent to Gallows.

No ransom was paid, although the gang had demanded $60,000.

The sensational round-up came last night. Since the dramatic kidnaping last Wednesday night, when the millionaire was seized by two men in his country estate, thrown over a garden wall and carted away, the investigation and hunt by Federal, State, county and city authorities went on unceasingly.

Received Two Notes.

"I received two notes, supposedly from Gettle, shortly after he was kidnaped last Wednesday night," Noon said today. "I wasn't quite satisfied that the signature was Gettle's.

"I prepared a series of questions for the kidnapers to ask Gettle. I knew if I got the correct replies I was dealing with the actual kidnapers, and not hijackers.

"One question, addressed directly to Gettle was: 'What did I play with on my one and only trip to the ranch?' Another question was: 'Who was there at that time?'

"In due time I got the answers back from one of the kidnapers, whom I knew as Percy. 'You played with a green parrot,' was the answer to the first question. 'Dan Richards and George Lutzi were there at the time,' was the answer to the second. The reply to the question about the parrot convinced me.

"I was requested to have the pay-off money include $40,000 in $10 bills and $20,000 in $20 bills.

"This Percy fellow then told me to expect a call from Mr. (A. E.) Fox. Fox, a friend of Gettle, did call me a few minutes later. He said he had talked to a kidnaper who said he was trying to deliver a note to my office, but that it was 'too hot' there.

Got Message at Church.

"Fox said he had been advised to drive to the Community Church on Santa Monica boulevard in Beverly Hills and pick up a note. He went there and got the note. It said, in part: 'Dear Ernie—Our friend, Percy, said you wanted to be sure I am alive. If I don't get out of here I won't be. Give me results. Gettle.'"

Noon said he got another call Sunday, instructing him to be ready to start with the money at 8 p. m.

"I told him I was willing, but I was sure I would be trailed and so he told me to get a substitute. At 7:20 p. m. Sunday he called again and said he would be delayed. Meanwhile, we had the 'emissary' in the auto with the doors off and the money ready. The 'emissary' started off on the mission that ended in a shooting foray and failure to contact the kidnapers.

"In the last contact, made yesterday, there was a clock on the wire and the kidnaper realized there was someone tapping. He said he would call at Fox's.

"But I never got the call," Noon said. "The man to whom I had been talking (James Kirk) was arrested shortly afterward.

Caught in Police Trap.

Fate led the abductors squarely into a police trap that had been set not for kidnapers but for bank robbers. An apartment house long suspected of harboring stickup men was planted with sound-recording devices. Three policemen kept constantly at the listening end of the trap.

Until last Saturday night the officers thought they were listening in on bank robbers. Then they heard two men talking in the apartment of Larry Kerrigan.

"This is a nice, cool spot that the cops don't know about," the officers heard. They listened with renewed interest. Then Saturday night, while negotiations presumably were going on for Gettle's ransom, they heard this, probably by Kerrigan and Kirk:

"I'll bet you're scared about that phone call."

"Oh, they can't trace a call from a pay phone."

But still the police did not strike. They listened some more instead and heard a man and a woman speaking in the apartment with the police ears.

"From the newspapers," said the woman, "it looks like the police are laying off."

But the man replied dramatically:

Fail to Escape.

They didn't have time to scram. The law knocked on the door and found Kirk and the two women. On Kirk they found the business card of a real estate man. On the reverse of the card the name William F. Gettle was written.

An officer telephoned to the real estate man. "Do you know a short, heavy set man, with a red neck and a puffy face?" he asked, describing Kirk.

"Sure," was the reply. "I rented him a house the other day at 4246 Rosemont street, La Crescenta."

Capt. Harry Brewster and six aids rushed to this address.

As they surrounded the house, one man escaped. A second, Roy Williams, was captured as he leaped a hedge.

Inside the house, the officers found the abducted millionaire, trussed up on a bed, with adhesive plaster covering his face.

Not long afterward Capt. Norris Stensland, of the sheriff's office, was called to the telephone.

"Do you want Kerrigan?" someone asked. Larry Kerrigan was the third man sought.

"Do I want Kerrigan?" cried Stensland. "Don't be silly! Where do I go?"

The voice named a cafe at College street and Broadway. Stensland was there in five minutes.

Caught While Eating.

On a stool in the cafe, eating, was Kerrigan, the only customer in the restaurant.

"I want you, brother," said Stensland.

Kerrigan went quietly with the officer to the Hall of Justice.

On the way he explained he had slipped away as the cordon of officers surrounded the La Crescenta House by boarding a bus nearby and coming to town.

District Attorney Fitts said he had not yet decided what to do with the two women. Police are checking their records.

As soon as the complaints are issued, the three men, all of whom have police records, will be taken into court. There will be no delays, the county prosecutor said. There will be no waiting for the grand jury to indict the men.

As to witnesses, the prosecutor said that more than 40 officers heard the three admit their parts in the kidnaping. The scene was staged in the sheriff's office so there would be plenty of witnesses.

Meanwhile, Gettle had been taken by deputies to the Hall of Justice, and after making a statement of what he knew of the identity of the kidnapers and how he was treated, he was escorted to his Beverly Hills home.

It was a joyous homecoming, crowds of friends thronged the streets in front of his home, many being film celebrities.

The real pathos was the reunion with his distraught wife and his four little children.

Glass Indicates Resignation At Affront on Conference Post

sion to administer the bill. Rayburn, however, declined to state what had transpired between him and the President on this point. He said, however, that he had no objection to accepting the amendments to last year's securities act voted by the Senate. The House has not acted on these amendments, which liberalize the law's liability section.

Rayburn said the value of these amendments in his opinion "lies chiefly in the psychological and clarifying effect they will have in meeting such fears as have been aroused by a lot of lawyers going around the country scaring everybody." He said he thought the amendment "goes far enough."

It is understood that President Roosevelt wishes also to confer with Fletcher before the conferees meet. The committee chairman said he had not been invited to the White House, but would be glad to hear the President's view regarding it. But he said he intended to support the Senate's amendments in the conference, as he had done in the Senate.

Glass Second in Rank.

As pointed out in The Post yesterday, Glass' claim to be one of the conferees is based on the fact that he ranks next to Fletcher on the Democratic side o fthe committee. It is usual, but there have been many exceptions to the practice, for conferees to be named from the highest ranking members of the committee in charge of a bill.

If this practice had been followed, the conferees would be Fletcher, Glass and Senator Robert F. Wagner, of New York, as the Democratic members, and Senator Peter Norbeck, of South Dakota, and Phillips L. Goldsborough, of Maryland, as the Republican members.

The conferees selected by Fletcher included himself, Senator Alben W. Barkley, of Kentucky, and James F Byrnes, of South Carolina, as the Democrats, and Senators Goldsborough and James Couzens, of Michigan, as the Republicans. These Senators served as members of a submittee to which the stock market bill in the last days of its committee consideration was turned over for revision. Glass was not a member of that committee, but Senator Frederic C. Walcott (Republican), of Connecticut, who outranks Couzens, was a member of it.

Wagner was offered a place on this subcommittee, but asked to be excused because of his pressing duties with the National Labor Board, Fletcher said, and Barkley got his place. Wagner yesterday said he had not been consulted about the personnel of the conference committee but that he was not greatly concerned about it.

Glass Infuriated.

Glass, however, was infuriated, and from his hotel suite gave out a statement that he regarded his exclusion from the conference as "a gross affront, and it was deliberately intended to be." Subsequently Barkley and Byrnes offered to withdraw from the conference in favor of Glass, but he told them that "now he would not accept appointment to the conference committee under any circumstances."

Later in the day he appeared at the Senate Chamber and indicated, but not specifically, that he had resigned the place on the Banking and Currency which he has held since he entered the Senate 14 years ago. This was regarded as a drastic step to make a protest audible, and one seldom resorted to. The only similar action in recent years occurred last year when Senator Huey P. Long (Democrat,) of Louisiana, resigned from all his committee assignments as a protest against "the Democratic leadership in the Senate."

Robinson apparently is anxious to pour oil on the troubled waters within his party. If he continues to refuse to accept the resignation of the Virginian, the latter can withdraw it or can make it effective by refusing attendance on sessions of the Banking and Currency Committee. He has not indicated which course he will follow.

One result of this incident, however, may be to make the Senate leaders reluctant to abandon the Glass amendments to the stock market bill, even though the Administration wants them dropped. Supporters of a report abandoning the Glass amendments would be in the position of taking a personal position against the Virginian, and few of the Senate Democrats relish being in such an attitude.

Fletcher Denies Slight.

"I intended no slight to Glass when I selected the conferees," Fletcher asserted. "Barkley and Byrnes have been the two most active, energetic and generally helpful members of my committee in behalf of this bill and I wished to show my appreciation of their services.

"My only desire is to bet things done and those two have worked day in and day out on this bill. So many members of the committee just drop into a committee meeting for a few minutes and then drop out again. Moreover, Barkley and Byrnes served on the sub-committee named by me to revise the bill and it has been a practice in our committee to pick the conferees from the sub-committee in charge of the bill.

"Barkley and Byrns have a thorough knowledge of the bill and they are sympathetic with its purposes. I love Glass and Wagner. I do not bear them any ill-will. A year ago when the 1933 National banking act was up, Glass had charge of it because he was chairman of the sub-committee that handled it. I helped him in the debate and when the time came to pick conferees, he did that. Although I am chairman of the committee, he did not select me, but named members of his sub-committee.

"Only a few weeks ago when the Home Owners Loan Corporation bill was before the Senate it was in charge of Senator Bulkley (Democrat), Ohio. I helped him but he selected the conferees and he didn't pick me and I am the committee chairman. I didn't mind and I don't know why people are so damn sensitive about such matters."

Fletcher pointed out that in the Senate he had voted against the Costigan amendment which would substitute the House trade commission for the Glass new agency. He said he also voted against Bulkley's amendment outlawing margin trading in order to uphold the Glass marginal provision which had been approved by the full committee.

Neither Is Definite.

When Glass, o nhis arrival at the Senate, was asked whether he had resigned from the banking and currency committee, replied: "Ask Joe Robinson." When the question was put to Robinson, he said: "There will be no changes in committee memberships." Asked again if Glass had resigned, he said:

"If any resignations are offered I do not intend to accept them."

He declined further to discuss the matter. When Glass was, erroneously, told that Robinson had denied receiving his resignation, the Virginian exclaimed, "Joe Robinson couldn't say that."

"He said he would not accept it if it were offered," Glass was told.

"Oh, that is a different matter," retorted Glass.

Glass was told that Fletcher had said that in picking conferees he was following the practice of naming members of the sub-committee that had revised the bill.

"Oh, poppycock, I was the subcommittee that revised the bill," he asserted, and added: "It is obvious why I was passed over. The purpose was to get conferees who were not in sympathy with the action of the committee and the Senate on certain amendments."

The Congressional Record shows that the Costigan amendment, which provided for administration by the trade commission, was supported by Couzens. Fletcher, Byrnes, Barkley and Goldsborough, the other four conferees, voted against it. It was defeated, 29 to 51.

No vote was taken in the Senate on the House marginal requirement provision. Bulkley, however, moved to strike out the Glass marginal provision and insert a prohibition against marginal trading. This was supported by Glass and Couzens. Fletcher, Barkley, Byrnes and Goldsborough voted against it. It was defeated, 30 to 48.

Glass contended that Fletcher, Byrnes and Couzens had opposed his amendments when the bill was in committee.

accepted an amendment requiring the commission to distribute broadcasting licenses so that no one licenses so that no one licensee or broadcasting chain shall be able to "monopolize or exercise dominant control over the broadcasting facilities of any community, city or State or over the country as a whole." This provision may affect the radio set-up here where one chain has two large stations.

With the communication bill passed by the Senate in surprisingly short time, Senator Joe Robinson, Democratic floor leader, announced he would take up today the Norris electoral Constitutional amendment or the Copeland food and drug bill, but that the way must be kept open to begin debate on the tariff bill tomorrow.

As the Senate passed the communications measure, Leighton H. Peebles, deputy NRA administrator, announced he would hold a hearing today on a communications industry code. Although Gen. Hugh S. Johnson, NRA administrator, announced several weeks ago he would impose a code on communications companies, he may ebandon the effort and leave that job to the proposed commission now that it appears the legislation will be passed.

Business 'Tinkering' Rest Urged by Banker

Excelsior Springs, Mo., May 15 (AP).—A "rest cure" for business, without further outside tinkering, was suggested today by Francis M. Law of Houston, Tex., President of The American Bankers' Association, in addressing the Missouri Bankers' Association.

"Men with unbiased minds in increasing numbers are coming to believe that business now needs a rest cure with no more operations, no more medicine, no more artificial stimulus." Mr. Law said the two "greatest public enemies in America today are fear and unbridled selfishness."

actions of the kidnapers that helped to corroborate leads the officers previously had been following.

Cooperation of the United States Department of Justice was assured by Attorney General Homer S. Cummings, who announced in Washington, a finger print expert had been assigned to the case.

As the hunt was intensified it was reiterated no ransom money had been paid, that the $10,000 collected by the father, Fernando Robles, reposed in the home of June's grandfather, Bernabe Robles, and that the family never had received instructions for a pay-off after delivery of the original note to the father demanding $15,000.

Chicago Letter Main Clew.

Among the known clews was the mystery letter from Chicago to Gov. B. B. Moeur, which led to the finding of little June late yesterday in a tomb-like sheet-iron-lined hole in the desert outside Tucson.

First to be scrutinized were the accoutrements of the gravehouse in which the child spent nearly three torturous weeks, and the anonymous Chicago letter.

Fingerprints were being taken from the Chicago letter, with the aid of Department of Justice experts, to be used in comparison with those of suspects who may be picked up.

In Pheonix Herbert H. Hotchkill, secretary, and others of the office staff of Gov. Moeur submitted to having their finger prints taken and forwarded here, so they might be sorted out from any prints possibly left on the letter by the kidnapers.

Letter From Prison.

Also under further scrutiny was a letter, written by a convict in the New Mexico State prison at Santa Fe, forwarded to Sheriff John R. Belton here by Warden Ed Swope. It contained a map, purporting to point out the spot where the kidnaped child was to have been secreted.

The map did not lead to the actual hideout, although the spot indicated, officers said, was about the same distance from Tucson. It was thought possible the convict, whose identity has not been disclosed, knew something of earlier plans of the kidnapers.

The convict's letter detailed that Congresswoman Isabella Greenway, of Arizona, and Lewis W. Douglas, former Arizona Congressman, now Director of the Federal Budget, had been considered originally as kidnap victims.

How She Was Found.

Squads of officers beat about the rugged, cactus-dotted desert nine and one-half miles southeast of Tucson, where the Chicago letter directed that she would be found. They followed all faint trails leading through the wasteland, and everything in and about the coffin-like prison was collected to be sifted. Investigators hoped to find something that would establish definitely the identity of two men, who, June said, called themselves "Bill" and "Will" when they brought her food.

Carlos G. Robles, assistant Pima County Attorney and uncle of June, answered rumors the child's kidnapers had received $10,000 ransom with the statement, "Absolutely not a cent of ransom" had been paid to anyone. His statement that the ransom money was in the home of June's grandfather was confirmed by County Attorney Houston, who said it had "never changed hands."

Feared Child Dead.

How fear changed to joy when County Attorney Clarence Houston and the uncle, their minds on a sinister phrase of the letter referring to June being "buried under a cactus," found the little girl alive, was told today.

Fearing the worst, Houston motioned the uncle to stand back while he approached the cactus-thatched spot. He saw the little form in the coffin-like iron box.

"Are you dead, honey?" Houston falteringly called.

"Hello," came a weak voice from a weak void from the gravelike hole.

"Do you know me, honey?" Houston cried joyously.

"No," said June.

Houston mentioned for the uncle and again addressed June:

"Do you know Lechi?" he queried, referring to the little girl's nickname for her uncle.

"Oh, yes!" she cried and began scrambling to get free.

The county attorney then found nearby the key to the padlock which held June chained by the ankles, tossed it to her, and she freed herself. The two men then pulled her from the desert tomb.

All Tucson echoed with jubilation as the little girl was borne home. Her worry-wracked mother clasped her in her arms. Thousands of persons gathered outside the home of Bernabe Robles, the grandfather, to see June and police reserves had to be called out to rope off the district.

Johnson Utility Bill Signed by Roosevelt

President Roosevelt yesterday signed the Johnson bill, which prohibits public utilities from appealing decisions of State commissions or boards to the Federal district courts.

Introduced by Senator Hiram Johnson (Republican), California, the measure, in effect, prevents the utilities from resorting to the Federal courts to thwart decisions of the State regulatory bodies or State courts.

Guilty of Lying; Can't Be Citizen

Justice Jennings Bailey, in the District Supreme Court, yesterday dismissed a petition filed by Henry Dodd Linklater, of Oregon, to compel the Secretary of the Treasury to permit him to become a citizen of the United States.

His motion was opposed on the ground that he had made misstatements in several civil service examinations that he had submitted to in this country. In most of the examinations Linklater was charged with saying that he was born in this country, whereas it was shown that he had been born in Europe.

In holding that the Secretary of Labor was empowered to refuse him citizenship, Justice Bailey ruled that there was a certain amount of discretionary powers invested in the office which gave the Secretary the authority to withhold citizenship from persons deemed to be undesirable.

Cleveland 'Gas' Strike Settlement Accepted

Cleveland, Ohio, May 15 (AP).—Representatives of major oil companies late today announced they had accepted the proposal of Harold Ickes, Secretary of the Interior, for settlement of the strike of 2,000 union filling station attendants here. The strikers already had approved it.

Senate Passes D. C. Fiscal Bill, Adds 5 Million

Lump Sum Is Restored and School, Health Funds Boosted.

Dakota, and Henry W. Keyes, of New Hampshire (Republicans).

All of the amendments written into the bill by the Appropriations Committee as it reported the bill to the Senate were approved without dispute. Five other amendments offered by Senator Thomas on the floor also were adopted.

Viaduct Provided.

Appropriation of $450,000 for construction of a viaduct over the Baltimore & Ohio railroad tracks at Michigan avenue was the most important, financially, of the five.

An additional $3,600 for the education of orphans of District men killed in the World War also was written into the bill. Another amendment authorized the Attorney General to institute condemnation proceedings, if necessary, to acquire requisite land for the development of a permanent water supply for Occoquan, Va.

Another provided relief for residents of the Barry Farms section, against whose property excessive benefits have been assed for water and sewer improvements. The amendment provides that benefits shall be assessed at the reduced rate of $1.50, instead of $3. The bill changed the basis of assessment generally for the city on recommendation of the Commissioners. The amendment makes the reduction retroactive for the Barry Farms residents.

The fifth authorized school authorities to employ and pay salaries and traveling expenses of consultants from outside the District who might be engaged incident to launching the new character study experiment provided for in the bill.

School Items Added.

School building items in the bill as passed by the Senate included $168,000 for a ten-room and gymnasium addition to the Browne Junior High School, which was in the bill as it passed the House. Items added by the Senate included an increase of $200,000 for completion of the Woodrow Wilson High School, for which the House had provided $400,000, and an additional $5,500 for a school in the vicinity of Logan School.

Completion of the Anacostia Junior High School at Nineteenth street and Minnesota avenue southeast, $180,000; four-room addition to Phelps School, $65,000; ten-class room and gymnasium addition to Deal Junior High School, $166,000; extension of auto repair shop and construction of gymnasium at Armstrong High School, $70,000; four-room addition to Bunker Hill School, $75,000; land for an elementary addition to Phelps Vocational School, $55,000; $150,000 more for purchase of site for Jefferson Junior High School; for furnishing and equipping Woodrow Wilson High School, $175,000; for re-equipping Shaw Junior High School, $15,000.

Appropriations for administrative and supervisory officers, clerks and other employes, teachers and librarians, night schools, community center department, schools for tubercular and crippled children, transportation of pupils and other expenses were increased $115,721 over the House appropriations.

ABC Board Gets More.

The Alcoholic Beverage Control Board was given $55,900 instead of the $28,352 voted by the House. The smaller amount would have necessitated dismissal of clerks and inspectors by the board.

Construction of a Farmers' Produce Market at the Southwest Market space also is provided for, with an appropriation of $22,500.

Two Fliers Leaving on Hop for Rome

Prof. Schmidt Tells Of Arctic Odyssey

the 101 members of the expedition, including ten women and two babies, transferred themselves to the unfriendly ice.

"The sinking took two hours," Professor Schmidt said yesterday. "It was two o'clock when the pressure caved in two-thirds of the side of our ship. At once we all began to unload. At the last only three were aboard. By this time the bow had disappeared, only the stern stuck up sharply from the ice. The Captain, myself, and a young man, the only man we lost on our whole trip.

One Man Lost.

"The Captain jumped. I jumped. The young man was caught by the falling upper deck. On the ice I looked at my wrist watch (displaying it lovingly) and it was 52 seconds after I jumped that the ship disappeared.

"But the Cheliuskin was kind to us, as kind as she could be. After she went down, the barrels of oil and the wood for fires that we had on the upper deck floated up again, so we did not suffer from the cold the two months we lived on the ice. How cold was it? Oh, about 40 below zero."

Marooned, the party set to work, building barrccks, setting up a kitchen, erecting a tower to show rescuers where they were and to hold the wireless aerial, and leveling off a place for planes to land.

At first the less experienced members were all for pushing across the 90 miles of ice floe to Cape Vankarem on the Siberian mainland.

Yhy They Staid.

"But I said no," Schmidt explained, "because I knew that if we began that terrible journey with so many crevasses to jump and so much danger from the constant gapeing and crunching of the floes only the strong would arrive. The weak would drop. I did not want that. We stayed.

"Oh, we were always busy. Mostly we worked on our landing place. All day we would scrape and hack with shovels and wooden hammers and in the night the ice would shift and spoil our work. We made 20 fields.

Apart from the constant fear the ice might disintegrate, the gravest danger came from the walls of ice which would rise out of the floe due to pressure and slide across the wastes. These masses were often 30 feet high. Once one of their barracks was crushed this way, and many precious supplies were lost.

Sea Fliers Are Safe in Ireland On Rome Flight

Sabelli and Pon Report Several Close Calls Over Atlantic.

Rome flight, they completed the season's first aerial crossing of the Atlantic. No plane has ever successfully made the 4,600-mile nonstop journey to Rome from America.

Had the gasoline line broken ten minutes earlier, the fliers would have been forced down before reaching the rock-bound coast of County Clare, one of the wildest areas in the British Isles.

"It was the worst experience I ever had," said Pond, after walking 2 miles to Lahinch, where the fliers rested at a hotel.

"We saw absolutely nothing from the time we left Nefoundland until reaching Ireland. We encountered much fog and a very strong, veering wind."

The fliers sought aid from Baldonnel Airfield, Dublin, and an air corps unit there was sending a mechanic to help repair the plane.

They hoped repairs would be completed tomorrow, in time for a take-off for Rome before nightfall.

Both fliers appeared quite fresh despite their sleepless vigil. A crowd quickly gathered at the hotel when it became known they had landed.

Lieut. Sabelli, in his version of the flight, said "after about 23 hours of blind flying, trouble developed with the engine. We lowered the plane and at first thought of attempting to alight in the sea.

"Fortunately, the trouble cleared up and the machine gained altitude again.

"At another stage of the flight, the gasoline line choked, but Pond, with great courage, left the cockpit, climbed out to the reserve tank and cleared the flow. Otherwise we would have been forced to land in the Atlantic."

Landing in Ireland Disappoints Italians

Rome, May 15 (AP).—Disappointment was mingled with relief tonight when Rome learned that Capt. George Pond and Lieut. Cesare Sabelli were forced down in Ireland on their New York-to-Rome flight.

The news found many persons on their way to Ciampino Airfield, which had been prepared for the landing. An all-night vigil was in prospect, since the fliers were not due here until the early morning hours. Plans were made for the reception when the fliers arrive from Ireland.

President Hits Large-Scale Public Works transfer funds among the emergency administrations, in accordance with future needs, is expected to prove one bone of contention. Another undoubtedly will be the President's recommendation of $100,000,000 for Federal highway construction, which the House set at $460,000,000 last week.

Balanced Budget Hopes Emphasized in Asking $1,322,000,000.

Estimates that accompanied the message to Congress earmarked $100,000,000 for roads, $48,000,000 for the Tennessee Valley Authority, $35,000,000 for Federal buildings, $40,000,000 for Naval construction, $5,000,000 for the Inter-American highway, and $325,000 for enlargement of the President's executive offices.

In sticking to his original budget, Mr. Roosevelt did not disturb the prospect of a public debt of $31,834,000,000 by June 30, 1935, the largest in history. But he is represented as adamant against any further increase, especially by action of this Congress.

Congress Warned.

"In my judgment, an appropriation in excess of the above amount would make more difficult, if not impossible, an actual balance of the budget in the fiscal year 1936, unless greatly increased taxes are provided," he warned the legislators.

When the President submitted his budget January 4, he predicted a deficit of $7,309,068,211 by June 30 and $2,000,000,000 more during fiscal 1934-1935. The Treasury balance sheet for May 12, issued yesterday, shows a deficit of only $3,487,054,135 so far.

While this foreshadowed a deficit of less than $4,000,000,000 by the end of this fiscal year, "appropriations are still in force and the amounts actually to be expended during the following fiscal year will, therefore, be increased over and above my estimate for that fiscal year," he said.

These figures were predicated on emergency expenditures of $3,166,000,000 for the last half of this year and the whole of the year beginning July 1. The President adheres to this program by striking, dollar for dollar, all unexpected appropriations by Congress from the remainder of the emergency estimate.

Other Items Stricken.

The Administration asked and obtained $950,000,000 for the CWA and direct relief in January. In addition the following items not provided in the original budget but voted by Congress were struck from the $2,216,000,000 remaining:

Reconstruction Finance Corporation, $500,000,000; independent offices act raising Federal salaries and increasing veterans' benefits, $228,000,000; additional veterans' benefits, $22,000,000; crop loans, $40,000,000; farm mortgages, $40,000,000; Mississippi flood control, $29,000,000; Army Air Corps, $5,000,000; miscellaneous, $30,000,000.

This leaves a balance of $1,322,000,000 the President asked Congress to appropriate. Breaking this figure down still further, he requested specific appropriations totaling $96,095,000. Significant among them is $10,000,000 for the Internal Revenue Bureau with which to carry on an aggressive fight on bootlegging.

Minimum requirements to support the CCC with its 300,000 young foresters were set at $285,000,000. Relief for the cattle and dairy industries already has been provided to the amount of $150,000,000, which cuts the amount left for public works and direct relief to $522,580,000.

Transfer Right Asked.

Loath to break up this figure, Mr. Roosevelt insists that he be given the right to transfer to Relief Administrator Harry L. Hopkins what Jesse E. Jones, the RFC chairman, can save. Or Public Works Administrator Harold Ickes might be able to use other unexpended funds. The President takes the position no human being can foretell what next winter will bring.

With an eye to the fall elections, House members last week "authorized" $460,000,000 to continue Federal allocations to States for road building. Either this must be cut down closer to the $100,000,000 proposed by Mr. Roosevelt or even less will be available for other means of relief.

Experience with public works money has shown the President that highways are one of the slower means to alleviate unemployment. Although $3,300,000,000 in public works funds have been parceled out by Mr. Ickes, only approximately $860,000,000 has left the Treasury, and of this sum $400,000,000 was for civil works.

The bulk of public works spending will come later this year, with a peak expected during August. Hence, President Roosevelt believes the CWA—or some variant of this means of direct relief—a more effective means for immediate help to the unemployed. If conditions darken next fall, more money would be given Mr. Hopkins.

$48,000,000 for TVA.

The $48,000,000 proposed for the TVA, the Government's biggest experiment in social and economic planning, followed a recommendation by Dr. Arthur E. Morgan, chairman, for the construction of four new dams near Muscle Shoals. The $5,000,000 for the inter-American highway would be a contribution by this country toward the construction of the new roadway linking North with South America.

With its conserative insistence on ending lavish emergency spending, the new budget represents the work of Mr. Roosevelt in conference with Budget Director Lewis W. Douglas, a watchdog of the Treasury. It was explained to newspapermen, seated on the floor in the President's office, while he took up item by item.

The message's receipt by Congress immediately brought forth a statement by Representative John Taber (Republican), New York, criticizing the President for removing control of expenditures from the Budget Bureau. He is ranking Republican on the Appropriations Committee, which today will begin its hearings with Relief Administrator Hopkins in the witness chair.

Tax Exemption For Legion Hit

Commissioners Oppose Pending Bill.

The District Commissioners yesterday expressed their disapproval of a bill now pending in Congress which would exempt certain American Legion property in the District from taxation.

In reporting to Congress on the measure, the Commissioners said that already $75,000,000 worth of property was exempt from taxation, either under special or general legislation.

Such exemptions, they pointed out, throw an unfair burden on the general public.

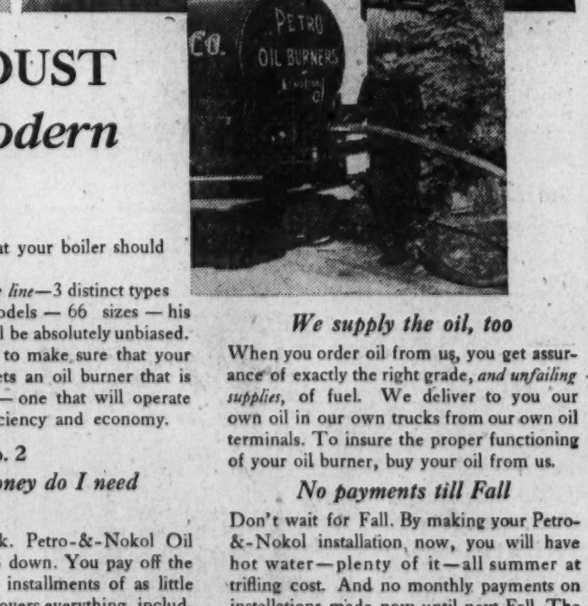
The day you PUT IN A PETRO-&-NOKOL ...is the Last Day you PUT OUT THE ASHES



...Banish DIRT and DUST FOREVER with this modern Oil Burner!

THINK of never being ashman again. Never breathing in another lungful of ash-dust. No more ash-smears on your clothes. No more wrestling bouts with unwieldy cans.

Think also of a house that stays clean longer—because the "cellar broadcasting station" for dirt and dust is off the air for good.

Then what's keeping you from switching to oil heat? Our guess is that you want a definite answer to two important questions.

QUESTION No. 1

"What type of burner should I buy?"

The Petro-&-Nokol representative is one man who won't try to "high-pressure" you into buying one type of oil burner when a different type is what your boiler should have. Why?

Backed by a complete line—3 distinct types—16 different models—66 sizes—his recommendation will be absolutely unbiased. His chief interest is to make sure that your boiler or furnace gets an oil burner that is 100 per cent right—one that will operate with maximum efficiency and economy.

QUESTION No. 2

"How much money do I need to buy one?"

Less than you think. Petro-&-Nokol Oil Burners start at $25 down. You pay off the balance in monthly installments of as little as $15. This price covers everything, including a 275 gallon oil storage tank. No extras.

We supply the oil, too

When you order oil from us, you get assurance of exactly the right grade, and unfailing supplies, of fuel. We deliver to you our own oil in our own trucks from our own oil terminals. To insure the proper functioning of your oil burner, buy your oil from us.

No payments till Fall

Don't wait for Fall. By making your Petro-&-Nokol installation now, you will have hot water—plenty of it—all summer at trifling cost. And no monthly payments on installations made now until next Fall. The coupon below will bring you full information.

Troopers Seize Score of Guns During Voting

Williamson Is Patrolled, Residents, Visitors Searched.

Williamson, W. Va., May 15 (Spl.).—Twenty heavily armed State troopers patrolled Williamson streets today, disarming all residents and visitors as upward of 5,000 voters went to the polls in a bitterly fought municipal election.

Magistrate Emmet Keadle and State police gathered more than a score of automatics and revolvers in the wholesale disarmament. Troopers searched everybody.

Troopers took a pistol from a Logan policeman, and made a fruitless search of a former sheriff from the same city. When the State police entered city hall to investigate charges that they were being sent through a back exit to bolt the lines of voters, a group of men fled and escaped the officer. Chief Deputy Adrian Stepp arrested one man as a disturber.

The troopers were sent into the city after guns were flashed and many fist fights occurred on registration day. Gov. H. G. Kump summoned a conference of local party leaders and an agreement was reached to halt the appointment of special officers with authority to bear arms.

Last midnight Judge R. J. Howard, of Circuit Court, ordered the registration board, composed of Democrats, to show cause for keeping 19 Republican voters off the registration books. This resulted in the restoration of the names.

A bitter political battle began here a year ago after the adoption of a new charter, which removed Mayor Wirt F. Hatfield, Republican, and directed the appointment of a mayor by Gov. Kump, who named O. E. Hogan, Democrat. Hatfield is opposing Hogan for reelection.

Numerous arrests were made during the day for alleged illegal registration.

Bank Teller Is Held On Charge of Robbery

Norfolk, Va., May 15 (Spl.).—Orville B. Wilson, 28, was arrested last night on a charge of embezzling $2,500 from the Merchants and Mechanics Savings Bank where he has been employed since he was 14 years old. For several years he has held the position of paying teller and was very popular.

Bail was fixed at $3,000 and was furnished by a relative.

Baltimore Citizen Misses Plane, But Radio Recalls It

Charlotte, N. C., May 15 (AP).—Passenger trains and transport planes usually are considered "gone," no matter who misses them at the take-off, but H. C. Byrd can boast at his Baltimore home tonight how one of the latter came back for him.

Arriving at the airport here just in time to see the take-off of a plane on which he had booked passage, Byrd told his troubles to the local Eastern Air Lines staff. A telephone call was put in to the company's radio station at Spartanburg, S. C., which in turn called the pilot. A few minutes later the big plane circled back to the airport, picked Byrd up and resumed its trip northward.

Ritchie, Rival To Talk Before Labor Meeting

Maryland-D. C. Federation to Convene Monday at Hagerstown.

Baltimore, May 15 (Spl.).—Speakers for the twenty-eighth annual convention of the Maryland State and District of Columbia Federation of Labor, which convenes Monday at Hagerstown, were announced here today.

Gov. Ritchie heads the list, while his rival for the Democratic gubernatorial nomination, Mayor Howard W. Jackson of Baltimore, also is to talk. Others include Arthur E. Hungerford, NRA compliance director for Maryland; the Rev. Bruce H. McDonald, pastor of Westminster Presbyterian Church, Baltimore; Dr. Edward L. Israel, rabbi of Bolton Street Temple, Baltimore, and Mgr. John A. Ryan, dean of the faculty of sacred sciences at the Catholic University, Washington.

The principal topic of discussion at the convention is expected to be emergency relief activities and their effect on wage scales in industry. Other themes will be child labor, provisions of the National recovery act, old-age pensions and workmen's compensation laws.

Speaking of the plans for the meeting, Joseph P. McCurdy, president of the federation, said:

"Every effort must be made to abolish the exploitation of the labor of children and to safeguard the child-life of America, to organize the wage-working men and women of Maryland and to see that their standards of life and toil may be commensurate with the civilization of our time, and to organize more fully the unskilled as well as the skilled toilers."

Church Council Favors Change In Communion

Southwestern Episcopal Diocese Meets in Staunton.

Staunton, Va., May 15 (Spl.—Two questions concerning the administration of Holy Communion were the only matters other than routine occupying opening sessions today of the fifteenth annual council of the Episcopal Diocese of Southwestern Virginia, in Emmanuel Church.

The council took affirmative action on both. One was a memorial to the general convention of the Episcopal Church, which meets in Atlantic City in October, asking revision of the canons authorizing use of a licensed lay reader by clergymen for administraton of the chalice at Holy Communion. The other was a resolution, intended for the guidance of the diocesan delegates to the general convention, favoring use of intinction instead of the common use of the chalice.

The Rev. Robert MacGill, of St. John's Church, Lynchburg, offered the memorial. He explained that the change in the canon, if granted by the general convention, would help meet a situation in large churches and at churches ministering to large student populations, which had lengthened the communion service to the discouragement of many communicants.

The report of the committee on increase of the ministry, made by the Rev. Thomas D. Lewis, D. D., of Amherst, recommended that young men be discouraged from making a decision for the ministry until their second year in college. C. Edwin Michael, of Roanoke, reported that all pension fund obligations had been met, and many overpaid, despite business conditions.

Bishop Robert Carter Jett, of Roanoke, is presiding at the council session, which will continue until tomorrow afternoon. At a meeting of the Laymen's League last night, M. A. Smythe, of Roanoke, was elected president; Maj. E. W. Opie, Staunton, vice president, and John McClarey, of Roanoke, secretary-treasurer.

Jobless Get Work On Virginia Roads

10,000 Are Helping Repair Winter Damage.

Richmond, May 15 (Spl.).—Improvement to winter ravaged Virginia roads is taking care of many unemployed, the State highway commission announced today, revealing that more than 10,000 persons are now employed in repair work.

During the winter of 1932-33, although the weather was not severe, the frequent changes from freeze to thaw and back again did damages to the State's roads estimated at $450,000. The damage this last winter has been equally great. Many oiled highways were ruined for their entire length.

The greater part of the damage wrought was in the eastern part of the State, although lower temperatures were recorded in the western, or mountainous section. This was owing to the fact that in the higher altitudes the temperature was more constant. In the low country the variations in temperature produced an upheaval of the soil underlying the oiled surface and this in many instances wrecked the surface.

Bids Announced On Virginia Works

Richmond, May 15 (AP).—Public works engineers for Virginia today announced low bidders on five projects to cost more than $200,000.

They are Renan High School, in Pittsylvania County, with the construction low bid by C. W. Hancock & Sons, Lynchburg, $62,942; heating by Ideal Plumbing & Heating Co., Roanoke, $6,000, and plumbing by C. D. Harvey, Gretna, $3,871. Woodstock High School, Shenandoah County, construction low bid by Neilsen Construction Co., Harrisonburg, $49,800; plumbing and heating by D. C. Bowman, Harrisonburg, $7,298; repairs and fireproofing, Maury Brooke Hall, V. M. I., Rockbridge County, $25,995. Shawsville High School, Montgomery County, Lucas, Stone & Frazier, Roanoke, $44,202, and Cambria School, Montgomery County, T. G. Moore, Shawsville, $20,950.

Edward E. Kennedy, National secretary of the Farmers' Union, also is listed as one of the speakers.

Shenandoah CWA Jobs to Proceed

Woodstock, Va., May 15 (Spl.).—Harold G. Chandler, projects engineer of the Federal Emergency Relief Administration for Shenandoah County, announces that four incomplete CWA projects are to be completed with FERA funds.

These projects include sidewalks on Main street, Woodstock, employing 11 men; sewerage extension in New Market, employing 31 men; sidewalks in Edinburg, employing 12 men, and water and sewerage lines in Mount Jackson, employing 34 men.

All laborers on these projects are to be taken from the relief rolls with the possible exception of some skilled labor and supervisors, Chandler stated.

Truck Driver in Crash Fined, Given Jail Term

Westminster, Md., May 15 (Spl.).—Lawrence R. Yingling, Westminster, driver of a gasoline truck which collided with a coach driven by William P. Miller, of Woodbine, near here, early Sunday morning, was fined $100 and costs for operating a car under the influence of liquor and given 30 days in jail for reckless driving when tried before Police Justice George E. Benson yesterday.

Miller was fined $20 and costs for operating a car without license. Charles J. Yingling, a passenger in the truck, pleaded guilty and paid a fine for drunken and disorderly conduct.

Martinsburg, W. Va., May 15 (Spl.).—Former Councilman Amos B. Irvin was chosen chairman of the newly elected city Republican executive committee, which organized yesterday. Mrs. Floyd Fauver was reelected secretary, and Clyde E. Smith reelected treasurer.

Trolleys Still Use Annapolis Streets

Council Renews Contract for 2 Years More.

Annapolis, Md., May 15 (Spl.).—The city council has renewed for two years July 1 a contract with the Washington, Baltimore and Annapolis Electric Railroad, to operate six cars daily through certain streets in order to make proper connections with the Claiborne-Annapolis Ferry Co. steamers.

The company pays the city $500 per year and a small per capita tax on passengers, for this privilege, and it is obliged to keep the streets within two feet of its tracks in repair. These conditions were laid down two years ago when, under a Federal court decree, the railway won a condemnation action for use of the streets. The municipality sought to bar cars entirely.

In view of the railway's limited franchise privileges the council, acting upon a protest against motor buses hauling passengers to any point in the city, plans a new ordinance curbing such operation and assigning parking areas for buses.

Body of Henry J. Irvin Removed to Baltimore

Leonardtown, Md., May 15 (Spl.).—The body of Henry J. Irvin, 75, many years a resident near Leonardtown, who died at a hospital here Sunday, was taken to Baltimore today for burial there.

Warren Irvin, New York newspaperman, accompanied the body.

Revenue Stamp Office Opened at Cumberland

Cumberland, Md., May 15 (Spl.).—The opening of a revenue stamp office here to accommodate local brewery officials has been announced, with Edward V. Welsh in charge.

Appointment of the new special deputy collector was made upon the indorsement of Senator Millard E. Tydings.

Maryland Methodists Will Meet June 13-18

Westminster, Md., May 15 (Spl.).—The 106th annual session of the Maryland Conference, Methodist Protestant Church, will be held at Western Maryland College June 13-18.

Approximately 300 ministers and delegates from Maryland, Delaware, Pennsylvania and Virginia will attend the six-day session, which will be in charge of Rev. L. B. Smith, Baltimore, president of the conference.

Tuberculosis Quiz Discloses Victims

21 Positive Cases Found in Frederick County.

Winchester, Va., May 15 (Spl.).—An incomplete survey of six Frederick County communities to determine the prevalence of tuberculosis has resulted in the discovery of 21 positive cases and 13 suspected cases, Miss Josephine Russell, public health nurse for Winchester and the county, announces.

The cases were found among 124 contacts, or persons believed exposed to the "white plague." Eight of the 21 positive cases were reported in four families, two in each family.

Miss Russell stated that her investigation indicated that many of the "contact" cases are children, in most instances undernourished and in surroundings conducive to contracting the disease. A number of the children live in homes in which one or both parents, who are positive cases, take no precautions to prevent their children from becoming afflicted, Miss Russell added.

Elkins Rites Held For David Barry, 80

Elkins, W. Va., May 15 (Spl.).—Funeral services were held yesterday at St. Brendan's Catholic Church for David Barry, 80, native of Ireland, who moved to Elkins from Washington about 40 years ago and was for many years overseer of the estate of the late United States Senator Stephen B. Elkins.

His wife, who survives, was the former Miss Emma Hobbs, of London. He also leaves two sons and a daughter, Emily, member of the faculty of Elkins High School.

HOLC at Cumberland Pays Out $1,302,011

Cumberland, Md., May 15 (Spl.).—More than a million and a quarter dollars has been paid out to borrowers by the Cumberland branch, Home Owners Loan Corporation, according to a statement yesterday from Oliver H. Bruce, jr., manager. The exact amount is $1,302,011.93.

The number of applications up until yesterday was 2,181, and the loans asked for total $5,757,207.93.

7 Lives Are Lost When Olympic Rams Lightship

Nantucket Goes Down in Fog; Radio Beam Is Blamed.

the lightship, George Braithwaite; C. E. Mosher, first mate; J. F. Perry, radio operator, and L. U. Roberts, oiler.

First word of the tragedy came to shore by wireless from Capt. Binks: "Have sunk Nantucket Lightship. Standing by to pick up crew."

Cutter Will Guard Shoals.

Coast Guard bases sent three cutters racing 85 miles to sea, to the position of the wreck. One of them, either the Acushnet, out of Woods Hole, or the Argo, out of Vineyard Haven, will stand by on the now unguarded shoals, replacing the wrecked Nantucket until a relief lightship once more is riding the swells of her grave.

Speculation in maritime circles over cause of the tragedy brought recurrence of warnings from navigators against the danger of riding too closely along the radio beams. More than once, it was revealed, there had been narrow escapes from similar tragedies, when the oncoming ship has failed to veer sufficiently from the true course of the beam to give leeway to objects in front of it.

The Department of Commerce in Washington only recently made note of the danger attending the new device, and warned it should be used cautiously in thick weather.

Largest Lightship in World.

The Nantucket was one of the most efficient, as well as the largest, lightships in the world. She had been given every possible invention of aid to navigation. She carried an oscillating incandescent light of 3,000 candlepower, her powerful radio beacon, and a synchronized submarine oscillator.

The Shoals Lightship was considered the most important link in the protective chain of lights that lead the great liners down the coast from the Grand Banks and safely into New York harbor. She is the first main station picked up by the men on the bridge, and after they "hit" her signals, they veer sharply until they pick up the Fire Island Lightship, miles farther on their course.

Rolling constantly over 180 feet of rough water, the Nantucket was anchored with heavy chains that held her head onto the seas—and she was without the usual protection of a lee shore.

After his first brief messages relating the disaster, Capt. Binks was silent, and referred inquiries to the ship's offices. It was said that a full report of the accident would not be given until the skipper has had time to deliver his rescued crew and make his official report to the port captain.

Passengers Not Alarmed.

Passengers aboard the Olympic reported that although they felt the crash there was no indication a major tragedy had taken place.

Then, suddenly, the decks were alive with seamen and stewards, tumbling out of doors and emerging from hatchways, rushing to safety posts by the Olympic's lifeboats.

There came the rattle of chains and blocks, and the squeal of pulleys. Three small boats, one of them with its motor already running, plopped into the water.

Below the great bow of the Olympic was froth—and the clinging bits of shattered wreakage that were once the Nantucket. Life preservers were thrown overboard. A sinking form was swept past one of them, to disappear before a grasping hand could reach it.

Olympic Cruises Around.

The lifeboats pulled away and rose to the top of the waves—it is never placid water out there—and disappeared in the fog. The Olympic, its engines tuned down to a few revolutions a minute, cruised in short circles.

Seven men, three of them unconscious, were found floating or struggling, taken aboard the small boats and raised gently to the open hatches of the liner.

Two hours of painful search followed. There was no trace either of the Nantucket or of the four still missing from its crew. The Olympic recalled its boats, hoisted them to their places on the davits, turned on its course, and proceeded slowly toward its port.

Official Inquiry Probable.

London, May 15 (U.P.).—An official inquiry into the sinking of the Nantucket lightship in a collision with the White Star liner Olympic near New York today was regarded probable tonight.

A board of trade official said such inquiries normally are made when British liners involved in accidents abroad return to England. The load-line committee customarily takes charge of such inquiries.

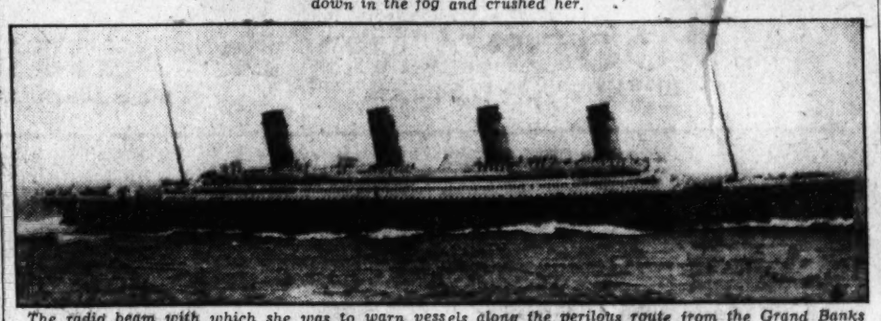
Quinn Seeks Governorship.

Los Angeles, May 15 (AP).—John R. Quinn, chairman of the board of supervisors of Los Angeles County, announced today he would seek the Republican nomination for Governor.

Quinn is a former National commander of the American Legion.

Seven Perish as Liner Rams Lightship

Tragedy rode the turbulent waters off Nantucket Shoals yesterday, and as a result seven sailors perished and the lightship Nantucket went to the bottom when the White Star liner Olympic (above) rode her down in the fog and crushed her.



The radio beam with which she was to warn vessels along the perilous route from the Grand Banks to New York yesterday was believed responsible for the tragedy of the lightship Nantucket (above), in which seven of her crew met death. The Olympic, plowing along following the beam, crashed into the Nantucket, sending her to the bottom.

Justice Stone Does Not Want To Lead G. O. P.

Out of Politics, He Says, Hence Not Interested in Presidency.

Associate Justice Harlan F. Stone of the Supreme Court is "out of politics" and therefore not "interested" in the idea that he might be the Republican standard-bearer in 1936.

Through his secretary, the justice thus commented yesterday on the suggestion advanced by W. Kingsland Macy, New York Republican State chairman, that the Republicans should seek a candidate of Mr. Justice Stone's "type."

Interjection of the name, however, has served to crystallize opinion in the Republican camp that the party, at its June 5 meeting in Chicago, should choose a chairman of liberal views.

Macy discussed the chairmanship with Senators Borah, Vandenberg and Hastings, who heads the Republican Senatorial campaign committee. In the course of discussion Macy cited the justice as the ideal candidate for 1936.

"He's a fine type—just the right type," Macy said afterward. "Hhe represents broad liberal principles balanced with wise judgment. It should be easy to unite all elements of the party behind such a man."

As Chief Justice Hughes was "drafted" to run in 1916, there is precedent for the Macy suggestion. However, it has sufficed primarily to focus attention on the type of chairman, as well as candidate, apparently desired by the majority of active Republicans.

Senator Borah, in a statement yesterday, echoed the demand for "a liberal party policy." He said, as quoted by the Associated Press:

"Mr. Macy discussed principally the matter of the chairmanship. I think it safe to say that he is interested in a liberal party policy and wants a chairman in harmony with the policy. No one in particular was urged.

"As I see it, the selection of a chairman at this particular time is far more important than ordinarily. It will be taken by millions of Republicans as indicating whether we have or have not a party.

"Chairman Should Fit Cause."

"The campaigns in the future for years to come will be fought over issues which are tugging at the hearts of the American people. A chairman should fit the cause. This in effect was my statement to Macy."

The quest for a chairman is still on. Frank Knox, Chicago publisher, has refused to serve. Former Senator Edge, of New Jersey, has insisted that his name be removed from the slate of possibilities.

Old Guard Republicans who have beep trying to round up votes are said to be short of enough to capture command of the committee. On the other hand, the so-called Hoover group is evidently lacking in votes enough to hold control. A third element, representing the Progressive Republicans, is similarly unable to muster enough votes and proxies to control. The three factions generally seek a compromise acceptable to all, but the chairman who combines the rare qualities of appeal to all is easier to visualize than to name.

All signs point to a strenuous struggle when Everett Sanders steps out of the chairmanship at the Chicago meeting of the Republican committee, and Republican talk is now veering toward a temporary "neutral" chairman until the political scene becomes clearer.

Valley Firm Sued on Charge Of Removing 3 Gravestones

Winchester, Va., May 15 (Spl.). A suit involving alleged disturbance of the sanctity of the dead will be heard in Circuit Court of Frederick County here when Judge Philip Williams opens the May term.

George W. Conner, of Frederick county, is suing the Loewner Granite and Marble Co., Inc., of Harrisonburg, Va., for $550 on the ground that the latter removed from Refuge Cemetery, near here, a monument and two grave markers, the property of Conner.

Conner is reported to have purchased from the Loewner company a monument and two markers for the graves of a son and daughter—John W. Conner and Katherine L. Conner—in Refuge Cemetery, several years ago.

Conner is reported to have still owed about $127.50 on the monument and grave markers in 1930. The Loewner company sued Conner in a local magistrate's court and obtained judgment for $127.50, plus costs. A Frederick County officer accepted execution on the judgment but reported "no property found" when he went to levy on Conner's chattels.

Nothing further was done in the matter, it is said, until last November, when Conner alleges, the Loewner company removed the monument and grave markers. Conner, through Albert J. Kramer and Floyd M. Brill, Winchester attorneys, has brought suit for $550, the cost of the property allegedly removed from the cemetery and damages sustained.

Eastern Shore To Share State PWA Projects

$8,500,000 Chesapeake Bay Bridge Among Pending Jobs.

Easton, Md., May 15 (Spl.).—No section of the State will receive more Public Works Administration improvements than the nine counties of the Eastern Shore, in the opinion of PWA officials.

Pending projects include the proposed $8,500,000 Chesapeake Bay bridge. Because the majority of projects assigned to the Shore are Federal projects and do not pass through State offices for approval, an accurate check has not been made, but it is believed the nine-county area will have its share.

Construction of jetties to protect the new inlet at Ocean City, the dredging of the inlet and the Sinepuxent and Chincoteague Bay channels to assure full use of the inlet, requiring a total expenditure of nearly a million dollars, are among the most important projects for the Eastern Shore.

Approved Projects.

Approved State PWA projects embrace $27,000 for a sewer and water construction at Vienna in Dorchester County; $34,300 for sewer construction at Centerville; $260,000 for sewer construction in Cambridge, and $52,000 for sewer work at Hurlock.

Projects already passed the State PWA and awaiting action in Washington include the bay bridge, $155,000 for sewer and water work at Crisfield, $3,500 for a water project at Trappe in Talbot county, $50,000 for sewer construction in Federalsburg, $25,000 for water and sewerage construction at East New Market, $44,000 for sewer construction at Chestertown and a $21,000 water project at Secretary in Dorchester county.

Other Federal Jobs.

Other Federal loan projects include work on light houses, Coast Guard stations, the channel at Knapps Narrows and road construction. Construction of a bridge over the Choptank River is being financed through Federal loans and the Shore will receive a secondry advantage from the construction of a new Philadelphia road from Baltimore.

The State PWA board has indicated it is ready to approve a $155,000 courthouse construction at Chestertown, $107,000 sewer and water work at North East, and a $5,000 project at Millington, the last named project having been dropped by town authorities.

Police Captain Witness At Trial of Banghart

Baltimore, May 15 (Spl.).—Capt. Joseph Wallace, commander of the Northern Police District here, left today for Asheville, N. C. where he is to be a witness in the trial of Basil Banghart, Touhy gang member accused of participation in the $105,000 mail robbery at Charlotte, N. C., last November.

Banghart, with another gangster suspect and two women, was arrested in an apartment house in Baltimore last February 11, in the police district under Captain Wallace's supervision.

Crash Near Hagerstown Proves Fatal to Youth

Hagerstown, Md., May 15 (Spl.). Injuries received in a head-on collision on the National highway west of here late Sunday proved fatal today to John Ott, 17, McConnellsburg, Pa., at the Washington County Hospital.

Hubert L. Elvey, driver of the car in which Ott was a passenger, is being held pending an investigation. Esther Ray, 16, and Gladys Black, 18, who like Ott suffered skull fractures, are slightly improved. The Elvey machine allegedly collided with the car of William Goldburg, Baltimore.

Double Duty

Berkeley County Duck Lays 2 Eggs a Day.

Martinsburg, W. Va., May 15 (Spl.).—Berkeley County boasts a duck that lays two eggs daily, with few execptions, every day in the year.

The eggs are large and all used for hatching have produced results. The duck lays one egg in the morning and the second one in the evening.

The duck belongs to Alvy Albright, who lives on the delicious Orchard farm of W. W. Downey, near Marlowe along the Potomac River. There is no doubt in Albright's mind that the two eggs are delivered by the same fowl as he has but two and the other is a drake.

Edgar Austin Hartley To Be Buried Today

Petersburg, Va., May 15 (Spl.).—Edgar Austin Hartley, 85, commission merchant, banker and manufacturer, of this city, who died yesterday at Petersburg Hospital, will be buried tomorrow.

He is survived by his widow, Mrs. Sarah L. Hartley; one son, Irving J. Hartley, of this city, and three daughters, Mrs. Mary Fitzhugh and Mrs. J. B. Worth, both of Petersburg, and Mrs. Severa Mallet Prevost, of New York.

Braithwaite's Funeral Held

Rites in Harrisonburg for Dean of Printers of "Old School."

Harrisonburg, Va., May 15 (Spl.). Robert Emmett (Pete) Braithwaite, 74, dean of the "old school" printers of the Shenandoah Valley and a veteran of the Spanish-American War, was buried today in Woodbine Cemetery after services were conducted from the First United Brethren Church by Dr. James W. Wright.

"Uncle Pete," as he was known to the older printing fraternity throughout the State and in Confederate circles, died yesterday in Rockingham Memorial Hospital after a six weeks' illness.

He was a native of Harrisonburg, but during more than half a century in the printing trade he worked in a dozen Virginia cities and towns in the days when newspapers and all other printed matter were set by hand.

In the last ten years he was a regular attendant at all Confederate reunions. He was an active member of D. H. Lee Martz Camp, Sons of Confederate Veterans. During the Spanish-American War he served in Co. A, Second Virginia volunteer regiment, enlisting at Woodstock. He also was a member of Company C, Virginia National Guards, of Harrisonburg, which carried off many drill prizes in competition through the State in the old days.

He is survived by a sister, Mrs. Fannie Stone, of Portsmouth; nephews, James Braithwaite, of Richmond, and Sam Braithwaite, of Harrisonburg; nieces, Mrs. Charles White, Alexandria; Mrs. Wilmer Bowers, Harrisonburg, and Mrs. Cora Stone, Portsmouth.

Crop Loan Rate Is Reduced Again

Strasburg, Va., May 15 (Spl.).—The second reduction in interest rates of the Strasburg Production Credit Association within two months was announced last night by Julian A. Everly, secretary-treasurer. The latest reduction brings the rate from 5½ per cent to 5 per cent, while a former cut reduced it from 6 to 5½ per cent.

The new interest rate will only affect new loans.

The Strasburg Production Credit Association makes crop loans to farmers in Clarke, Frederick, Warren, Page and Shenandoah Counties.

W. C. T. U. Executives Meet.

Lincoln, Va., May 15 (Spl.).—The Loudoun County Women's Christian Temperance Union executive committee met at the home of the State president, Mrs. Howard M. Hoge, in Lincoln, yesterday and laid plans for the county convention, which will be held in Leesburg in June.

Clifton Forge Woman Hangs Self With Tie

Clifton Forge, Va., May 15 (Spl.). Mrs. K. L. Hamilton, of this city, committed suicide yesterday afternoon by hanging herself with a necktie in the bathroom of her home.

It is thought that her act was caused by a long period of illness. Her family discovered the body when Mrs. Hamilton failed to reappear after locking herself in the room.

Funeral services will be held tomorrow afternoon.

Benefit Play Planned For Montgomery Church

Mount Airy, Md., May 15 (Spl.). For the benefit of the Montgomery Methodist Protestant Church, a comedy, "Clubbing a Husband," will be given in the community hall at Clagettsville Friday evening.

The cast includes Frances Miller, Eileen Cline, Mary Wilson Souder, Ruth Merson, Bernida Long, Ada Mae Buxton, Eleanor Souder, Ruby Appleby, Nondis Moxley, Adelyne Moxley, Eleanor Watkins, and Lorraine Watkins.

Jail Break Trial Set.

Lynchburg, Va., May 15 (Spl.).—Witnesses are being summoned for the trial of F. S. Tyree, city sergeant, which opens in the municipal court Monday. Two indictments were returned against the sergeant in connection with a recent jail break.

Booton Continues In Post of Justice

Luray, Va., May 15 (Spl.).—The board of supervisors of Page County, meeting in Luray today decided to employ Trial Justice John H. Booton under the new State law as it applies to this office.

Justice Booton has been acting under a special Page County law passed by the Virginia Legislature a short time ago. Justice Booton will be given jurisdiction in civil cases up to $1,000. His powers in contempt cases will be the same as those of Judge H. W. Bertram, of the Page County Court.

Under the new powers he will hold court each week in Stanley and Shenandoah, in addition to stated terms in Luray.

Danville Fire Reported Of Incendiary Origin

Danville, Va., May 15 (Spl.).—Police are investigating a report by Fire Chief Lewis Mitchell that the fire which damaged a house early yesterday morning was of incendiary origin.

The dwelling was unoccupied, but contained a quantity of second-hand furniture belonging to W. R. Mitchell's estate. Firemen found a pile of blazing waste on a window sill, Chief Mitchell said.

Benefit for Club Set.

Middleburg, Va., May 15 (Spl.).—The original Hill-Billies, with Hopkins and his Buckle Busters, will give an entertainment in the Middleburg School Thursday evening for the benefit of the Middleburg Athletic Club.

S. M. A. Corps Goes To Camp May 25

400 Cadets Will Be Drilled at Winchester Park.

Winchester, Va., May 15 (Spl.).—Staunton Military Academy, at Staunton, Va., will open its annual military encampment at the municipal park here May 25, city officials announced today.

The entire corps of 400 cadets will be encamped here for one week, while the cadets compete in athletic events and military trials. The corps has encamped here yearly for about ten years. A regulation rifle range has been erected.

During the encampment the corps will be under the supervision of a United States Army officer. Members of the S. M. A. faculty also are expected to accompany the corps.

SUSPECTED OF MURDER!

SUPPOSE YOU, a young American, were walking innocently along the Plockenstrasse in Heidelberg . . . and an old man clutched at you . . . and suddenly collapsed in the gutter . . . DEAD! You are suspected of murder!

THAT is exactly what happens to Tatson, American engineer, in Darwin Teilhet's new mystery story, "The Talking Sparrow Murders."

TATSON unravels the mystery of the Talking Sparrow murders . . . and The Washington Post gives you an opportunity to solve them just as Tatson did . . . and win a prize. Beginning next Sunday "The Talking Sparrow Murders" will appear in installment form in The Post.

in cash prizes will be paid 34 Post readers who submit the best solutions to the mystery of the Talking Sparrow. Here's how:

1 Begin the story next Sunday in The Washington Post Magazine Section.

2 Watch The Post for competition closing date.

3 Then submit your solution . . . who committed the murder, how and why?

Your Solution May Win First Prize of $100

Or One of 33 Additional Prizes

WHAT'S THE REAL TRUTH ABOUT GASOLINES?

STONE MT., GA.—largest block of solid granite in the world. Here 12 gasolines were tested on a gruelling grade. Results of all tests certified by notary public.

KENTUCKY THOROUGHBREDS form the load for the tests on Muldraugh Hill, near West Point, Ky. A borrowed Ford acts as tow car to test 9 gasolines.

Is it true, as some people believe, that there is no difference between leading brands of gasolines? For the first time, this question is definitely answered by tests of 33 gasolines on 12 celebrated American hills . . .

ON this page is definite, undeniable proof that there is a big difference in the power of various gasolines.

To prove this, Gulf made power tests on 12 famous mountain grades—from Massachusetts to Georgia. The NEW good Gulf gas was tested against every well-known brand of gasoline sold within the area visited. In all, 33 gasolines competed to see which could pull a car and load farthest up hill in high gear before the motor stalled.

READ WHAT HAPPENED . . .

The NEW GULF wins more power tests than 32 other gasolines combined!

EACH OF THE BRANDS of gasoline tested is indicated on the chart by a letter, A to Z6. Note that Gulf gas was uniformly best! Other high-ranking gasolines varied widely in different tests.

Just a Billion.

In that casual and off-hand manner which is so characteristic of his entire policy President Roosevelt suggests to Congress that he be given authority to spend the modest sum of $940,905,000 for relief purposes at discretion. "It was my thought in January," he observes, "and is my thought now that this sum should be appropriated to me under fairly broad powers because of the fact that no one could then, or can now, determine the exact needs under hard and fixed appropriation headings."

The phrase "fairly broad powers" is revealing. There are many who would call it a grant of exceedingly broad authority to turn over to executive discretion the handling of a fund equivalent to our entire national budget of prewar years. The President, however, is inclined to regard this request as almost a routine matter. Congress has so willingly surrendered its Constitutional role in past months as to dull the sense of proportion in this truly startling request.

With the history of the CWA, the HOLC, and other scandalously inefficient relief extravagances fresh in mind, it is essential that Congress should think more than twice before granting the request so lightly demanded from the White House. If need arises it is a relatively cheap and easy matter to call the legislators in special session. They can not afford to surrender control of the purse strings, for 300 years the chief defense of democracy against dictatorship, without giving the issues involved more thought than the President seems to think desirable.

Victim Of Her Efficiency.

Since 1854 there has been hardly a day or night when the beam or deep boom of a lightship has neither been seen nor heard 41 miles southeast of Sankaty Head, bleak tip of the sandy island of Nantucket. Throughout last night a Coast Guard cutter kept lonely vigil above the spot where the most modern lightship in the world was anchored until it was sunk yesterday morning, a victim of its own efficiency.

The sinking of the Nantucket lightship by the Olympic, which bore straight down upon her out of the deep bosom of a New England fog, is one of the worst catastrophes in the long and difficult history of our lighthouse service. It is a tragedy which only those who knew the ship and its importance can fully realize. But the news, as it spread yesterday, must have made sad the hearts of all navigators who have ever steered a true course down upon this tossing bark of friendliness set there to welcome them in the lonely waters of the Shoals.

The Nantucket lightship was one of the most important sea marks in the world. The craft into which the Olympic tore was equipped with every known mechanical aid to navigation. So accurate were her radio beacons that more than once she had been threatened with destruction by huge vessels following the course along which she beckoned them. Navigators were warned just two weeks ago to use caution in approaching the lightship, which already had been endangered by one steamer coming close enough to carry away her radio antennae.

Through 80 years the very presence of the lightship has made trans-ocean navigation easier and safer. The United States Government, which placed her there to aid the safe navigation of such ships as the Olympic, should investigate this tragedy thoroughly and place the blame where it belongs. This is the first time such an accident has occurred and it seems that, if faith in mechanical navigation has grown so great that caution has been abandoned, stern action should be taken to return caution to the navigating bridge.

Refreshing.

A fund of $100,000 to assist needy fishermen of the Maine coast in repairing their gear or buying new outfits has been refused by those hardy men. With Yankee pride they have informed the State administrator of the Emergency Relief Administration that if he wants to lend them the money they have no objections, but they want no charity.

This independent spirit has long characterized the men of the Maine coast. It may be old-fashioned stubbornness, this insistence upon paying their own way, but it is what they have always done in their struggle to wrest a living from the sea. State Administrator J. A. McDonough was reported so moved by the refusal that he told the men they could pay the money back in cash or in catch.

Just what the Government will do with $100,000 worth of haddock and hake is not quite apparent. If it can not find a market for the fish as such, perhaps it can turn them into fertilizer, which could then be distributed gratis to other groups of hardy men who have lately been far from averse to seeking Government subsidies.

Intimations Of Policy.

It is embarrassing for Justice Harlan F. Stone to have his name drawn into political discussion. As a member of the Supreme Court the justice properly holds aloof from politics. Through his secretary he has announced that he is not interested in a nomination for the Presidency in 1936. Yet the mention of his name in this connection is unquestionably significant.

On two different occasions members of the Supreme Court have become Presidential candidates. It is quite natural that they should have done so. Members of the Supreme bench are supposedly chosen from the country's most capable jurists. Often they have also shown themselves creative thinkers in the fields of political science and economics. Since the Presidency is both the highest honor and the greatest responsibility in our Government, it is not illogical that a party organization should seek the promotion of an outstanding Supreme Court justice to that office.

Specific mention of Justice Stone, however, does not appear to be the most significant aspect of the movement which began with the visit here of W. Kingsland Macy, New York Republican chairman. All talk of candidates in 1936 is as yet premature. The important thing is that leaders in the party which was so emphatically defeated last November are beginning to plan for the future along constructive lines. Their immediate task is the revival of a vigorous and forward-looking minority party and the formulation of a program that will offer a sound and high-principled alternative to present policies. The mere mention of Justice Stone's name in this connection is encouraging to those who realize the National importance of Republican efforts at reorganization.

In other words, the immediate concern of the Republican party should be a policy rather than a candidate. What has the party to substitute for the hodge-podge which the New Deal is revealing itself to be? Unless this question can be answered to the satisfaction of that great mass of people who are deeply anxious over our present course, but who see nothing preferable in the present position of the opposition, speculation as to candidates will be important chiefly for the intimation of social and political philosophy thereby afforded.

Kidnaping.

It is difficult to think of a crime more essentially vicious than kidnaping for profit. And the June Robles case transcends all except the Lindbergh murder as an illustration of human depravity. Indeed, the adjective seems inapplicable to the brutes who kept the little girl chained in a desert tomb for 19 days. Contemplation of the loathsome details of this case, however, leads nowhere as a solution of what is undoubtedly the most disgraceful form of racket in this country today.

Since 1930 there have been at least 13 major kidnaping cases. With few exceptions these have been the work of well-organized gangs. In these cases sentences ranging from death to a minimum of five years' imprisonment for several of the convicted have been imposed. Perhaps because the sentences have not always been as severe as the crime the good work of the various police agencies involved has failed to stop kidnaping. Police officials have said often that they have reason to believe many kidnapings by organized gangs are effected without the public or the police being informed. The Department of Justice has been reported as in receipt of information to the effect that many persons have been "marked" and even threatened by extortionists.

Combating kidnaping is both a Federal and a local task. In the Robles case, Department of Justice agents worked vainly. In the Gettler case local police, evidently doing efficient work upon another crime, stumbled upon the solution, unexpectedly, before ransom had been paid and before Federal agents had begun their work. Under the Lindbergh law the Federal agents have great power, and State laws everywhere impose heavy penalties for kidnaping for profit. The movement toward making it a capital offense is growing. If this would prove an effective deterrent only a small minority would oppose a universal death penalty for conviction of this crime.

Perhaps one way to stop kidnaping is to remove the profit prospect by making the payment of ransom the act of an accessory to the crime. That would be coldly reasonable, but if such a law existed, no jury would convict the father of June Robles for paying $15,000 (which he didn't) for the return of his child. Relentless pursuit of kidnapers, quick trials, and really drastic punishment seems to remain the only way to cope with an evil which our civilization can no longer afford to tolerate.

Antidote For Delinquency.

School is still in full swing and the weather is just turning the corner toward summer; but it is not too early for "kids" who play in the street or in cramped back yards to speculate joyously upon the possibility of a few hot-weather weeks at a summer camp. For their benefit the Washington Council of Social Agencies will conduct its annual camp exposition on Friday and Saturday of this week at the Y. W. C. A. There will be ample opportunity to investigate the attractions of Washington's seven camps and the work they are doing to afford youngsters of this vicinity with wholesome recreation.

Competition was the rule among agencies rendering this kind of service a few years ago. Now they are all cooperating in a community project, under the guidance of the Council of Social Agencies. With Sanford Bates, the Federal Commissioner of Prisons, as president of the council, the project acquires significance as an antidote for juvenile delinquency. It is the hope of the council that a large number of underprivileged children may be accommodated in these nonprofit camps instead of idling away their time in an environment conducive to crime.

Last summer the public did not take full advantage of these camps. A total of 8,750 "camp days" were unused. By suggesting to citizens who are in the vacation mood that "$1 per day will put a needy boy or girl in the camp of his choice" the council expects to have these facilities fully employed this year.

Excessive Building Costs.

Until the Administration brought forth its grandiose plan for the encouragement of home building and renovation, talk of reviving the construction industry had centered upon a reduction of building costs. The Administration has undoubtedly considered this angle of the problem, but practical plans for reduction of building material prices and wages paid in the building trades seem to be entirely absent from the program submitted to Congress.

The importance of these factors in the continued depression of the building industry is emphasized by two strikes right here in the Capital City. For two weeks union carpenters have been on strike for wages of $1.37½ per hour and a 30-hour week. Organized plasterers threaten to strike Friday unless they are granted $1.75 per hour and a 30-hour week. Wages in the building trades have long been excessive in comparison with labor costs in other industries. So long as unreasonable demands of this sort are made by labor it will be far from economical to stimulate employment in this industry by offering more abundant credit.

The cost of building materials is likewise out of line with other prices. On May 5 the Bureau of Labor's wholesale price index stood at 73.4 for all commodities (100 represents the 1926 average) compared with 87.4 for building materials. It is said to be the hope of the Administration that more extensive demands and pressure from local organizations sponsoring the home building campaign will bring about lower prices. But that hope seems stronger than the prospects justify.

Failure to work out any definite plan for reduction of building costs may jeopardize this entire pump-priming enterprise. With a reduction of material and labor costs, construction would doubtless go forward without elaborate Government credit and guarantees. Without such basic adjustments, it is doubtful whether any substantial revival can be achieved through artificial stimulation. Like a number of other recovery measures, the home renovation campaign appears to be a superficial plaster applied to a deep-seated disorder. Congress ought to consider well this aspect of the problem before launching so comprehensive a venture of the Federal Government into the real estate business.

Speaking Of Stabilization.

Premier Mussolini and Richard Washburn Child are reported to have discussed at some length the possibility of a currency stabilization agreement embracing Italy, Great Britain and the United States. The fact that the subject was broached is significant, even if the conversations were purely exploratory. Interest in stabilization agreements was dormant for some time after the collapse of the London monetary conference and the decision of the Administration to bring about a progressive depreciation of the dollar. With the dollar formally devalued, however, and the gold standard reestablished de facto in international dealings, speculation concerning the prospects for a currency stabilization agreement is again becoming active.

If Europeans were assured that the United States did not contemplate further experimentation, there would be a much better outlook for a speedy return to an international system of stable money. Dr. T. E. Gregory, a well-known British economist, recently discussed the difficulties created by the existing uncertainty regarding our future monetary course. He pointed out that if recovery halts, the President might further devalue the dollar, make use of the inflationary powers of the Agricultural Adjustment Act, or resort to bimetallism.

Since the dollar is, in Dr. Gregory's opinion, decidedly undervalued in relation to the pound, despite the rise in prices that has occurred, he concludes that an inflationary price advance in the United States would not be inconsistent with a return to gold elsewhere, or with permanent stabilization of the dollar at its present gold value. Further dollar devaluation, however, or resort to bimetallism, would not be compatible with a stabilization program.

Like so many Englishmen, Dr. Gregory would welcome a program of domestic inflation that would reduce the internal purchasing power of the dollar. He says, in fact, that it would "help to remove some of the difficulties entertained in Great Britain to going back to gold, so long as the dollar remains as undervalued as it is at present." At the same time, he admits that the British may have cause to repent their reluctance to compromise. By refusing to do so, they may, in his opinion, strengthen the demands of the elements in this country that would like to see the dollar further devalued.

"Toll to Special Interests."

To the Editor of The Post—Sir:

It has been alleged that the taxicab drivers want Congress to pass the compulsory liability insurance bill. This is not so. Hundreds of the little fellows will be forced out of business if the bill is passed. It is alleged that the law will enable the taxicab drivers to get better prices. Common sense tells us that the only way they could get better prices as a result of that law would be by reduced competition.

Those who are in the big combine will be able to carry their own group insurance, while the little fellow who is buying his own cab would be placed at the mercy of the insurance group who are backing this legislation, and their rates are absolutely prohibitive. These companies demand $360 per year per cab for insurance. This means that men who may be earning only $3 a day will have to hand over one-third of their earnings to the insurance companies or get out of business.

There is more than the welfare of a group of taxicab drivers involved in this question. We are suffering from a species of racketeering arising from the activities of groups who come before our legislative bodies and, under the plea that the public needs protection, secure the enactment of special legislation requiring a license for this thing or that thing, special forms of insurance, &c.

It is time to call a halt on this sort of thing. Neither Congress nor any other legislative body should pass any law imposing a burden upon the man trying to make a living for himself and family, unless at the same time it provides the means for the man to comply with the law without paying toll to special interests who have fostered the legislation for their own selfish ends while shedding crocodile tears over the welfare of the poor public.

If Congress enacts the compulsory liability insurance bill, it should accompany it with legislation, setting up an insurance fund under the supervision of the Public Utilities Commission into which the taxicab drivers can pay dues and get their insurance at cost.

The Value of Statistics.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir:

So much do we hear of "statistics" these days I am reminded that research in the past on this matter might be of some advantage. In Appleton's Popular Science Monthly, August, 1891, Col. Carroll D. Wright, at that time United States Commissioner of Labor, summed up the "value of statistics" in the following lucid language:

"On the whole, enormous as have been the errors, false as have been many of the statistical statements of official reports, inaccurate as have been many of the calculations, and fallacious and almost monstrous as have been many of the inferences, political economy has, nevertheless, profited greatly by what has been accomplished."

With this frank admission as to statistical values, we may inquire as to their relative value in the labor problem of today. The wonderful array of percentages and general averages that confront the seeker after knowledge in the voluminous statistical reports of today, issued by the Department of Labor, not only confuse and befog the ordinary man, but the extraordinary one (as well as the college professors who are the brain-trusters now in charge of the Government) so that the thought presents itself that the science of statistics consists largely in concealing knowledge.

Statistics should certainly be presented to the public in a clear and comprehensive manner, so that he who delves may read and profit thereby, and have real figures and not percentages such as overstock us now.

Half-Gods Must Go.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir:

Here in the Southland, recovery is wonderful. Its prosperous people are also full of wonder. They are wondering that the conduct of affairs incites a single discordant note. They wonder that, snatched from the very brink of the abyss, we've come so far away from it in so short a time. They cry out to the carpers, "Oh ye of little faith, of faltering courage, of weak knees and weaker memories."

The Southlanders have heard before of benefits forgot, of the disastrous effects of dwindling perspective upon past blessings, but they rack their memories and search the pages of history in vain for a parallel in flagrancy. They think Puck himself would be at a loss for words today; that that bunch he scathed and scorned were wise by contrast with these men, who a year ago were giving civilization such a brief span in which to complete its holocaust.

Asked for a campaign slogan for this congressional election, these Southlanders suggest that not in a timid, colorless handwriting on the wall, but in box-car letters, that he who runs and votes may read, you just say, "Half-Gods Must Go." There is too much at stake now for any opposing vacillating course. Then will all the country recrudesce as has the South.

False Sentimentality.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir:

Recently I saw my first of the new Mother's Day stamps, canceled. I am moved thereby to remark that the New Deal would put anything as old-fashioned as Whistler's Mother behind the bars.

Honestly, such National pandering to false sentimentality, and at the public expense—makes me sick. I hereby serve public notice that National Anti-Whistler's Mother's Day Stamp Week has set in permanently at my house. And any letter coming to my door with one on will be sent instantly to the penitentiary for mislabeled mail.

Atmospheric Phenomenon.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir:

The dust storm from the dry fields of the West came just as we had a tremendous crop of pollen on the bloom of trees, all across America. My theory as to the yellow tint in the air is that the sticky pollen grains floating in the air attracted the dust particles (possibly an electric attraction). Here at Ruxton the atmospheric conditions were such as to create that strange golden-yellow tint in the landscape. It was a combination of circumstances that may not occur again in a hundred years.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir:

I was very much impressed with your editorial, "A Great Personality," on the late Dr. William H. Welch. It was perfect. You drew an accurate word-picture of a great man and made clear his four distinct sides. He really did have four great personalities combined in one. I had never thought of it in just that light.

Balanced Boxing Board.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir:

The opinion is fast gaining ground that the District of Columbia has the best-balanced boxing commission in the country.

A fine lawyer, a real sportsman, and the chief of police. Add to that trio a secretary who knows the game thoroughly from actual contact and yet does not talk out of the corner of his mouth—and you've got something.

For that reason I am one of the many who do not believe that boxing here will be teamed up under the same promoter as are the so-called "rassling contests." If that is done, public suspicion will immediately be aroused. Two or three bad bouts added to a couple that might look queer, and your long fought for boxing law will go the way of the Benning race track. What Congress legislated in they can also legislate out.

Give that boxing board a chance and if they take hold of the whole picture and make it clean the District will soon have real bouts and also some home-grown boxers.

Keep it far, far away from wrestling. I can not believe that Clark Griffith will see his stadium used under a combined wrestling monopoly as mentioned in The Post this morning.

Traffic Accidents.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir:

I have considered the traffic conditions that have come under consideration and criticism, together with the discussion of what may be the trouble which has caused so many deaths and injuries.

When an accident occurs in the flight of an airplane an investigation immediately is instituted, which includes medical, flying and operating officers. When a fire in the District of Columbia occurs or a fire alarm is sounded an investigation of the cause and circumstances immediately results out of the system established in the Fire Department.

I make the suggestion that a similar system and investigation should be organized in the Traffic Department, so that neither the Traffic Department nor the public should be under any uncertainty as to the cause of the accidents and deaths.

ROBERT H. YOUNG.

So Hitler Says, Too.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir:

Some people boast they have the blood of half a dozen races in their veins, but, in my estimation, people should take pride in keeping their racial blood pure and undiluted and not marry outside their own race. Scientists claim the children of mixed races inherit the worst, as a rule, and not the best, characteristics of both races. A dog with half a dozen different strains is a mongrel and not a thoroughbred animal, and the same way with man on the highest scale.

Center—A farewell party for Miss Grace Rogers and Miss Kerlin, popular teachers, was given Tuesday night at the home of Miss Nellie Pace by the Young People's Missionary Circle.

The party was a surprise for the teachers, who thought they were only going visiting with friends.

After the arrrival of the honor guests, the guests began assembling in the front yard to await the arrival of the other guests. Each guest was given a lovely hand-made handkerchief and, on entering the room, threw them at the teachers, calling out, "Old maids sympathy."

Many interesting games were played and the hostess served candy for refreshments. The party was brought to a conclusion by all the guests kissing the stuffed dog and cat, which were substituted for the honor guests.

The Post Impressionist

50,000 A Year.

Postoffice, Wednesday.

MANHATTAN physicians and surgeons have been celebrating the fiftieth anniversary of Dr. Joseph O'Dwyer's invention of intubation. In 1884, Manhattan physicians and surgeons, in common with most others, were declaring intubation—and, therefore, Dr. O'Dwyer—impossible.

At the New York Foundling Hospital, this good doctor had had to watch a long line of children—one diphtheritic youngster after another—fight a hopeless battle against suffocation. He watched until he could bear no longer the relative inactivity which was, in those days and cases, considered the only role possible for the medical attendant. "After six years of the most careful study of the pathology of the affection and a faithful pursuit of trial and error in apparatus," he announced his idea of a tube which "could be inserted into the larynx and retained there," thus enabling the sufferer to breathe "in spite of the swollen membrane."

Well, the New York Academy of Medicine didn't seem inclined to accept this—collectively. Individually, many shining lights of the profession definitely derided it.

The idea wasn't new.

The ideal had been previously proved unattainable.

When he ably sketches the outlines of O'Dwyer's story in The Commonweal, Dr. James J. Walsh recalls how the critics recalled that the ancient Greeks had tried to prevent asphyxiation—which is suffocation—by "canalizing the larynx," as Hippocrates said, and then abandoned the effort. "The French, about a century ago, had made an attempt along the same line, but it had not proved successful. Some of our most prominent specialists in children's diseases" flatly averred that the larynx just couldn't "tolerate a foreign body like a tube for any length of time."

O'Dwyer went on with his work, but the storm appears to have gone on also. Evidently, he was laughed at as a failure, very nearly scolded as a charlatan, and pitied—hardest of all to bear—as a visionary who let his faith befool whatever ability he might possess.

So the now one-sided controversy ran that course which most such controversies run. Then O'Dwyer ended it when—assisted by the famous Sister of Charity Irene, the Superior of the Foundling Hospital—he felt ready to prove his case, by demonstration.

He made to these confident critics the one reply possible for a man who believed in himself. He made the one reply possible to bring others to a similar belief. He said, in effect:

"Gentlemen, will you kindly come down to the hospital and see me use the tube?"

The critics went; they saw—and O'Dwyer conquered.

So began a new day in the treatment, not only of diphtheria-suffocation, but of asphyxiation in general. It is a day that has not yet, modern medical men believe, reached its high-noon.

Asphyxiation, in the broad sense of that term, is "one of the major causes of death, taking its place," according to Dr. Walsh, "not far from cancer and heart-disease. It occurs in infants as a result of the birth-process, in adults in connection with carbon-monoxide poisoning and . . . in connection with illuminating-gas." In America, its victims total about 50,000 every year.

To combat this danger there now exists a Society for the Prevention of Asphyxial Death. That was the society which officially, and most properly, observed the fiftieth anniversary of O'Dwyer's first announcement about intubation.

Of course, since O'Dwyer's time, much more has been accomplished in the wide field of this special endeavor—more as to apparatus and more as to treatment. But Dr. Walsh is right in insisting that O'Dwyer's sensitive reaction to the sight of suffering, his long and unremitting experimentation, and his ultimate perseverance under the sharp lash of unbelief—that these things place him among the earliest evangelists of what is now a great movement.

He won by faith. He won by hard work. He won by patience and endurance.

That seems to point the moral of the O'Dwyer celebration. Certainly it contains the moral of most medical and surgical pioneering.

Distinguished contemporary colleagues condemned Harvey for believing that the blood "went rushing around the body"—half his previous patients left him. When Jenner suggested his theory of vaccination, enemies similarly suggested that "the putting of animal substances into the tissues of human beings would cause them to grow horns and tails, if not also develop other exclusively animal characteristics." Eminent physicians of Vienna decried Auenbrugger's application of percussion to the chest as sheer nonsense. And "sheer nonsense" was a favorite among the weapons of ridicule used by some mighty specialists against Laennec's stethoscope.

Dr. Walsh remembers that Buffon described genius as an infinite capacity for taking pains.

We believe that Buffon might have added:

"And for enduring them."

Along the Potomac

With Carlisle Bargeron

THERE ought to be some way of recording the gallant fight that big business is making these days against the inroads of little business. It is all the more commendable because until the NRA came along we never realized that big business was in such jeopardy. It is quite apparent now, however, that it was on its last legs, that had a Democratic Administration not intervened, the little rascals would presently have been overrunning our land, dancing like thousands of pygmies over the giant they had slain.

BARGERON.

One of the things it seems they, or rather our small clothing merchants, have been doing was to advertise fire sales and bankruptcy sales when they had had neither fire nor bankruptcy. I suppose all of us knew a certain class of our clothing dealers, with their particular clientele, were doing this, that they had been doing it ever since Hector was a pup, but so help me goodness, I never knew it was handicapping the bigger merchants or keeping us from a more abundant life.

It seems that they were, however, notwithstanding the great trend toward monopoly and big business the past 20 years. Some one over in the NRA with a genius that utterly baffles the ordinary mind, has found this out and henceforth under the unfair practice provision of the retailers' code no merchant may advertise a fire sale unless he has had a fire or a bankruptcy sale unless he is really bankrupt. We will all live happier from now on, but I am convinced that life won't be as funny.

• • • •

I suppose that in the future the merchant will be able to advertise a "big" sale though there may be a question as to whether the sale is big or not, in which event the big business interests dominating the code will be bound to complain.

Nothing has come up since the advent of the present Administration that has so revealed to me how utterly ignorant in economics and the hazards of business I have been. There is a certain section of our local commercial district in which the "fire sale" and "bankruptcy" merchants abound. Mostly, however, they are associated with the smaller towns.

To learn at this late date that they constitute unfair trade practices, that they are undermining our economic fabric, makes one wonder how in the name of goodness we have lived this long.

Unquestionably the NRA, as soon as it can get to it, will also make it unlawful for a merchant to stand in his door and drag the customer in and then by pinching the coat in the back insist that it "fits like the paper on the wall."

In all seriousness, these fellows are funny. I get a laugh out of their advertising and their salesmanship antics even to this day, but to just whom are they unfair?

• • • •

There used to be a store in my home town that was always having a fire or a bankrupt sale. The word fire or bankrupt never fooled anyone not even the illiterate people to whom it catered. If the new rule has any effect at all it will undoubtedly be to put this store out of business.

We ought to study the record of these complaining witnesses. In the case of my home town the aggrieved would not be his fellow merchant next door. This fellow never came running to the United States Government asking for protection against the unfair competition of his neighbor. So far as I know he never complained to anybody. What he did, instead, was every time his neighbor advertised with big banners and lurid paint that a "fire" sale or a "bankrupt" sale was on, he would paint himself a banner just as big, reading: "Entrance to the big sale."

It is a good thing poor old Anna Held is dead. The NRA would have undoubtedly prevented her from making five or six "farewell" tours of this country. That would have been looked upon as "unfair" and "chiseling."

Harpist to Offer Recital Tonight

Sylvia Meyer Gives First Diploma Program.

Sylvia Meyer, solo harpist of the National Symphony and Baltimore Symphony orchestras, has completed the requirements for the artist's diploma, the highest award conferred by the Peabody Conservatory of Music, Baltimore. This evening she will give the first of her four diploma recitals in North Hall of the Conservatory, accompanied by Sarah Stulman.

Her program will contain Ravel's "Introduction and Allegro," Debussy's "Danse Sacre" and "Danse Profane," five pieces by Carlos Salzedo, and compositions by Haydn, Rameau, Gluck, Widor, Pierne and Grandjany.

Miss Meyer, who resides in Washington, is a native of Wisconsin. She already holds her teacher's certificate in harp, and is a student of Mary Muller Fink.

Treasury Sells Bills At Record Low Rate

Investors now have such faith in Federal credit that they will lend the Treasury short-term funds at an interest rate 80 times lower than the average person pays on a loan, according to the Associated Press.

The Treasury yesterday announced sale of $50,000,000 of 91-day bills at the record low rate of six-hundredths of 1 per cent annual interest. A like amount of 182-day bills were issued at an interest rate of twelve-hundredths of 1 per cent.

United Jewish Appeal Forces Rally Tomorrow

A mass meeting in behalf of the United Jewish Appeal will be held tonight at the Jewish Community Center. Representatives of the local organizations interested in the campaign for $35,000 have been asked to participate in the rally.

Edmund I. Kaufmann and Isidore Hershfield, cochairman of the drive, hope to receive reports of large contributions at the rally. Dr. Jacob Sonderling, formerly one of the leading reformed rabbis of Germany, will speak on the condition of the Jews today under the Nazi regime.

Dancing Plays Planned.

"Four Dancing Plays," in which more than 100 children will participate, will be presented tomorrow at 7:30 p. m. at Roosevelt Auditorium by the rhythm classes of Miss Frances Brightwell, of the Barnard West and John Eaton Centers. The program will include "Castle of Dreams," a symphony number, a boys' military tap and a patriotic ensemble.

Frederick Wheat Survey Is Started

$35,000 in Final Benefit Hinges on Results.

Frederick, Md., May 15 (Spl.).—Sixteen farm supervisors and three engineers began an inspection today to determine whether contracts of the wheat curtailment plan of the Federal Government have been carried out. The final benefit payment of about $35,000 depends on the survey.

The supervisors appointed by the wheat allotment committee are Alvey M. Etzler, Mount Pleasant; Frank A. Roddy, Thurmont; M. D. Nicodemus, Unionville; George M. Wachter, Johnsville; Allen M. Pitzer, Lewistown; Claude U. Stottlemyer, Myersville; Jones Baker, Emmitsburg; John A. Engle, Mount Airy; Ronald E. Kling, Urbana; Walter E. Burall, New Market; Ernest C. Speaks, near this city; John W. Mentzer, Burkittsville; T. Frank Hightman, Knoxville; James V. Shaff, near this city, and William H. Renn, Adamstown.

Engineers appointed by Dr. Thomas B. Symons, director of the Extension Service University of Maryland, are Melvin H. Holley, this city; William Harwetle, near this city, and Nathan Baker, near Waynesboro. The supervisors and engineers met at the courthouse yesterday and were instructed by R. W. Carpenter, an agricultural engineer of the Extension Service University of Maryland, and Henry R. Shoemaker, county agent. It is expected that the inspection will be complete in about four weeks.

Ugly Gas Stations May Be Banned

Baltimore, May 15 (Spl.).—Ugly gasoline filling stations which spoil many important highways in the eastern part of the United States would be barred from the new Philadelphia road between Baltimore and Havre de Grace, under plans indorsed in part by the Independent Gasoline Dealers of Maryland.

The plans were advanced by Mrs. Edward H. McKeon, State chairman of the billboard and roadside committee of the Garden Clubs of Maryland and the Federated Garden Clubs of America.

In place of present type buildings, she would have the State erect convenient buildings of architectural beauty, set back from the highway and perhaps partly concealed from the road by trees, hedges and shrubbery. Service entrances, with perhaps a small sign to indicate their nature, would lead from the highway to the gas stations.

Wright Pupils to Recite At Neighborhood House

Dorothy Dixon Wright, director of music at Neighborhood House, will present a group of young pianists and a girl soprano in recital at 8 o'clock tonight in the music school at 470 N street southwest. The program will include compositions by Bach, Beethoven, Handel, Schumann and Grieg.

Ruth Kaldenbach, the soprano, who is still in her teens, has received her musical training entirely from Miss Wright at Neighborhood House. According to her teacher, she has a splendid voice, which she uses with fine tone and feeling. This evening she will sing a group of classical and modern songs, including a new composition by Miss Wright, "The Sky Grows Dark."

Davis Dancers' Recital To Interpret New Music

"Wives and Maidens," a choreographic fragment danced to music specially composed by Martha Stevens, will be presented by the Evelyn Davis Dancers in their recital Tuesday evening of next week in Roosevelt High School auditorium, under auspices of the Community Center Department.

"Morning Song," composed by John Alden Finckel for the sunrise ceremonial of the recent cherry blossom festival, will be repeated. Among the new numbers on the program will be "Design for a Woodcut," with music by Alice Finckel, and a "Gavotte" and "Minuet" by Thomas Simmons, of New York.

THOSE NEW STOCK MARKET RULES.

It begins to look as if the safest place in the world for a man to be from now on is in the stock market. The Government is giving Americans more protection against brokers than it is giving them against kidnapers.

• • • •

The new regulations are so stringent that it is a question whether the Senators thought they were curbing market manipulators or trying to catch Dillinger.

• • • •

Stock market lambs soon will be operating under antishearing rules, with Uncle Sam as their shepherd and with all bulls and bears muzzled and in leash.

• • • •

The Senate has passed the Stock Exchange Control Act classing the small investors as noncombatants and depriving them of their ancient right to be mauled in action.

• • • •

A lamb desiring to gambol on the greens of Wall street now gets a safe conduct badge, a bullet-proof vest, certified grass and a retinue of Federal stretcher bearers and Administration nurses in case of injury.

• • • •

To all intents and purposes the new law holds the bulls and bears to be house pests, subject to the usual booting if they bite strangers.

• • • •

No stock issue can be floated without full and complete information, supplemented by annual reports of any change, and the omission of a material fact is held to constitute a misleading statement, for which the maximum penalty is a $25,000 fine and five years in the brig.

• • • •

Wash sales, manipulation by insiders, pools and special favors to favored clients are forbidden, and a man who for a consideration circulates an opinion that a stock will go up or down as a result of operations by any person can be chased through more countries than Insull.

• • • •

It looks as if it would be more difficult to follow stock market operations under the new rules than an American football game.

• • • •

All the old mass plays are doomed, hurdling, gouging and butting are prohibited, and both teams must give their signals to the spectators.

• • • •

The broker is in a tough spot. The safest thing for him to do is carry his own referee's whistle and punt whenever he is in doubt.

RED LIGHT.

To market, to market,
Some cheap stocks to buy—
Home again, home again—
Margin too high!

Oh, for the good old days when the brokers didn't have to quote facts, and when the people didn't want 'em, anyhow!

The framers of these stock market control bills fail to consider the buyer who just naturally prefers a bedtime story to an accurate statement.

What Elmer Twitchell wants to know is how even Congress can make the average speculator read a financial statement.

The sun, it appears, never sets on a victorious British golf team.

Those dust clouds which hung over the East last week may have been raised by the posses trying to determine which way Dillinger didn't go.

Boy Scouts Honor Mothers at Court

Awards, Badges Given Out at Martinsburg.

Martinsburg W. Va., May 15 (Spl.). Boy Scouts at the closing of their monthly court of honor, last night presented 50 mothers each with a carnation and a Scout pin.

Awards and merit badges were distributed to a number of the 100 Scouts present by Chairman J. Nevin Kilmer, chairman of court of honor for Berkeley County. No more courts will be held until September.

President William N Dunn, Shenandoah Council Boy Scouts, made the principal talk in the Mother's Day celebration. Scout Executive Frank Horton, Winchester, Va., congratulated and thanked the Scouts for their assistance at Apple Blossom Festival there. Troops 2, Scoutmaster Lewis Knicely, and 5, Scoutmaster David Joseph, were given renewal charters.

75 Men Get Jobs At Martinsburg

Martinsburg, W. Va., May 15 (Spl.).—About 75 additional men were put to work by the Berkeley County Relief Administration yesterday, 60 on State road projects and 15 in the sanitary squad.

The road workers are divided into crews working in Hedgesville district, Rock Cliff drive, and on Route 11, starting at Marlowe. Maintenance work on Route 11 between the Maryland-Virginia lines will be done.

Several other projects approved by State relief headquarters are pending. About 70 men started work May 7 at Shepherd airport, and at the city disposal plant. Officials say 200 more will go to work this week.

Pilgrims See Maryland's Old Churches Saturday

Leonardtown, Md., May 15 (Spl.). The Rev. Clyde Brown, diocesan missioner of Washington, will conduct a pilgrimage to the old Episcopal churches of Charles and St. Mary Counties Saturday.

Churches in St. Marys County to be visited are Christ Church, Chaptico; Old St. Andrew's, near Leonardtown; Poplar Hill, Valley Lee; Trinity Church at St. Marys City.

Poor Education Trains Everybody to Keep His Hands Soft

By Robert Quillen

The world, as you know, is changing. Everywhere some kind of New Deal is experimenting and blundering and discarding old means and methods in honest effort to end abuses and amend ideals to fit realities.

The people are in a mood to welcome or, at least, indifferently accept a new order.

Why, then, is no effort made to change and modernize our system of education?

There was a time when education was for gentlemen. The rich man's son learned to read and write and cipher and translated ancient wisdom from the Greek and Latin. In short, he acquired the "culture" becoming a gentleman. The poor were spoiled by learning.

It was this state of affairs, long perpetuated by poverty and the scarcity of books, that taught the world to believe gentlemen were made by education.

And when, with the coming of democracy, everybody aspired to be a gentleman, or hoped to make gentlemen of his sons, it became the fashion for everybody for get an education.

The theory that education is an ornament and a means of enjoying life more fully still persists in the older universities. Some of them provide polish for the class-conscious sons of the rich and welcome nobody else.

Perhaps the theory is sound, if limited to one group, but we can't all be "gentlemen" of that kind.

The many must work, and there aren't enough white-collar jobs to go round. The "education" needed by the many is practical training for the business of living.

High schools have become feeders for colleges. The student is required to obtain so many units or credits, because colleges won't admit him without these things.

But the majority aren't going to college. They haven't the money or ambition or capacity. And the majority of those who do attend college are ignorant when they finish as they were when they began.

The need of our times is a free school system adjusted to the capacities and needs of all social and intellectual groups.

To prepare a boy for life means preparing him for the kind of life he will have to lead. Four years of forgotten Latin won't make him a better or happier truck driver.

Since nature doesn't equip all horses to pull the same load, the load must be adjusted to the horse.

Daily Talk About Books and Authors.

Anglo-Saxons and Italians.

The late Pierre de Coulvein, which was the assumed name of a woman who wrote excellent French novels, and who, by her own request, is buried somewhere in Switzerland with no name or inscription on her tomb, said that there were masculine countries and feminine countries. England, Germany, Scandinavia are masculine; France, Spain, Italy are feminine. There is, of course, an obvious truth in this gender-classification; and it helps one to understand the spirit of a country and the genius of its language, literature and art.

Many years before the French woman said this, the extremely virile English poet, Robert Browning, always regarded Italy with something of the love a strong man may feel for a beautiful woman.

"Oh, woman-country! Wooed, not wed,
Loved all the more by earth's male-lands,
Laid to their hearts instead!"

When Queen Mary of England lay adying in the year 1558, she felt so intensly the loss of the French town Calais, that had been taken by the English and retaken by the French, that she said that after her death if her body should be opened, they would find Calais written on her heart. In a poem by Browning, in which he expresses his passionate love for Italy, he concludes as follows:

"Italy, my Italy!
Queen Mary's saying serves for me—
(When Fortune's malice lost her Calais)
Open my heart and you will see
Graved inside of it 'Italy.'
Such lovers old are I and she:
So it always was, so shall ever be!"

I have just received an interesting letter from the distinguished editor of an Italian newspaper published in New York, called Il Progresso Italo-Americano, in which he says:

"I need not tell you of the deep affection I have always felt for Robert Browning, who exemplifies to us Latins, more than any other English poet, the spiritual and intellectual nobility of his race. Sometimes I wonder whether there is not a closer sentimental affinity between Italians and Anglo-Saxons than between any two other races on earth. It is indeed remarkable that so many English and American poets and writers have found in Italy or in Italian history and lore, inspiration for some of their more significant works."

It is certainly true of an immense number of American and English writers that Italy has been their chief inspiration. Browning visited Russia before he ever saw Italy; but it produced little effect on him. Whereas, when, a few years later, he entered Italy, he fell in love with her at first sight, and she became the most fruitful and stimulating influence in his career.

To those Americans who are prevented from going to Italy by the expense, I would recommend a little book, published this year, called "Italy on Fifty Dollars," by Sidney A. Clark.

No End of Books

By Theodore Hall

HAWAII has scarcely been tapped as a field for fiction. Jack London, stopping in during his cruises to the South Seas, picked up a few local anecdotes and expanded them, in a book called "On the Makaloa Mat," into overcolored and rather thin stories. Miss Armine von Tempski, island-born, has written several novels which seem best suited to the movies—"Hula," starring Clara Bow, being an example. Certainly one of the most engaging novels to come out of Hawaii was Earl Derr Biggers' "House Without a Key," wherein Charlie Chan made his initial bow.

THEO. HALL.

And yet such books as these have barely scratched the ground. For Hawaii is far more than the stock South Sea Island, far more than a source for easy romances. The astonishingly mixed tradition of Polynesia plus Calvinism plus Big Business would seem a rich mine for fiction material. The equally mixed blood in the islands would seem another. Some day some one is going to come along and treat the opportunity as it deserves. But in the meantime, even with the unabashed claim for the book in hand that it is the first novel to deal adequately with Hawaii, we must content ourselves with waiting.

• • • •

In "The Lord's Anointed" (Doubleday-Doran, $2.50), Ruth Eleanor McKee tells the story of those people who made Hawaii into a South Sea annex of New England—the early missionaries. It is a commonplace that this class has had a greater total effect in the islands than in any other region. Likewise, it is said that Hawaii is the only place on earth where the missionaries were the ones to grow rich and acquire power. Here, in this rather clumsily written book relieved by flashes of high dramatic skill, Miss McKee shows us what the islands and the missionaries really did to each other.

On October 23, 1819, the first mission to the Sandwich Islands set sail from Boston—25 men, women and children, on board the brig Thaddeus. The bravery of such a venture to the other side of the world, to a strange and exotic spot from which they might never return, was matched only by the character of these people. Pious, extremely earnest, conscientiously dogmatic, they held all the rigor of soul necessary to their task.

Led by the Rev. Hiram Bingham (direct ancestor of former Senator Bingham, of Connecticut), these Calvinists faced a childlike, essentially easy-going and lovable people. The Hawaiians had just effaced the old Polynesian cults of their own accord, but they were not yet ready to give up their dancing and feasts and gambling and natural exuberance for the bread and water of the new faith. But little by little—by teaching the native hymns, making proper and much admired dresses for the king's wives, helping the sick—the missionaries made friends of these people and spread the gospel.

• • • •

But one member of the band could not accept the dryness and denial of the New England creed. Constancy Williams, fictitious heroine of the novel, was the youngest of the wives on the Thaddeus. She had married her stern-minded husband ten days before sailing, on an acquaintance of three months—remember this was in 1819. Duty and Christian devotion seemed sufficient motives to her at the time; she wanted very much to love her husband. But it took her 19 years to realize something was lacking in his sternness. Her rebellion, less and less hidden, forms the theme of the book.

Constancy lived to be a very old woman, watching her children, her grandchildren, and her great-grandchildren growing up about her, gaining wealth in land and sugar, losing their Calvinism. Through it all, Constancy affirmed something her contemporaries forgot. "I'm alive!" she cried just before she died. She was the only one of the missionaries who could have said that as joyfully.

Miss McKee, a young librarian in the University of Hawaii, has made from early journals and letters in her keeping a story which begins the task of describing Hawaii. But anyone to come must take into account every inch of the life and times she reports to us now.

Truck Ordered Off Bridge, Part Of Rum Trap

Richmond, May 15 (AP).—Prompt removal of a truck used in a trap for rum runners on New River Bridge at Narrows, Va., was requested today by State Highway Commissioner Henry G. Shirley.

The request was made to Deputy Sheriff E. P. Charlton, at Narrows, after a complaint by H. R. Martin, who said the truck on the bridge at night, without lights, constituted a real danger to the traveling public.

Martin said on one occasion his automobile struck a board which projected from the truck.

In his letter to Charlton, Commissioner Shirley said the officer had a right to arrest persons on the highways, but he had no right to obstruct a bridge.

Virginia Fisheries Post Net Sought by Norris

Richmond, May 15 (AP).—State Senator W. O. Norris, of Lancaster, today put a nend to rumors that he would be a candidate for the office of commissioner of fisheries.

"That is certainly one office that I do not want," he said today.

"Can you prove that Old Gold is easier on the Throat?"

asks George Raft [An Old Gold smoker since 1932, he seeks to convince a doubting friend]

Dear Mr. Raft:—

On March 9, 1934, we invited a congress of the greatest taste experts in America to smoke and compare the four leading cigarettes, with the names concealed, and select the cigarette they considered "smoothest"; and therefore easier on the throat and nerves.

The invitation was accepted. Sixty-nine wine tasters, coffee tasters, tea tasters and cocoa experts took part.

In repeated tests by these taste authorities, Old Gold was chosen as the smoothest brand. If that evidence isn't enough to convince your friend . . . ask him to try Old Golds for a few days and let his own taste decide.

Sincerely,
P. LORILLARD COMPANY, INC.
ESTABLISHED 1760

P. S.—Old Gold's smoothness isn't an accident, Mr. Raft: No better tobacco grows than is used in Old Gold. And it's pure. That's why Old Golds are easy on the THROAT and NERVES.

By Nelson B. Bell.

Sentimental reveries are awakened in the mind of the old-timer in the theater by the announcement that work is soon to begin on the remodeling of the People's Theater, on the Bowery at Delancey street, in New York, in preparation for the revival of "The Black Crook" early next month.

I do not mean to say that "The Black Crook" was an outstanding example of sentiment in the theater, but the edifice in which it is to be revived, yes.

What is now called the People's Theater was built in 1883 by Henry C. Miner and opened with "The Lights o' London" as its first attraction. Many famous stars, among them Lily Langtry, Thomas W. Keene, Kate Claxton, E. H. Sothern and Robert Mantell, played there during the years it was operated as a legitimate playhouse. In its later years it was devoted to burlesque.

As for "The Black Crook," that was first presented in Niblo's Gardens, approximately where Battery Park and the Aquarium in New York now are, in 1866. It is being revived in this year of our Lord by an organization known as the Bowery Associates, headed by Harry Wagstaff Gribble, Tony Sarg, Cleon Throckmorton and Donald Gilpatric.

We Tear 'Em Down.

It is the rehabilitation and revival business that should awaken the sentimental reverie in the mind of the Washington theater lover. Things are not done that way in this man's town. Instead of preserving the old theatrical landmarks, they are torn down as rapidly as conveniently can be arranged.

The only famous old playhouse still standing that comes readily to mind is Ford's Theater on Tenth street, in which Abraham Lincoln was assassinated by John Wilkes Booth—and there is no aspect of a theater remaining either inside or out of this severe brick structure.

Among the first of the old-time theaters to be razed in the present frenzy of destruction and rebuilding that is the Government's colossal Mall project, was Poli's which previously had been known as Chase's and, before that, Albaugh's Opera House.

Then went the Majestic, more widely known as the old Bijou, down at Ninth street and Market place; then the Mutual, formerly the Cosmos, diagonally across the Avenue, a little west of Ninth.

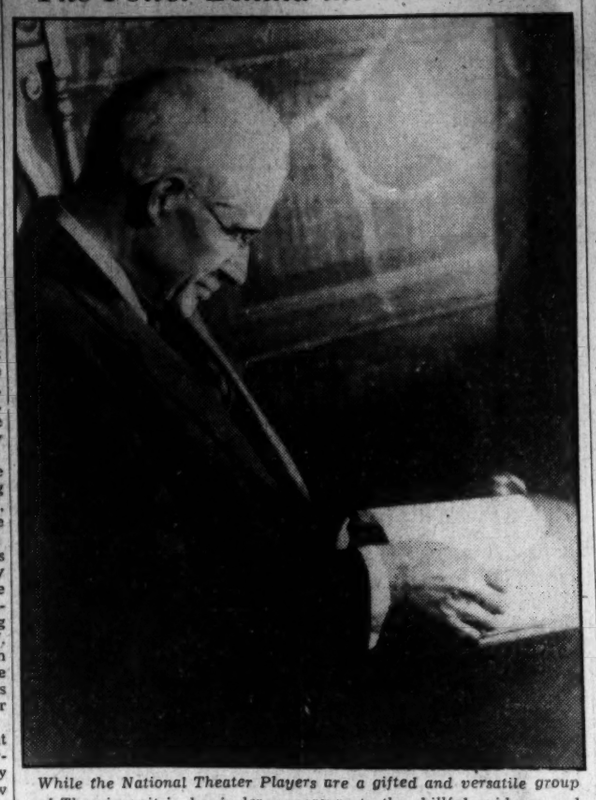
Now the President.

Now it is the President's turn. Before it was the President, at Eleventh street and the Avenue—the corner for many years famous as Harvey's Restaurant, where steamed oysters were invented and many other succulent sea foods lent as a superlatively appetizing tang, much as they are now down at Mine Host Tom O'Donnell's, former theater man, gone boniface for the particular edification of the newspaper, show and sporting fraternities—this celebrated old amusement place was known as Kernan's Lyceum and long before that occupied a distinctive niche in Washington's social life as Carusi's Salon.

No attempt has been made to preserve any of these old landmarks, although at one time or another many of the theater's great have trod the boards of some one, or all, of them.

Some one should shed a tear.

The Power Behind the Proscenium



While the National Theater Players are a gifted and versatile group of Thespians, it is due in large measure to the skillful guidance and coordination of their talents that their success is so widely acclaimed. This, in turn, is largely dependent upon the experienced direction of John McKee, who this season has succeeded Clifford Brooke as the players' kindly mentor. Mr. McKee was for many years stage director for the late Henry W. Savage and is a master of his craft.

In line with the policy adhered to by a majority of summer stock companies, Washington's newly organized Roadside Theater announces that it will offer season subscriptions at reduced rates. For the first four plays, scheduled for five-day runs June 19-23, July 3-7, July 17-21 and July 31-August 4 subscriptions at $2.75, including tax, are available. Single seats will be 83 cents, including tax.

Subscription seat holders, of course, will be insured the same seat locations for all of the plays, as well as preference for renewal for subsequent productions. Those desiring to subscribe for the series should communicate with Richard Creyke, business manager, 3525 R street.

Farewell Performance.

One of the most notable "farewell performances" of modern show business will be celebrated in the National Capital tomorrow afternoon, when an "actress" of world renown will pass into permanent retirement.

This famous performer is "Babe," the 96-year-old queen of the elephant herd of the combined Ringling Brothers and Barnum & Bailey Circus, who after tomorrow's matinee under the big top out at the Camp Meigs show grounds will become a resident of the Washington Zoo.

By far the most famous and most tractable pachyderm left to show business since the passing of "Mom," the slightly younger "Babe" will be presented to Dr. Mann, curator of the National Zoological Park by the Ringling executives. It is the hope of those in charge of the ceremonies that "Babe" will be accepted in the name of the children of Washington—"Babe" is particularly fond of children and guards them with the jealous tenderness of a nursemaid—by little Miss "Sistie" Dall, granddaughter of the President and Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt.

It is said that Headkeeper Blackburn already has made adequate provision for housing "Babe" in her new quarters.

Even at that, it is a safe assumption that she is going to miss the excitement of the circus lot, the blare of the band, the flutter of flags and the job of "spotting" the heavy wagons that has been hers for the past 50 years.

Whether she becomes immediately accustomed to it or not, "Babe" has earned retirement and all the peanuts the kids can lug to her.

Having ourselves reverted a quarter-century in the Sabbath prints, it is interesting to note that last week marked the twenty-fifth anniversary of the inception of the motion picture industry in Los Angeles. It was on May 8, 1909, that William Selig, one of the Selig Polyscope Co., started a motion picture, "The Power of the Sultan," in a "studio" in the back of a Chinese laundry at Eighth and Hill streets. The director was Francis Boggs and the leading man was Hobart Bosworth.

Working on the "Whom the Gods Destroy" set at Columbia last week, Hobart Bosworth, "one of the noblest Romans of them all," recalled the date and revealed that Stella Adams, his leading woman in the early picture, also was working with him currently at Columbia. Most screen careers have not been as long-lived as that.

First C. W. A. Drama!

Washington newspapermen and invited guests, including important officials of the Government, will have their first opportunity to see the results of the CWA dramatic arts program, organized several months ago in New York City, when one of the companies of otherwise unemployed actors from Broadway present "The Patsy," before the membership of the National Press Club in the club's auditorium on Thursday evening of this week, May 17, at 8:30 o'clock.

The project organized by the Drama Division of the CWA is similar to the Public Works of Arts project, which has been brought to the attention of Washington by the exhibit in the Corcoran Gallery of Art.

It is another experiment in combining unemployment relief with the promotion of cultural art for the benefit of the entire country. In New York, under the direction of George Junkin, head of the New York State Drama Division, it has resulted in the employment of several hundred actors and directors who have rehearsed and presented such plays as "The First Year," "The Farm," "The Family Upstairs," "The Taming of the Shrew," "Seven Keys to Baldpate," "Tommy," "The Late Christopher Wren," "The Servant in the House" and "Little Women," in addition to "The Patsy," the first play produced.

Original Pioneer Cast.

The company to be seen at the Press Club performance Thursday night will be the pioneer cast of the entire project.

Included in this group are Harriett MacGibbon, Ruth Lee, Edna Archer Crawford, Joseph McCallion, Robert Bunce Williams, Anthony Baker and Robert Williams. The play is directed by Ralph Stuart and is under the general management of Chandos Sweet.

—they age good grapes to make rare wines

—and they do something like that to mellow good tobaccos

WHERE THE RARE WINES come from they know that the two most important things in wine-making are the selection of the grapes and the long years of ageing in the wine cellars.

IT'S VERY MUCH THE SAME in the making of a cigarette. You have to get the right tobaccos, then put them away to age and mellow in wooden casks.

You can't make a good cigarette like Chesterfield in a day. It takes over two years to age the tobaccos for your Chesterfields—but it adds something to the taste and makes them milder.

Everything that modern Science really knows about is used to make Chesterfield the cigarette that's milder, the cigarette that tastes better.

Court Season Is Opened by Royal Couple

Thirteen Americans Are Presented Last Night at Buckingham.

King and Queen Receive at Brilliant Palace Social Fete.

By Evelyn Peyton Gordon.

Last night was a night of social triumph for 13 American women who made their bows to King George and Queen Mary of England at the first court of the London season held in Buckingham Palace.

For weeks several hundred women, including the American group, have been planning their presentation gowns according to the court specifications, and in the past week have been meeting at the embassies of their respective countries for instructions from their ambassadresses in the court manner of walking and curtseying, and in court etiquette.

Mrs. Breckinridge Long, wife of the United States Ambassador to Italy, headed the list of the American women presented last evening by Mrs. Robert W. Bingham, wife of the United States Ambassador to the Court of St. James.

Miss Long Presented.

Miss Christine Long, daughter of the Ambassador and Mrs. Long, also was among those who took part in what is probably the greatest pageant which royalty stages in this day of republican governments. Others were Miss Lesley Bogert, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Beverley Bogert of New York, who has been studying abroad for several years, and will return to this country later in the spring to be presented to society by her parents at their summer home, Anglesea, at Newport; Miss Jo Claiborne Bowling, daughter of Mrs. Jo McElwaine Bowling, and Mr. Edgar Bowling of Petersburg, Va., and New York; Miss Phyllis Brewster, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Robert S. Brewster, of New York and Mount Kisco; Miss Barbara Briggs, daughter of Mrs. Whitney Briggs, of Stourton Manor, England, where she resides with her mother and brother, Mr. A. Lindsay Briggs, jr., formerly of New York; Miss Katherine Carr, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George Russell Carr of Chicago, Mrs. John Harris Clay of Paris, Ky., Mrs. Leonard Davidson of New York, the former Miss Margaret McDonald Norton of Louisville, Ky., Mrs. Randal Morgan of Philadelphia, Miss Alice V. Morris, daughter of the United States Ambassador to Belgium and Mrs. Dave H. Morris; Miss Gracia Neville of Houston, Tex., and Miss Faith Whitney, daughter of Mrs. Caspar Whitney of New York, whose marriage to Mr. Morgan Wing, jr., will take place on June 21.

London crowds gathered to see the procession of handsome motors bearing their beautifully gowned passengers to Buckingham Palace. Unlike other years, most of the show took place indoors, so the crowds were a bit disappointed.

Queen Mary probably is responsible for the new regulation against parking in the Mall.

King Wears Uniform.

Many of those presented set out long before to be in time for the opening of the palace doors at 8:30 o'clock. At 9:30 the King and Queen had taken their places on the golden thrones in the presentation room, and all the nobility of England was assembled for the brilliant event.

King George wore a military uniform of great magnificence, and Queen Mary, most gracious of queens, wore diamonds in her hair and many jeweled decorations on her handsome brocaded gown.

As each one entered she handed her "command" or presentation card, which summoned her to court, to one of the lord chamberlain's officials. The card was passed from hand to hand down the long line of officials as the presentee moved slowly forward. As each reached the throne, the lord chamberlain received the card and announced the name. While the Ambassadors and their wives were making presentations, their majesties remained standing, and then sat for the other guests of the evening to make their bows.

Miss Lyon Presented.

One of the most charming of the American girls presented last evening was Miss Helen Gill Lyon, daughter of the Assistant Commercial Counselor of the United States Embassy in London and Mrs. Charles Edward Lyon, whose name did not appear on the lists cabled to this country. Mrs. Lyon, who with Mr. Lyon and their family, has lived abroad since their marriage, is the former Miss Helen Gill, daughter of Mr. Herbert Gill and a sister of Miss Mona Gill and Mr. Theodore Gill, of Washington. Miss Lyon is a cousin of the popular Miss Bessie Gill, daughter of the Theodore Gills, who made her debut last winter.

This evening the King and Queen will hold the second court of the season, when among those to be presented will be Miss Helen Lee Doherty, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Henry L. Doherty, of New York and Washington. Miss Doherty has been spending the past few months in Denmark acting as secretary to Mrs. Ruth Bryan Owen, United States Minister to that country, and during her stay in London has been chaperoned by Mrs. Lawrence Townsend, of Washington.

Among those of the attractive young Washingtonians who have been presented at court in the past few years are Mrs. Charles Parker Stone, the former Frances McKee; Miss Peggy Tyner, Mrs. Evelyn Walker, Miss Elizabeth Houghton, daughter of the former United States Ambassador to London and Mrs. Alanson B. Houghton; Mrs. Alan G. Rinehart, the former Gracia Houghton, a niece of Mr. and Mrs. Alanson Houghton, and Mrs. Alexander Cochran Forbes, the former "Sunny" Robbins, daughter of the United States Minister to Canada and Mrs. Warren Delano Robbins.

Presented at First Court of the Season

Underwood & Underwood.

MISS JO CLAIBORNE BOWLING,

daughter of Mrs. McIlwaine Bowling, of Petersburg, Va., who was among the American debutantes presented to the King and Queen of England at the first court of the season, held last evening at Buckingham Palace. Mrs. Robert Worth Bingham, wife of the United States Ambassador to the Court of St. James, made the presentations.

Notes of Official and Resident Society

The President and Mrs. Roosevelt will receive the members of the special mission from Belgium today at the White House and will later entertain the members, Mr. Emile Francqui, Mr. Camille Gutt, Mr. Etienne Allard and Count Phillippe d'Arschot, at luncheon. The mission arrived in New York yesterday aboard the Olympic, and comes to this country to announce to the Government the accession to the throne of Leopold III, King of the Belgians. Mr. Francqui is accompanied by Mme. Francqui.

The Spanish Ambassador and Senora de Cardenas were guests of honor at an informal luncheon given today at the Mayflower by the Minister of Bolivia and Senora de Finot.

The Ambassador of the Union of Soviet Socialist Republics and Mme. Troyanovsky have issued cards for an at home this afternoon from 5 until 7 o'clock to meet Prof. Otto Schmidt, chief of the Cheluskin Arctic Expedition.

The Minister of Honduras, Senor Dr. Don Miguel Paz Baranoa, accompanied by Dr. Gonzalez Carias, son of the President of Honduras, will leave the Capital today for New York to sail the following day on the Paris for a visit of several months abroad.

During the Minister's absence, the First Secretary, Senor Dr. Don Julian R. Caceres, will be Charge d'Affaires.

The Undersecretary of State and Mrs. William Phillips entertained at dinner last evening in their home on Massachusetts avenue, when the guests of honor were the Speaker of the House and Mrs. Henry T. Rainey and the Minister of Switzerland and Mme. Peter.

Williams Entertain Governor of Hawaii.

Gov. Joseph B. Poindexter of Hawaii was the guest of honor at a dinner given Monday evening at the Olney Inn by Capt. and Mrs. W. C. Williams. The other guests included Mr. and Mrs. Robert Milford, Miss Ione Fatherstone, Mrs. Oscar R. Rand and Maj. Leroy Reeves.

Maj. Gen. Edward Croft, chief of Infantry, has left Washington for Fort Benning, Ga., to inspect the Infantry School. From there he will go to Fort Sill, Okla., to visit the Field Artillery School before returning to Washington.

Brig. Gen. J. H. Rice, U. S. A., and Mrs. Rice, of Pelham Manor, N. Y., are at the Carlton for several days.

The former Attorney General and Mrs. A. Mitchell Palmer entertained at luncheon for Mr. Clarence Darrow at the Willard yesterday.

Col. and Mrs. Earl I. Brown, who have been making their home in Washington, will leave early in June for Norfolk, where Col. Brown will relieve Col. Thomas H. Jackson as district engineer. The Browns have taken the house at 1519 Bolling avenue.

Col. Franklin F. Wing, U. S. A., retired, and his daughter, Miss Virginia Wing, of Colorado Springs, Colo., are at the Martinique for several days before going to Maine for the summer.

Comdr. Oscar W. Leidel Arrives Here for Duty.

Commander Oscar W. Leidel, U. S. N., has arrived in Washington from the West Coast for duty and is at the Martinique.

Mrs. John Allan Dougherty will give a dinner at the Shoreham this evening in honor of Mrs. Randolph Minor, formerly of Florence, Italy, who has arrived in the Capital to make her home.

Mrs. John Hay Whitney, of Upperville, Va., is at the Willard, accompanied by Mrs. M. Tabb, of Middleburg.

Mrs. Frank J. Coleman, who arrived recently in Washington from Hawaii to be with her mother, Mrs. Georgia Knox Berry, will leave today for Williamsburg, Va., to be the guest of her father-in-law and mother-in-law, Col. and Mrs. Sherrard Coleman, for about a week.

Mr. and Mrs. John L. Porter, of Pittsburgh, are guests of the latter's mother, Mrs. J. J. Fisher, at the Mayflower.

Mrs. Charles G. Matthews will have a small party of guests at luncheon at the Shoreham today. Later the party will visit the exhibits of the American Federation of Arts.

New Yorkers Visit Capital En Route.

Mrs. G. E. Spafford and Mrs. D. M. White, of New York, spent last night in Washington at the Mayflower and are returning home today. They have been to White Sulphur Springs, W. Va., and were accompanied by Mrs. Dale Parker, of Long Island.

Mrs. Boyd Carpenter, Miss Esther Van Dyne and Miss Betty Gray gave a program yesterday afternoon at the May party in the chancellor's residence on the American University campus, at which Mrs. Joseph M. Gray was hostess. The American University male quartet, composed of Mr. Joseph Thomas, Mr. Richard Tuve, Mr. Emory Bucke and Mr. Robert Parker, sang. The assistant hostesses were Mrs. Chesteen Smith, Miss Hannah Frick, Mrs. James Shera Montgomery, Mrs. Lanier McLachlen, Mrs. Wesley M. Gewehr, Mrs. Delos M. Kinsman, Mrs. Raymond J. Spaeth, Mrs. W. S. Dewhirst and Mrs. Lowell F. Huelster.

Mrs. Hoggatt Clopton and her daughter, Mrs. Eloise Marshall Webb, attended a reception given by the Society of Americans of Royal Descent and the Descendants of Knights of the Most Noble Order of the Garter, at the Barclay, in Philadelphia, yesterday.

MISS MARIANNA DUNN,

daughter of the Chief of the Division of Protocol of the Department of State and Mrs. James Clement Dunn, who has recently returned from Europe. Mrs. Dunn and her daughter will entertain at tea tomorrow afternoon at their home on Observatory Circle.

Three Wedding Items Interest Army Circles

Miss Wilson, Lieut. Kengla Will Marry June 2 at Fort Meade.

Society throughout the Army learns with much interest of the three most recent service engagements.

Lieut. Col. and Mrs. William Robert Nichols have announced the engagement of their daughter, Miss Preot Nichols, to Lieut. Marshall S. Carter, U. S. A., son of Col. and Mrs. Clifton C. Carter, of West Point. The wedding will take place at the United States Military Academy in July, after which the young couple will sail for Honolulu, where Lieut. Carter is on duty with the Coast Artillery at Fort Shafter.

Maj. and Mrs. Durward S. Wilson, of Fort Meade, Md., have announced the engagement of their daughter, Miss Olive Morrill Wilson, to Lieut. Charles Austin Kengla, Reserve Corps, U. S. A., son of Mrs. Mary Kengla, of Washington. The wedding will take place in the Fort Meade Chapel on June 2.

Dr. and Mrs. Percival W. Darrah, of Leavenworth, Kans., announce the engagement of their daughter, Miss Dorothea Darrah, to Lieut. Russell Potter Reeder, jr., U. S. A., son of Col. and Mrs. Russell P. Reeder, of Fort Amador, C. Z. Lieut. Reeder was graduated from West Point in 1926 and is now stationed at Fort Clayton, C. Z. The date for the wedding has not been set.

Maj. Scanlon Weds Mrs. Gladys Kemp

Ceremony at Mrs. Tyng's New York Home.

Mrs. Gladys Kemp, daughter of Mr. George Kemp, of New York, became the bride yesterday of Maj. Martin Francis Scanlon, U. S. A., Air Corps, at a ceremony at the home of the bride's aunt, Mrs. Stephen H. Tyng, at 2 East Eighty-seventh street, New York, which was followed by a small reception.

The bride, who was born in Switzerland, has spent the past ten years in Italy with her aunt, Miss Marion M. Kemp.

Maj. Scanlon is the son of the late Mr. and Mrs. Martin Scanlon, of Scranton, Pa. He was stationed at Bolling Field, Anacostia, for several years following the war and since then has been Air Attache at the United States Embassy in Rome, Italy, and also Air Attache for four years at the United States Embassy in London. Last August he was assigned to Scott Field, Bellville, Ill., where he and his bride will make their home.

Society Will Greet Miss Llewelyn Soon

Mrs. Victor A. I. Llewelyn, of London, the former Alicia duPont Glendenning, of New York and Washington, arrived in New York several days ago and is stopping at the St. Regis until the end of this week, when she will come to Washington to be at the Shoreham for several weeks.

Mr. and Mrs. Llewelyn were married in Nevada last summer and after a wedding trip through the Canadian Rockies returned to Washington for a month before going to London.

Mrs. Llewelyn will remain in this country until midsummer before rejoining Mr. Llewelyn in London.

Mrs. M. de Clare Berry attended the luncheon given by the Magna Charta Dames and the society of the Americans of Royal Descent at Philadelphia yesterday. She expects to return to the Capital today.

Miss Helen Slate, of Sag Harbor, L. I., is the guest of Capt. and Mrs. E. J. Dorn, in their apartment at the Highlands.

Mr. Kirwan to Wed Miss Sarah Bayly

Cambridge, Md., Couple Plan Nuptials June 2.

Mrs. Alexander Shepherd Bayly, of Cambridge, Md., has announced the engagement of her daughter, Miss Sarah Alexander Bayly, to Mr. Robin Mace Kirwan, also of Cambridge.

Miss Bayly attended the Hannah More Academy and the National Park Seminary in Washington. She is the daughter of the late Mr. Alexander Shepherd Bayly and a descendant of Josiah Bayly, who was Attorney General of Maryland in the early part of the nineteenth century. Through her mother Miss Bayly is a descendant of Capt. John Neal, who settled in Accomac County, Va., in 1630; a greatniece of Emerson C. Harrington, wartime Governor of Maryland, and a granddaughter of William Washington Harrington, whose forbears settled in Dorchester County before 1681.

Mr. Kirwan's ancestors came to this country from England and settled in lower Dorchester about 1650. He is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Walter Kirwan.

The wedding will take place June 2.

Mrs. P. J. Cunningham, of Philadelphia, is spending several days at the Mayflower Hotel while visiting her daughter, Miss Helen Cunningham, who attends school here. Miss Cunningham will make her debut next winter.

Mrs. J. Raymond Mills will entertain at a reception and tea this afternoon from 3 until 6 o'clock at her home, 3411 Thirty-third place, in honor of Mrs. R. H. Miller.

German Cadets Receive Honors On Visit Here

Naval Attache Entertains for Training Group From Karlsruhe.

Although the officers of the German cruiser and training ship Karlsruhe spent only two days in Washington, they were lavishly entertained while here. The commander of the ship, Capt. Baron von Harsvors, and his officers left Washington Monday night for New York, where they spent yesterday before continuing their trip to Boston to rejoin their ship.

On Monday the Naval Attache of the German Embassy, Capt. Robert Witthoeft, entertained at a luncheon in their honor, when the guests included Rear Admiral Hayne Ellis, U. S. N., and the Naval Attaches of the Embassies and Legations. The British Naval Attache, Capt. A. R. Dewar, was absent from the city, but his place was filled by the Assistant Naval Attache, Capt. J. S. Orr.

Capt. Witthoeft entertained again Monday afternoon for the visitors, when he invited a large group to meet them at a tea given in the Pan-American suite of the Mayflower. There the guests gathered around a large buffet, decorated with spring flowers and a centerpiece of the German colors, with the Hitler insignia worked in sugar.

The Ambassador of Germany, Herr Hans Luther, was present, and wives of the embassy staff members assisted the captain. The other guests included officers of the Navy and their wives, a group of young diplomats and members of resident society.

Mr. C. Seymour McConnell and his aunt, Mrs. Wilfred Geist Fronheiser, have canceled all social engagements because of the death of the former's mother, Mrs. Samuel Burleigh Milton.

Crepe Paper New Material For Millinery

For 15 Cents You Can Make a Hat—It Won't Melt in the Rain.

By Ruth Anne Davis.

A HAT FOR 15c. That is what the sign said in bold black and white letters. The young lady behind the counter nodded her head and admitted such was the case.

The story back of it goes like this: A crepe paper manufacturing company discovered nothing was more cool and satisfactory for dog days (and they'll be here soon) than paper hats. Ones that didn't look like paper, of course. Thereupon they began their promotion scheme—teaching women how to cord and plait bands of crepe paper and crochet them into hats.

That was all very well, of course. The paper costs little, there were numerous patterns, and 50 colors from which to choose. But in a few minutes summer showers would turn the jauntiest chapeau into nothing but pulp. So, more experimentation. The discovery of a water-repellent fluid. The success of a haphazard venture!

In a downtown store shoppers are invited to drop in and find out about this art of paper hat making. Directions are as simple as ABC. Paper, liquid, needles, and a queer little wooden gadget for twisting the strips cost very little. And the actual work is really fun.

Just one fold of paper will evolve into a Breton sailor, a Mayfair sailor, or some of the more unusual types such as "Henry the Eighth," "1934 Tricorn," "Desperado," and "New Yorker."

Three Times as Long.

Cotton week at a large department store has had a drastic effect on dish towels. A certain high-grade variety always have sold five for $1. And now for the first time in history they are selling five for 79 cents.

These aren't ordinary dish towels. They go further and last longer than most varieties. Before they are sent from the factory they are put through a special process to make them triply absorbent, with the result you may dry three times as many dishes with one towel. Not only that—they are absolutely lint proof.

More About Cotton Week.

Further developments of cotton week are apparent in the third floor dress department. Here are tennis frocks, in ten styles, selling for $1.95. They are all pique, in white, pink, green, lavender, blue, and maize. Low backs and shoulder straps adapt them perfectly to the summer sport wardrobe.

Another rack close by boasts a variety of cotton daytime frocks, priced at $2.95. Here are linens, piques, seersuckers, ginghams, and shirt frocks, made in a number of fetching ways. It is really amazing such inexpensive frocks can flaunt such attractive touches. Cord necks, initialed pockets, pleats, and colored trimmings go a long way toward making them look high priced.

Blur of Color.

David's coat of many colors might have resembled one of the coarse homespuns displayed in a local shop.

They are there if you know where to find them. Search the coat department in vain. Stop, however, at the neckwear counter, inquire what the blur of color is behind the glass showcase doors.

They were made for spring days and coolish summer evenings. They're a short swagger length, light, and loose. And one thing sure they'll be a boon to summer automobilists!

New Pouch Compact.

Most people would agree there couldn't be anything new in the pouch compact line. And most people would be wrong. For the manufacturer of an exceptionally fine face powder has created a pouch with separate pockets for both puff and powder. When the puff is pulled out it is well coated with powder. Close secrutiny reveals pin prick holes connecting the two pockets. Powder seeps through these onto the puff in just the proper quantities.

These extremely handy and original little compacts are presented free to each purchaser of a package of this fine face powder, a splendid buy in itself. It gives a smooth chiffon-like quality to the skin, and adapts itself beautifully to all complexion types.

Grapefruit Set.

Kitchen showers for the June bride are likely to result in a lot of pots, pans, towels and such. But contributors who would like to bring something new, novel and useful should take a look at the grapefruit set in a local store. It includes a corer and a curved knive, both with stainless steel serrated edges and wooden handles.

The Chic Wear Cotton From Crowns to Soles

Between Two Extremes of Fabric Hats and Fabric Shoes All Manner of Cotton Accessories, Collars, Blouses, Handbags Make Appearance.

Directed by Amos Parrish.

NEW YORK, May 15.—Cotton heads the list of summer accessory fabrics. And puts its foot down on any attempt to oust it from that coveted honor. Literally, on both counts. Since cotton hats and cotton shoes are the two extremes between which all manner of cotton accessories fill in.

The hats in question may be all cotton or straw brims with cotton crowns. Pique is smart. Sateen printed in the silk patterns is used for sets of sailor hat, scarf and gloves.

Cotton string berets will be a summer headliner, and big picture hats take to organdie Swiss or net.

Cotton Shoes.

As for shoes, ribbed cottons, such as gabardines, checked cottons, waffle pique and cotton meshes are made into low-cut oxfords, pumps and sandals, with or without leather tips. The ribbed cotton pump sketched has a leather tip.

In between hats and shoes you find cotton neckwear, as frilly as the piece sketched or as tailored as Peter Pan collars and cuffs.

Blouses are frilly or tailored, too. The sheer cottons are summer favorites, made very dainty with lace and ruffles.

In fashion's hands you find cotton handbags and on her hands cotton gloves. The bags follow the same styles as leather bags, sometimes combining leathers as a trimming. That's what the sketched bag does.

Plain or Trimmed Gloves.

Plain cottons, ribbed cottons, mesh cottons and crocheted cottons go into gloves.

Cotton boutonnieres. Cotton handkerchiefs. Cotton belts. And it's hardly necessary even to mention the cotton sweater.

They're being done in plain knits and many fancier effects of ribs, diagonals, lacy and waffle patterns. And you can see one of the diagonals in the sketch at the top of the column.

This is a sweater-blouse you can crochet for yourself out of cotton cord. The neckline can be worn high, as shown, or turned down. We'll send you directions if you mail us the coupon and requested inclosures.

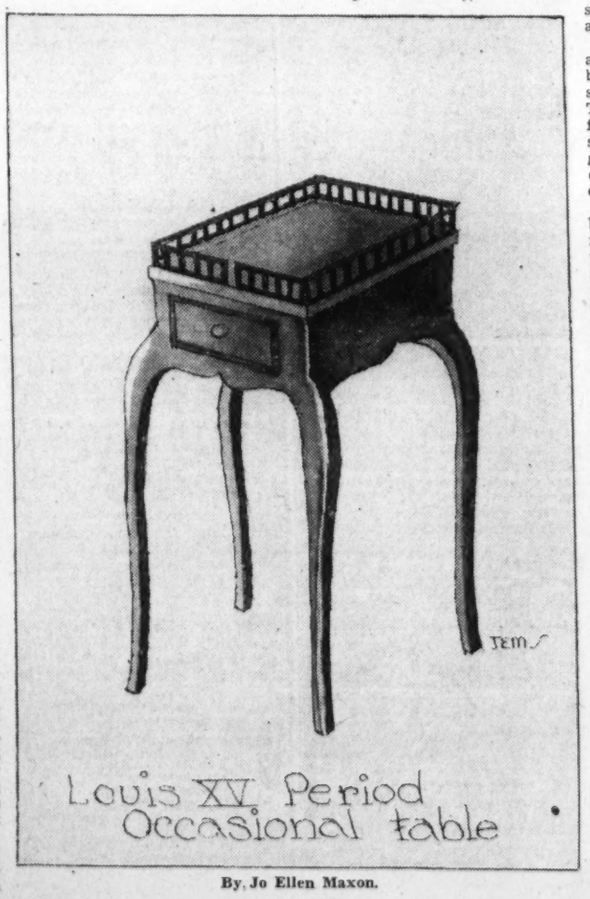
Decor in Louis Fifteenth Period Luxurious But Nicely Adaptable



By Jo Ellen Maxon.

IN THE ERA of luxury of Louis XV the rooms became smaller, more livable, and better adapted to present day modes of decoration.

Sitting rooms, boudoirs and music rooms were introduced, though the formal banquet halls and huge reception halls of the preceding era were still present. These small, exquisite rooms were panelled in brocades, damasks and delicately painted papers. The woodwork was polished to a soft glow, and the floors were beautifully patterned in parquet.

The furniture, like the rooms, became smaller and more livable. The chairs (chairs are usually mentioned first in describing furniture periods, as they, more than any other piece of furniture, show the transition from one era of design to another) were lower, more comfortable, and of graceful proportions.

The bergere was the most characteristic type of seat. It was low and wide, like a deep arm chair, and had a removable cushion. The chaise lounge was also used extensively. This was primarily an era of furniture in a very feminine style.

Commodes and tables were among the finest pieces of this period. They were constructed of exotic woods and richly ornamented with mounts of gilded bronze. The console tables, toilet tables, writing tables, card tables and occasional tables were all designed in curves with scarcely a straight line to be found on them. They were lighter, higher and simpler than in the time of Louis XIV.

CAPITAL KITCHEN

Simple Menus Are Suitable to Hectic Period of Housecleaning.

By Susan Mills.

AS ONE housewife aptly put it, "Thank goodness I put off my spring cleaning until after the dust storm."

If you are one of the ladies who is just getting around now to the business of dressing up the house for the summer, you'll need some simple and easily-prepared menus to serve while mops and dusters are flourishing.

Luncheon menus may be reduced to a simple main dish and a salad. Or the salad may be served as the main dish.

Here are some menus and recipes that may be of use during the house-cleaning season.

Nourishing and Well-Balanced Luncheons.

Baked macaroni and fresh tomatoes
Stuffed prune salad
Rye crisps
Milk

Here's another:
Cream of lentil and potato soup
Apple, celery and tuna fish salad
Thin wheat biscuits
Milk

Baked Macaroni and Fresh Tomatoes.

1 cup macaroni, broken in inch pieces
4 tablespoons butter
3 tablespoons flour
2 cups milk
1 teaspoon salt
⅛ teaspoon white pepper
3 teaspoons Worcestershire sauce
½ cup mayonnaise
3 medium tomatoes
Buttered bread crumbs

Cook macaroni in boiling, salted water until tender. Drain and rinse with cold water. Make a white sauce in double boiler with the butter, flour, milk, salt, and pepper. Remove from fire and slowly add Worcestershire and mayonnaise, stirring constantly. Arrange alternate layers of macaroni and skinned, sliced tomatoes in buttered casserole. Cover with white sauce and buttered bread crumbs on top. Bake in slow oven until brown. Serves six.

How to Keep Well

By Dr. W. A. Evans.

Diabetes Insipidus.

Diabetes insipidus differs from true diabetes in that sugar is not related to the disease. It is not due to disease of the pancreas, there is no inability to digest, absorb, and use carbohydrate foods in normal quantities, there is no increase in blood sugar, and no sugar in the urine. The only resemblance of the symptoms to those of diabetes mellitus, or true diabetes, is the very great increase in the excretion of urine and some of the urinary salts.

It is a far less serious disease than true diabetes, but it usually causes considerable inconvenience and discomfort. There was not much treatment for it until the discovery about a generation ago that the uncomfortable symptoms disappeared when the spinal canal was tapped, some of the fluid was withdrawn, and the pressure relieved.

But in diabetes insipidus there is an increased excretion of salt. The body needs a fair amount of this substance, else there will be cramps. There was possibility of discomfort from insufficiency of blood and tissue salt if the salt intake were greatly lessened in this disease, characterized by increased salt excretion.

Then it was decided to treat diabetes insipidus by giving hypodermics of posterior lobe of the pituitary body. That method of treatment worked well, but there are practical drawbacks to any treatment that calls for several hypodermics to be given daily. It was next proposed to spray the nose with a solution of the posterior lobe of the pituitary. Now a further improvement is suggested. It consists in blowing a fine powder of dried posterior pituitary into the nose three times daily. This Dr. F. M. Smith reports to be cheaper and more effective and convenient.

The physician teaches his patient just how to blow this powder into the nose; what area in the nose to aim at, and how to use the powder blower so as to hit the right spot and not waste powder.

What Today Means

"Taurus."

If May 16 is your birthday, the best hours for you on this date are from 8:45 to 10.45 a. m., from 11:45 a. m. to 1:45 p. m. and from 3:45 to 5:45 p. m. The danger periods are from 6.45 to 7.45 a. m., from 6:45 to 8:45 a. m., from 6:45 to 8:45 p. m. and from 9:45 to 11:45 p. m.

If a woman and May 16 is your birthday, you can avoid a good deal of unhappiness by being more optimistic regarding the unselfish motives that prompt people to try to be nice and of service to you.

The child born on May 16, as it grows up, must be taught it can not afford to ignore the advice of its elders. It must learn it can not do just whatever it pleases, but will have to abide by the decision of those who know what is best for it to do or not to do.

If you are a man and this is your natal day, start this new year of your life by making up your mind to conquer your greatest fault and the one weak link in your armor—the lack of faith in anyone else's judgment except your own. Do this, and the coming 12 months will surprise you by the excellent results that will be shown in your business.

Gay Petticoats Newest Vogue In Hollywood

Taffeta Ones in Brilliant Hues Peep Quaintly Beneath Hems.

Hollywood, May 14 (U.P.).—Petticoats—taffeta ones in blue, sulphur yellow, poinciana red, cerise and sapphire blue or in any shade that strikes a girl's fancy—are the latest excitement in the film fashion center, according to William Lambert, designer.

"To be up to the minute, the colored taffeta petticoat must find itself under a frock of dull black crepe, the heavier the more modish the effect," Lambert says.

Lillian Harvey is one of the stars to adopt this new mode, having selected a petticoat in bright red.

Janet Gaynor is another. Hers is of cream white taffeta, garlanded in forget-me-nots and Cecil Breuner roses.

Helen Twelvetrees is to have one in dragon green to wear under dull black, and Rosemary Ames has one made from Bagdad yellow.

The petticoats are molded to the form to knee length when they take on fullness through godets, or through being cut in circular shape. When the hem line is reached they are quite fluffy. When the wearer walks, there is a suggestion of the bright color showing under the dull black and when she sits down, the billowy hem insists upon bobbing out into view.

Finger-length jackets are the most popular and necklines all feature cascaded and rippled collars of self trim, or of mousseline de soie.

Culbertson on Bridge

Avoiding the Squeeze.

Mr. B. F. Oxnard, of Providence, R. I., sent me a hand the other day, played at the Providence Bridge Club, in which an opponent, by very fine play, protected his partner from an otherwise inevitable squeeze situation. The hand and bidding were:

North, Dealer.
Neither side vulnerable.

	♠ A 10 7 5 4 2 ♡ A Q 4 ◇ 10 6 ♣ 5 3
♠ K 9 8 3 ♡ K J 5 3 ◇ 8 4 ♣ Q 8 2	N W E S	♠ Q J ♡ 10 9 8 6 ◇ A 3 ♣ K J 10 7 6
	♠ 6 ♡ 7 2 ◇ K Q J 9 7 5 2 ♣ A 9 4

The bidding:

North	East	South	West
1♠	2♣	2◇	3♣
3♠	4♣	4◇	Pass
5◇	Dbl.	Pass	Pass
Pass

Unquestionably North and South bid the hand to its full value, and, in view of the fact that his partner had made an overcall and rebid, West could not be blamed for feeling that they had gone a mite too high.

West opened the deuce of clubs, which South won with the Ace and immediately returned the four of clubs, hoping to find the Ace of diamonds a sigleton in the hand of an opponent and thus be able to secure a ruff with one of Dummy's trumps. East won the club trick with the Ten and returned the Ace and three of diamonds. South, his hope of securing a ruff gone, now played to establish the spade suit, which could be done if the adverse spades were divided 3-3 and the heart King was in the West hand. The heart finesse worked, but the division of the spade suit was unfavorable.

South still had a play for the hand, however, and this he tried now by running all his trumps, hoping that West would have to save his King of spades and East would have to save a club. If this were true, only one heart would remain in each hand, and the Dummy would make the Ace and four of hearts for the last two tricks. But West, on the tenth trick, realizing that he had to keep the King of spades and that another diamond would be led, forcing him to bare the King of hearts, threw the Knave of hearts, and on the eleventh trick he discarded the King of hearts, retaining the Queen of clubs, which enabled East to discard all his clubs and win the last trick with the Ten of hearts, thereby defeating the contract.

GARRETT'S VIRGINIA DARE Wine
THE ONLY GENUINE

I WAS A SPY!

By MARTHE McKENNA

WE CAN all look back to some moment in our lives, or some glaring oversight, and hardly believe ourselves capable of committing such a faux pas. Such human failings are apt to alter the whole course of our lives. I can not for the life of me account for the neglect, unless it was due to the fact that I had become so accustomed to depend on myself doing the obvious right thing at the right moment, but even as I heard the two men mounting the stairs, it flashed on my brain with a sickening sense of horror that that very morning I had placed two tiny scrolls of code message under a strip of loose wallpaper behind the washstand in my bedroom. I had expected the drayman to call that day.

Bertha, who had been upstairs, crept in, looking frightened, and told me that they were ripping open the mattresses and sorting the stuffing. The heavy footsteps upstairs seemed to wander from side to side of the room interminably, the suspense became unbearable. I waited white-faced and motionless, hoping against hope that after searching in the mattresses they would be satisfied.

Suddenly the noise upstairs stopped. Then hurried footsteps scurried across the room, and I heard them thundering down the stairs. The officer burst in. His whole demeanour had changed. With an air of savage, bullying triumph, he ground out: "You see what I have found behind the washstand, Fraulein. You will come with me immediately to the Kommandant's office, where you will be formally charged. We have enough evidence now to put you in front of a firing-squad any time we please.—Gefreiter, call the two men." Bertha burst out weeping, but now that the worst had happened I was fiercely determined to keep my head, notwithstanding the numbing horror of this crushing turn of events.

Presently I was marching through the streets bareheaded between my guards with the officer in front and the Gefreiter in the rear.

Prosecutor Without Pity.

The prosecutor was a short, wiry individual, with steely gray eyes and a face devoid of pity or emotion. He marshaled his facts with cold, insistent skill, and only twice did his eyes gleam with suppressed passion—once when accusing me of being the cause of the death of hundreds of his comrades in arms, and then at the end, when demanding that the council send me to death! He was saying:

"Marthe Cnockaert, a Belgian subject, but, nevertheless, under the jurisdiction of the Imperial German Government, is accused of offenses against the German military code. German nationals and, quite rightly, foreign nationals also, are subject to these laws. The offense is treason and is punishable by death!"

He paused. The only sound was a rustle of papers and a sharp intake of breath from one of the junior officers at the table.

I looked around. Not a vestige of pity or of mercy graced the whole council, and strangely enough, only the white-haired old general, the president, with his clear-cut features and bemedaled tunic, appeared real.

"I will prove conclusively the guilt of the accused," continued the passionate voice. "The dangerous role she undertook was under the cloak of ministering angel, for to further her diabolical schemes she caused herself to be employed in a military hospital at Roulers. What better shield than this? A work of mercy! Who was less likely to fall under suspicion? But always, mark you, she was working near the front. The front, where the latest and most vital information would manifest itself. After leaving her home village of Westroosebeke, she, knowing the enormous advantage of holding a military rendezvous, caused her parents to become the proprietors of the Cafe Carillon in Roulers.

Branded Dangerous Spy.

"Coupled with the role of ministering angel, what better place could be chosen by a woman of charm and ability than this, for the gathering and dissemination of military information? Men will speak and boast of secrets in such surroundings. There is no doubt that she has been a dangerous and relentless enemy spy, from the first days, and is the undoubted cause of the deaths of hundreds of men—men who are our comrades in arms! Wireless code messages flashed from a nearby neutral state have been intercepted and decoded. It was stated that the author or source of the information was 'L.' The very initial as is signed on the notes discovered in the accused's bedroom! While she has been astute enough not to sign any statement while in prison, she has at all times refused to speak of the destination of the notes." He paused impressively. "She dare not! But I will call witnesses who will testify to her confession of blood-guilt. These are times of stress and danger; the state and the lives of our comrades fighting the good fight in the trenches must be safeguarded, and no sentiment of sex or of womanhood must be allowed to blind our judgment. There is only one fate for the assassin who stands before this Council of Justice, and that, I demand in the name of our common Fatherland, is death!!"

There was a deathly silence in the room as he sat down. The president glanced down at his papers, then looking up at me, said:

"These are most serious charges, Fraulein Martha Cnockaert. What answers have you?"

"I have nothing to say," I replied in Flemish, for throughout I refused to speak in German.

"Who were your associates in this work of passing military information to the enemy? With whom did you work in Roulers? Is it a fact that you worked with a known and recognized spy, Lucelle Deldonck?"

To each of these questions I shook my head.

"Come," he said, "You are only injuring your own case. Try to be frank with the court." Glancing down again at his papers and again fixing his eyes on my face, he asked: "Can you throw any light on those decoded wireless messages, or the author who is 'L.' Are you 'L?'"

I remained silent. Glancing over to the prosecutor, he said:

"We will proceed with the evidence." The officer who sat with the prosecutor rose and announced "Lieut. Gustave Wolfe." The officer from brigade headquarters, who had arrested me, stepped into the room. The prosecutor arose and after asking him to identify me, told him to detail to the council the events leading up to my arrest.

Influence of "Gentle Annies" of Whom Stephen Foster Used to Sing Is Still Felt

There Are Many Women Alive Whose Conduct Was Molded by His Sweet, Lamblike Creatures

"JEANIE WITH THE Light Brown Hair" was a symbol of the pensive maids of whom Stephen Collins Foster sang in the 50's. Though she died early, she died pure. Her influence is still manifest among surviving gentlewomen.

In a Sense He Was the Country's First Singer of Mammy Songs.

This Composer Tunefully Killed Off an Appaling Number of Women.

By Malvina Lindsay.

MEN viewing the exhibit of Stephen Collins Foster's songs at the Public Library will no doubt be smitten with a nostalgic longing for a lost world of womanhood.

"Is it possible," they will ask themselves, "that girls were ever like that?"

Aeons distant from today they seem, these gentle creatures who look out wistfully from the covers of the Foster compositions, apparently waiting to melt into the arms of some masculine rock of Gibraltar.

And yet they are closer to the present than they may appear. For there are living yet many women whose standards of conduct have been influenced by the lamblike Lena Clares, the lovely Laura Lees and the sweet Lily Rays, of whom they have heard their mothers or grandmothers sing.

In fact there are yet living many women who bitterly regret that Stephen Collins Foster ever created a Gentle Annie, or at least that they were ever so unfortunate as to hear of her at an impressionable age.

One has only to read the titles of the Foster songs on exhibition to sense two important influences the composer exerted on the feminine world.

"Linda Has Departed," "Lena, Our Loved One, Is Gone," "Where Is Thy Spirit, Mary?" and "Under the Willows She's Sleeping," run the titles in one group.

Too Good for This World.

"Kiss Me, Dear Mother," "A Dream of My Mother and My Home," "Mother, Thou'rt Faithful to Me" and "Leave Me With My Mother," go the songs in another collection.

The beautiful dreamy maiden, too good for this world and hence summoned early to another, was one to Foster's sentimental preoccupations. The saintly mother of a homesick son was another. And today while the ethereal maiden is fading, the idealized mother continues to hold her own despite Freud and the New Yorker.

Foster, say music prophets, will be remembered chiefly for his plantation melodies, notably his "Old Folks at Home," and "My Old Kentucky Home." Yet according to his brother-biographer, Morrison Foster, his "poetic fancy ran to his sentimental songs."

One can easily believe this. His first published song, dedicated to an early sweetheart, was entitled "Open Thy Lattice, Love." His last song, written during the destitute days in New York that preceded his death, was "She Was All the World to Me." Inevitably, it began: "In the sad and mournful autumn with the falling of the leaf. . ."

The theme of the angelic maiden who met an untimely death was a favorite one of Foster's time. It was possibly inspired by the ravages of consumption among the young and also by the popularity of Tennyson's "May Queen," which poem had been a passion with Foster during his youth. But while there were many songs written about dying maidens, it was Foster's celebration of them that took popular hold on feminine fancy and held it for a half century.

One of the most hauntingly persistent of these was "Gentle Annie," beginning:

"Thou wilt come no more, gentle Annie,
Like a flow'r thy spirit did depart.
Thou art gone, alas, like the many
That have bloomed in the summer of my heart."

Girl yearners of several generations molded their behavior on the gentle Annie formula and not being so fortunate as to attain early immortality ended up as doormat wives or spinster drudges.

The number of young women Foster killed in his songs was appalling. There was Laura Lee ("Why has the merry face gone from my side?" he asks), Eva (around whose gravestone the flowers are creeping), Laura Lee (earth became "a desert isle when robbed of her smile") and numerous others. It has been roughly estimated that out of about 20 women whom Foster celebrated in song, 15 died in the first verse.

Mammy Singer.

In the mother theme Foster offers an even more interesting study. In one sense he was the first mammy singer of this country and the influence of his songs may help to account for what a French author recently declared was an American phenomena — excessive mother sentimentality.

Foster's relations with his own mother inspired his songs. His brother says of him, "His love for his mother amounted to adoration. She was to him an angelic creature." The brother is responsible for the widely narrated story of Foster's dramatic return home to his mother after he had moved to New York following his marriage. Such a yearning for his home and mother came over him that within 24 hours he had sold his furniture and, presumably leaving his wife behind, was on his way to his father's home at Alleghany, Pa. He arrived late at night and rang the doorbell. His mother recognized his footsteps and as she went to let him in, called, "Is that my dear son come back again?" Foster was so affected by the sound of her voice he sank on a porch bench weeping and was thus discovered by her.

Foster was less happy in his marriage relation. Of a highly sensitive and emotional temperament, he had idealized many young women to whom he had dedicated his songs. He married a girl member of a quartet for whom he had written many songs. He and his wife separated early in their married life and Foster returned to the home for which he had yearned in so many of his songs. He did not leave it again until after his parents' death.

No one ever knew the cause of his marital unhappiness. One might hazard the guess any woman would find it difficult living with a man who in his heart was always saying, "I dream of Jeannie with the light brown hair."

STEPHEN COLLINS FOSTER, above, so idealized his mother that from his image of her he drafted a pattern in sentimental song that was to result in several generations of door-mat wives and spinster drudges.

Secretary Wallace's New Book Will Be Reviewed Before Club

Junior Group of the American Association of University Women Will Elect Officers Tomorrow Night; Fellowship Committee to Give Bridge Benefit.

MISS MARY BAKEWELL will review Secretary of Agriculture Wallace's widely discussed book, "America Must Choose," at one of the final meetings of the education committee of the Woman's National Democratic Club tomorrow at the clubhouse, 1526 New Hampshire avenue northwest. Mrs. Edward P. Costigan is chairman.

• • • •

A number of book reviews have been given by Miss Ellis Meredith, Miss Bakewell and others during the past winter. Mrs. Robert E. Nelson has talked once a month on foreign affairs. Mrs. Robert C. Howard and Miss Gwen Geach were among those who spoke on congressional and legislative highlights, and Mrs. Basil Manley, Mrs. Rose Yates Forrester and other members of the club made contributions.

• • • •

The outstanding accomplishment of the committee is the organization of a milk survey.

Dr. Frederick C. Howe, of the AAA, was interested in the preliminary survey; it received also the approval of Secretary Wallace as a basis for a Nation-wide survey.

Miss Meredith will discuss some of the conclusions to be drawn from the survey in a talk before the committee on May 24. Her subject will be "Should a Public Necessity Be a Public Utility?"

Junior University Women.

THE JUNIOR group of the American Association of University Women will meet and elect officers for the coming year at 7 o'clock tomorrow night at the clubhouse.

The fellowship committee will give a benefit bridge party at 2 o'clock and 8 o'clock tomorrow at the clubhouse. Mrs. Warner J. O'Leary is in charge of arrangements. Two floors of the club will be given over to the contract players and round robin games for those who prefer them will be arranged. Prizes will be awarded and refreshments served at both sessions.

The final meeting of the Woman's Club of Chevy Chase, Md., will be held at 12:15 o'clock today at the Columbia Country Club. Following luncheon, election of officers and revisions of the constitution will be voted upon. Mrs. Charles H. Jumper is in charge of guest cards and Mrs. Thomas W. Perry is chairman of the luncheon committee.

A get-together meeting will be held by the Soroptimist Club at 1 o'clock today at the Willard Hotel. Daisy Reed and Marjorie Webster will read papers on "Women's Position in the Economic Field." Plans for the convention will be discussed. Music will be furnished by Jewell Downs.

The Very Rev. Francis Woodlock, S. J., rector of Farm Street, London, will lecture on "Christian Character Formed and Tested in the Modern World," at 4:30 o'clock this afternoon at the Convent of the Sacred Heart, 1719 Massachusetts avenue northwest.

All members of the homemakers department of the Takoma Park Women's Club who wish to take part in the picnic which is to be held at Miller's Cabin in Rock Creek Park, should meet at 12:30 o'clock at the library. In case of rain the meeting will be held at the home of Mrs. Guy Goodman, 502 Tulip avenue, chairman of the picnic.

Resembles Her Works.

STARRY eyes, swirling, tangled curls, slim legs—Nell Brinkley girls.

Yesterday Nell Brinkley herself was an honor guest of the Woman's National Press Club at luncheon, sharing the honor with Anna Roosevelt Dall.

• • • •

"I'm not good at making speeches," she protested. "I became weighed down with a complex when I first had to make a speech in public several years ago and discovered people expected me to look like the girls I drew. My one hope today is that you won't say, 'Oh, is that her?' "

• • • •

But don't let that remark mislead you who gulp your coffee as you read. Nell Brinkley is lovely. She is blonde. Her hair is what poets would call an aureole for a piquant face where blue eyes dance beneath lashes as come-hitherish as those of her best heroines.

• • • •

She admitted she first drew pictures in her mother's cook book when she was 2, and sold some when she was 13. She admitted also to three chief interests in life—two besides her art. These are her 13-year-old son, whose hobby is airplane models, and her husband, Bruce McRae, son of the famous actor, and editor of an important newspaper syndicate.

"Bruce is a darling," said Nell Brinkley McRae. "He's crazy about making toy trains and tracks. I can't ever keep any costume jewelry. No sooner do I buy some than my husband has it torn up, using the stones for headlights on engines, signal lights, &c."

Bananas Boom With Popularity Of a New Diet

Dealers Sing Praises of Doctor Who Says Their Fruit Reduces.

BALTIMORE, May 15 (Spl.).—Banana dealers here are busy singing the praises of Dr. G. A. Harropp, jr., of Johns Hopkins University.

They're grateful because his famous banana-and-skim-milk reducing diet has caused a tremendous boom in their business. Women by the hundreds are taking up the diet—and the banana business has become a profitable one, the dealers assert.

Funny thing about it is the banana reducing diet seems to be concentrated in one section of the city. In exclusive North Baltimore the banana sales are soaring, while in other sections the women don't seem interested.

Dr. Harropp's diet prescribed three meals a day, consisting of nothing but bananas and skim milk, as much as the—would-be thin person wanted. That should be continued for two weeks, then anything the experimenter wanted could be eaten. Then, if she wished to take off more excess poundage, she should go back to the banana-milk diet.

Northwestern Candle Ritual Set Tomorrow

University Alumni Plan Anniversary Dinner in Capital.

HOLLYWOOD, May 15 (U.P.).—Petticoats—taffeta ones in blue, sulphur yellow, poinciana red, cerise and sapphire blue or in any shade that strikes a girl's fancy—are the latest excitement in the film fashion center, according to William Lambert, designer.

Washington alumni and former students, with their guests, will meet for dinner and a candle-lighting ritual tomorrow evening at the University Club. Dr. Earl Dean Howard, Northwestern faculty member, on leave to serve as a deputy administrator with the NRA, will speak.

Promptly at 8:01 o'clock tonight President Walter Dill Scott will light the huge purple master candle in the tower of the university's oldest building, signalling the commencement of the world-wide ritual.

The Washington graduates tomorrow will elect officers and hold an informal reception. Many prominent Federal officials and members of Congress, expect to attend.

Business Clubs To Hold State Meet Saturday

Delegates From All Over Maryland to Gather in Baltimore.

BALTIMORE, May 15 (Spl.).—Business women from all parts of Maryland will attend the annual convention of the Maryland Federation of Business and Professional Women's Clubs, to be held at the Emerson Hotel here, next Saturday.

Miss Blanche White, of Cumberland, president of the State federation, will preside. A large delegation of business women from Cumberland and other cities in western Maryland will attend. Miss Pearl Piper will head the Cumberland group. Delegations from Easton and Salisbury, on the Eastern Shore, will be present.

The session will open at 2:45 p. m. Saturday, when election of officers and reports of work for the past year will be the principal items of business. A banquet is scheduled for Saturday night at the Merchant's Club, with Miss Stella Akin, assistant to the Attorney General of the United States, as the principal speaker.

A legislative breakfast will be held at 9:30 a. m. Sunday at the Baltimore Country Club, at which the topic of discussion will be "Women's Responsibility in Legislation."

Speakers at this meeting will include Miss Helen Elizabeth Brown, Baltimore attorney and president of the Business and Professional Women's council; Miss Lavina Engle, member of the Maryland Legislature from Montgomery County and director of the Maryland League of Women Voters, and Mrs. Mary C. Lammert, of Frostburg, tax collector for Allegany County.

Woman's Group Uses Funds to Buy Fellowship

Excess Funds of W.O.N.P.R. to Help Women in Political Science.

NEW YORK, May 15 (Spl.).—Surplus funds of the Woman's Organization for National Reform are to be used to provide a fellowship for women students in political science. This announcement was made yesterday by Mrs. Pierre S. Dupont, of Wilmington, Del., chairman of the trustees of the surplus funds.

Thirty thousand dollars has been set aside for the scholarship, and the faculty of Barnard College will award the fellowship next year.

The fellowship will be awarded each year to a college graduate who is a student of expectional ability in the field of political science, and who shows special promise of future usefulness in public service. The fellowship may be used for a year of graduate study at any approved college or university.

Mrs. Charles S. Sabin was chairman of the Woman's Organization for Prohibition Reform.

Signature Demand Seen as Sign America's Getting Art-Conscious

Public Insists on Name of Designer on Everything From Washing Machines to Tea Cups, Says Supervisor Federal Council of Art Education.

AMERICA is becoming art conscious. Not only are people buying more paintings, they are insisting upon having the name of the art designer upon everything they buy—from washing machines to tea cups.

"And that," said Miss Florence E. Levy, of New York, supervisor of the Federal Council of Art Education, who made this statement yesterday, "shows the American people are beginning to appreciate what an important part art plays in their daily lives." Miss Levy is at the Shoreham while attending the meeting of the American Federation of Art.

"Every person is a potential artist," Miss Levy continued. "Even those practical men and women who pride themselves on not 'wasting time on such foolishness.'

"Every girl who selects her dress with an eye to beauty and suitability is expressing her artistic nature. And the man who scoffs at art proves hmself the artist when he preens before the mirror adjusting his tie." She said smiling. "I just love to watch men doing that, don't you? They outstrut any peacock."

Looking forward to the day when every American home will be a place of beauty, expressive of the artistic instincts of the people who live in it, Miss Levy believes the program of art education in the public schools to be the greatest contributor to the artistic growth of the American people.

"One out of every thousand students who studies art in the public schools becomes a creative artist," she said. "The others become the dress buyers, the tie buyers, and homemakers. These are the people who must be taught how art can make their everyday surroundings harmonious and beautiful. We want these boys and girls to grow up with a desire for beauty, and an appreciation of what it can mean in every phase of their lives.

"It is important," Miss Levy emphasized, "we give these students a choice in their selection of artistic creations. We must not be dictatorial, that discourages originality.

Our work is to set up certain standards of beauty, and give the buyers a wide range from which to choose. They must learn to buy the thing that best suits their particular purpose."

Evidence that the average person is becoming interested in the value of art in environment was shown in a recent exhibit at the RCA studios in New York, Miss Levy believes.

"The National Alliance of Art in Industry emphasized the importance of having good designers for home furnishings, and other commercial products," she said, "and the name of the designer was on each object shown."

Miss Levy said she was almost equally impressed by the exhibit of the Fashion League of Arts, in which materials were displayed with hints about the most beautiful way to use them.

"And the advertising art display showed advertising can be a constructive factor in making our country a place of beauty," she said.

Foster Home Sold to Ford As Memorial

PITTSBURGH, May 15 (U.P.).—The cottage where Stephen Collins Foster, composer, was born will stand in Henry Ford's early American village with the log-cabin birthplace of William Holmes McGuffey, it was revealed today.

Ford has purchased the Foster memorial cottage here for removal to Dearborn where already he has taken the remnants of the old log cabin in which McGuffy, whose readers were studied by millions, was born in Washington County.

The price paid for the Foster cottage was not revealed. It was purchased from the St. John the Baptist Catholic Church which had owned it since 1900.

The cottage here was generally believed to be Foster's birthplace, although in some quarters it was held he was born in a house which formerly stood at the site.

Clothes' Lengths Vary Sharply, According to Film City Stylists

HOLLYWOOD, May 15 (U.P.).—Length of their frocks tells you where they're going in Hollywood these days. The present summer mode, according to style experts in the film city, has more lengths than any season that can be remembered.

First is the bathing suit, which now possesses the most daring brevity of many seasons. The correct line is "thigh-length."

Next comes the inevitable sun suit, which is "just above the knee." The active sports costume is "just below the knee," and the newest type of breach slacks hit the center of the calf.

The street costume is still about 10 inches from the floor, but the smart woman must have one new gown which is "ankle-length" for formal afternoon. Another gown must be "heel length for formal afternoons. Another gown must be "heel length" which is most graceful for a formal dinner party. Formal evening gowns, to be ultracorrect, must be floor length and may have trains.

One stylist says "all these variations sound absurd to the average person, but in the creed of a real woman of fashion there lies a world of significance. The truly smart woman has an extra sense which supplies her with this knowledge, automatically."

Beaded fabrics will also return, with great prominence in the near future, according to Travis Banton, designer. He predicted gowns worn in the movie, "Cleopatra," would have a decided effect on the fashion world.

"The most natural phase of the change in present style trends is leaning toward the alluring, draped and clinging garments which are used in this picture," he said.

A jacket for every dress and a dress for every jacket seems to be the smart idea this summer—whether the dress be for sports or formal wear.

Some of the new abbreviated coats are made of matching materials. Flower sleeve capes are popular for evening wear.

Reverse.

I, a victim of your venom
May be mad enough to cry,
But with certain pride I watch you;
Look you squarely in the eye
And laugh.

But when I have found you tender
It will be my place to show
My sincere appreciation
Through a joyous laugh—but no,
I'll weep!

Dutch House Cleaning a Ritual That's Executed With Vigor

HOUSE cleaning is almost a ritual in Holland. Instead of being a seasonal task it is a daily routine which the Dutch housewife goes at with vigor and enthusiasm.

Even the architecture adapts itself to the importance of mops and brooms. There are small balconies outside of the second-story windows in most of the town houses to facilitate shaking dusters, and to provide space for airing bedding.

There are very few washing machines in the Netherlands. There is no lack of zeal on the part of the Dutch housewives, however. The climate is so damp it is almost impossible to dry clothes, so most of the clothing and linen is sent out to large laundries where it can be dried artificially in a much shorter time than would be possible if the clothes were laundered at home.

Most of the Dutch town houses are arranged in rows and are attached. This is because there is so little space in Holland, where land is at a premium.

When you enter a house in the Netherlands, there is a remarkable feeling of coziness, peace and security. The northern climate necessitates people spending quite a bit of their tme in their homes, so it is the aim of every homemaker to have her rooms as artistic and attractive as possible.

The windows are usually curtained in lace with overdraperies of velvet or some heavy, warm material. Nearly always there are potted flowers or plants in the room. Pewter, brass, and pieces of exquisite Delft pottery are used for decoration.

The stove, or "hearth," is an important part of every room. These stoves are quite handsome with heavy mountings of copper and brass. They are set inside a large fireplace, usually in the corner of the living room. The rest of the house is not heated.

In the older houses there are still picturesque old Dutch faience tiles in blue or lilac set into the kitchen walls. These have pictures on the surfaces, often of Biblical stories. The tiles are becoming scarce; in some homes they are valued as mural decorations for the living room.

Although to a certain extent Dutch women are branching out into the various professions and are entering the business world, the tendency in Holland is still toward domesticity and homemaking.

Building to Aid Virginia Jobless

$3,000,000 Is Sought for Work at Norfolk Navy Yard.

Norfolk, Va., May 15 (Spl.).—Building construction at the naval base and the Norfolk navy yard, involving an outlay of upward of $3,000,000, is to be urged on President Roosevelt and the budget bureau to absorb unemployment in the building trades of Norfolk and Portsmouth.

The Navy Department is favorable to the outlay, and is understood to have placed three projects at the head of a list for the Norfolk-Portsmouth area, with specific recommendations said to have been made in several instances by Secretary of the Navy Swanson to the White House.

The naval base projects are: Five barracks and a mess hall for the training station, estimated to cost $1,090,000.

Combination barracks and mess hall at the air station to cost around $850,000.

The Navy Yard project is the combination sheet metal and electric shop to cost from $800,000 to $900,000.

New plans for the training station barracks have been drawn to conform to ideas proposed by Captain Allen, commandant of the station.

The buildings would be of brick and concrete construction.

W. Lincoln Appointed To Luray Town Council

Luray, Va., May 15 (Spl.).—W. W. Lincoln, a relative of the late President Lincoln, last night was appointed a member of the Luray Town Council to succeed W. L. Rhodes, who died a month ago.

Mr. Lincoln is a native of Rockingham County and was born on the farm once owned by Thomas Lincoln, grandfather of President Lincoln.

Stealing of 21 or More Automobiles Admitted

Baltimore, May 15 (Spl.).—A colored man arrested yesterday at Leonardtown, Md., by State police, today admitted to detectives here that he had stolen "21 and maybe more" automobiles and had disposed of them through an auto theft ring operating in northern Maryland and Pennsylvania.

As a result of his story 18 automobiles, all belonging to Baltimoreans, have been recovered. Police are now trying to break up the motor theft ring, and arrests are expected within a few days.

Jordan, Elliott Speak At Legion Meeting

Waynesboro, Va., May 15 (Spl.).—Col. E. W. Jordan, director of the United States Veterans' Bureau, Richmond, and W. Glenn Elliott, adjutant of the Virginia Department of the American Legion, were the principal speakers at a mass meeting of World War veterans here tonight.

Prior to the meeting the speakers were guests at a dinner sponsored by the local American Legion post. Arrangements for tonight's event were in charge of Commander Lewis E. Barksdale, Adjutant Felix E. Edmunds, the Rev. C. E. Brandt, Louis Spilman and E. Driver Etter.

Evidence of Dead Man Is Admitted By Norfolk Judge

Norfolk, Va., May 15 (Spl.).—A dead man's testimony was allowed in evidence in the United States district court here as W. C. Wright, president of the W. C. Wright Coal & Ice Co., when it went into bankruptcy last spring, went on trial for the second time on charges of perjury and concealing assets in bankruptcy.

The testimony Judge Luther B. Way permitted to be read into the record was that given by Max Levine, salesman for the Wright company in the first trial last December when a jury was unable to agree on a verdict.

Wright had testified before the referee in bankruptcy that a check for $166.30, drawn shortly before the company failed, had been to pay Levine for services rendered the company. Levine testified last December that he did not get the proceeds of the check.

The witness died last month, and Judge Way permitted his former testimony to be read to jury over the protest of Lester S. Parsons and Harry H. Kanter, defense attorneys.

Winn, Former Pastor, Freed at Assault Trial

Danville, Va., May 15 (Spl.).—The fourth trial of J. A. Winn, former Methodist minister here, on charges of simple assault, resulted in his acquittal in Charlotte County Circuit Court late yesterday.

The principal witness against him was Mrs. E. Haley, who lived near the pastor during his Danville residence. Mr. Winn denied the charges on the witness stand.

Danville, Va., May 15 (Spl.).—Giles H. Miller, of Lynchburg, has been elected chairman of Group Four, Virginia Bankers' Association, which held its annual meeting here.

B. F. Cousins, also of Lynchburg, was named secretary. The advisory board is composed of J. C. Dill, Buchanan; J. L. Bugg, Farmville; and V. T. Strickler, of Buena Vista.

Rites Are Conducted For Mrs. Singleton

Lynchburg, Va., May 15 (Spl.). Funeral services for Mrs. Mary Leighton Singleton, 59, wife of H. M. Singleton, were conducted today at the home near Boonsboro, where she died Sunday.

She is survived by her husband; a daughter, Miss Mary Singleton; two sons, J. Phillip and Harold B. Singleton, of Lynchburg, and several brothers and sisters.

Shooting Termed Murder-Suicide

Tourist Camp Manager Kills Woman, Self.

Richmond, May 15 (AP).—Henrico County police last night closed their investigation into a double slaying earlier in the day at a tourist camp on the outskirts of Richmond. They declared that Richmond Camoli shot and killed Eloise Tate, 21, and then ended his own life as the result of a fit of jealousy.

Camoli was night manager of the tourist camp. Police said they learned that he had sheltered the woman, who was divorced, at the camp. Later he discovered that she had other friends, the police said, and in a fit of rage fired three bullets from a .25 caliber pistol into her body.

He then fired a shotgun into his own head.

Richmond, May 15 (AP).—A certificate authorizing passenger bus service between Harrisonburg and the West Virginia line, destination, Rawley Springs, via Route 814, was granted to Olie Smith by the State corporation commission today.

Rain Puts Out Fire And Ends Drought

Virginia Tobacco Crop Helped by Storm.

Danville, Va., May 15 (Spl.). Heavy rain which fell over southside Virginia today broke the drought which threatened to destroy tobacco beds and at the same time extinguished forest fires which had been burning in the Blue Ridge spurs for over a week.

Farmers found the land softened for tobacco transplantation. Gardens cultivated by hundreds, who have profited by free Government seed, also were aided, and the air was purified of smoke and dust which have paled the sun for ten days.

From Stuart came word that the eight-mile fire on Carter Mountain was put out just as 100 CCC workers were being mobilized. Last night Mayor J. D. Hooker called for 30 men from Fairystone Park to hasten to Stuart to start backfires on Carter Mountain to save the Stuart water source. The men were sent back to camp after one man, lost on the mountain, was found.

Oliver V. Farmer, 55, Is Buried at Lynchburg

Lynchburg, Va., May 15 (Spl.).—Funeral services for Oliver V. Farmer, 55, who died Saturday in Washington, were conducted here today. Burial was in Spring Hill Cemetery.

Mr. Farmer is survived by his widow, Mrs. Ernestine Farmer, and three sons, Einston, Price and Rich Farmer.

Duncan K. Brent, 57, Dies Suddenly

B. & O. Attorney Succumbs at Maryland Home.

Baltimore, Md., May 15 (Spl.).—Duncan K. Brent, 57, who for 32 years was an attorney for the Baltimore & Ohio Railroad and who recently had been attorney general for the road, died suddenly last night at his home at Ruxton, north of Baltimore.

He was a native of New Orleans and was educated in Baltimore at the Marston School, Johns Hopkins University and the University of Maryland Law School. He was graduated from the latter in 1900 and entered the B. & O. legal department in 1902.

He received successive promotions until he headed the road's law staff. Yesterday he was at his office as usual, but last night he became ill and died within a few hours. His widow, two sons and a daughter survive him.

Plans Are Advanced For Press Meeting

Charlottesville, Va., May 15 (AP).—Entertainment plans are being completed for the forty-sixth annual meeting here soon of the Virginia Press Association, which leaders predict will be one of the most important in the organization's history.

Entertainment plans are being made by Vernon C. Kemp, executive secretary of the Charlottesville-Albemarle County Chamber of Commerce; William Wranek, jr., director of publicity at the University of Virginia, and Jay W. Johns.

Bee Sets Up Home And Stores Honey In Lock of Door

Waynesboro, Va., May 15 (Spl.). A. M. Shenk, manager of the Stehli Silk Mills, has an uninvited guest at his home. A lone bee makes its home in the front door lock, using the keyhole for a door.

The bee has started to construct a comb of honey inside the lock. Opening and shutting the door doesn't seem to disturb it, but no effort has been made to insert a key in the lock.

Stove Blast Damages Store at Martinsburg

Martinsburg, W. Va., May 15 (Spl.).—The G. B. Slifer grocery store, and an adjoining house, occupied by two families, were damaged by fire started by an explosion of a coal oil stove in the kitchen of the dwelling yesterday.

The loss included part of the grocery stock.

D. B. Brewster Dies At Brooklandville

Banker's Death Believed Due to Heart Attack.

Baltimore, May 15 (AP).—Daniel Baugh Brewster, 39, former master of the Green Spring Valley Hounds and prominent socially, died suddenly at his Brooklandville home last night.

He was vice president of the Fidelity Trust Company. Death is believed to have been due to a heart attack.

Mr. Brewster attended Gilman country school and Princeton University. During the World War he served as a captain in the Marines.

U. S. Senate Race Planned By H.E. Bruce

Hard Fight Is Forecast to Effort to Oust Goldsborough.

Financier, of Baltimore, Will Make Race on Ritchie Ticket.

By Clyde H. DuBose.

Baltimore, May 15 (Spl.).—Howard E. Bruce, who, at the beginning of the Roosevelt Administration was mentioned as a possible Secretary of the Treasury, will announce himself a candidate for the United States Senate, it was learned from authoritative sources here tonight.

Bruce, Democratic National committeeman from Maryland, and head of the Baltimore Bank, pledged himself to the Ritchie ticket and paved the way for an announcement Sunday night at the Cosmopolitan Democratic Club dinner with his widely-heralded statement, "I'm going down the line with Ritchie."

Projection of the politically-powerful financier into the race for the Senatorial seat, now occupied by Republican Senator Phillips Lee Goldsborough, is generally interpreted to mean a bitter struggle between Mr. Bruce and the incumbent in the November elections.

Although Senator Goldsborough has not announced himself a candidate to succeed himself, there appears little doubt that he will file for the Senatorial toga. Many, however, continue to urge him to oppose Gov. Ritchie for the governorship.

Hard Fight Predicted.

While Democratic leaders assert that Mr. Bruce, aided by the Ritchie ticket popularity and the National prominence now held by the Democratic party, will be swept into office, it is conceded in many quarters that Mr. Goldsborough will be a hard man to defeat.

As has been pointed out by attaches at his office, in acceding to the governorship in 1912 and to the senatorship in 1929, he proved his power by overcoming the 140,000 Democratic majority vote in the State. This, coupled with the quietly-organizing Republican machine throughout Maryland, is not overlooked by many Democrats.

Howard Bruce, on the other hand, will go far toward controlling the votes in Baltimore City, of which he is considered a part and parcel, although his home is at Elkridge, several miles away.

Others who have announced themselves candidates for the senatorship are former Senator Joseph I. France, Republican, of Port Deposit, and former Representative Linwood L. Clark, Republican, of Baltimore. Neither, however, has been considered outstanding should Senator Goldsborough enter the race.

Cabell Bruce Mentioned.

Another, and a more likely candidate perhaps than either France or Clarke, is Cabell Bruce, Democrat, an uncle of Howard. Cabell Bruce, a Batlimorean who was defeated by Goldsborough in 1928 by 47,000 majority, is understood to be in the race, though he has not formally announced.

The Ritchie ticket, according to the best political authorities, also will include the name of Herbert R. O'Conor for attorney general. Mr. O'Conor, the present State's attorney for Baltimore City, is expected to announce his candidacy when addressing the Democratic Club at the University of Maryland Monday night.

Paul Walsh, president of the Democratic Club and close friend of the State's attorney, issued the following statement announcing O'Conor's appearance:

"The people of Maryland are proud, and the people of the Nation admire him for his 11-year record as State's attorney of Baltimore City. Last Saturday Earl W. Evans, president of the American Bar Association praised Mr. O'Conor's administration as the outstanding prosecuting office of the entire country.

Confidence Expressed.

"The confidence which the electorate of Baltimore expressed in Mr. O'Conor in 1930 by giving him a majority of 100,000 votes also indicates that he is good timber for a State-wide campaign."

Another statement, issued today by Harry Phoebus, Republican candidate for Governor, who speaks tomorrow night at the university, was also made public by Walsh. It read:

"Those fellows are going to hear from a countryman who really knows what this State needs. It may be the first time a countryman like me has had an opportunity to talk to a college group, but I'm going to tell them how the Governorship should be run by one of the common people."

POST AD SELLS USED CLOTHES

Hill Brothers, clothing dealers at 1345 S street northwest, recently ran a two-line ad in the Classified Section of The Washington Post for one month, announcing that they would pay cash for men's and boys' clothing. Through this ad they bought a large quantity of merchandise, but not enough to take care of the spring trade. Therefore they decided to insert the ad in The Post for another month.

This second insertion, even after the first ad had run for a whole month, brought such response that within six days Hill Brothers had bought enough goods to take care of all customers.

Frederick Garage Damaged by Fire

Gasoline Blaze Causes $2,000 Loss.

Frederick, Md., May 15 (Spl.).—Fire of undetermined origin damaged the plant of the Frederick Motor Co. to the extent of about $2,000 today.

The flames started while workmen were transferring gasoline from a truck to an underground tank and for a while the blaze menaced the building and adjoining property. The entire fire department fought the flames for an hour.

A portion of the roof of the garage, the largest in the city, was burned away.

Gasoline in underground tanks made fighting the fire hazardous. Two firemen and a policeman were injured when a hook and ladder truck skidded at a street intersection going to the fire and crashed into automobiles.

Nice Will Push Governor Race

Candidate for Nomination by G.O.P. Plans to Tour West Maryland.

Baltimore, May 15 (Spl.).—A swing through several western Maryland counties this week is on the program for Harry W. Nice, Baltimore lawyer who is seeking the Republican nomination for Governor.

Tomorrow Mr. Nice will attend a meeting of independent women voters in Baltimore, and then he will head westward. He will be accompanied by Mrs. Nice and Mr. and Mrs. Edmund Budnitz.

Their first stop will be in Hagerstown, Thursday night, where he will confer with Washington County political leaders. Thursday morning he will visit Hancock and Cumberland and possibly Frostburg. He will return to Hagerstown that afternoon.

At the fair grounds at Hagerstown, he will attend the races and will present the Harry W. Nice cup to the winner of one of the events.

That night he will go to Westminster and Friday will be spent in touring Carroll County.

Munroe Out For Office of Court Clerk

Annapolis Merchant Will Contest at Request of Friends.

Annapolis, Md., May 15 (Spl.).—Though he had repeatedly declined during the last few weeks to again enter actively in politics, Frank A. Munroe, retired Annapolis merchant, today formally announced his candidacy for the Republican nomination for clerk of the Anne Arundel County Circuit Court. In doing so, he said he yielded to requests of many supporters and friends in both major political parties.

Whether Mr. Munroe will have any opposition in his party is not known, although it has been reported that Maj. Walter E. Quenstedt, who declared for the G. O. P. nomination for Governor several months ago, eventually would withdraw and become a candidate for court clerk.

The court clerkship is one of the most desirable local berths. It has been within the grip of Democrats for more than two-score years. County leadership generally has been associated with it. Frank Revell resigned the office several months ago when he was appointed Federal immigration commissioner at Baltimore and W. Martin Brady, chief deputy, was appointed to the vacancy until the coming election.

Lively times in local politics are expected from now until the September primaries, and indications are rival leaders will exercise greater caution in the matter of slate making. This is ascribed to activities of the Better Government League, which has organized every district with the view of getting more representatives candidate for office, to the end that taxes will be greatly curtailed and governmental affairs generally placed on a higher level.

On the Democratic side the only candidate for the clerk of court thus far is James S. Walton, president of the Annapolis Banking & Trust Co. Names of several others including W. Meade Holladay, Annapolis, and George T. Cromwell, Fifth District, are persistently mentioned, so that a primary fight is indicated.

Mr. Munroe, who is President of the county board of education, made the fight four years ago against Frank S. Revell, recognized Democratic boss, and polled a remarkable vote. He carried Annapolis and a majority of the rural sections, and his election was indicated until belated returns from the Third and Fifth districts, Revell strongholds, showed his defeat by the majority of 275.

H. W. Smith to Stump Maryland In Rolling Campaign Quarters

Baltimore, May 15 (Spl.).—Political arguments will be carried to Maryland voters this year by sound truck.

H. Webster Smith, Baltimore lawyer, seeking the Republican gubernatorial nomination, is negotiating for a motor van which will be virtually a rolling campaign headquarters. It is to be equipped with an office, sleeping quarters, amplifying apparatus, and even a luncheonette.

In this vehicle Mr. Smith plans to visit every cross-roads hamlet in the State, as well as all of the villages, towns, and cities. He will pause at every likely spot, and as soon as people gather will address them via his microphone.

He believes it will be possible for him to cover more ground in a shorter space of time than any other candidate who ever campaigned in Maryland.

He also is drawing up his ticket of running mates. This ticket already includes George Henderson, former mayor of Cumberland, for attorney general; and Dr. Joseph I. France, of Port Deposit, for United States Senator. Mr. Smith will seek a candidate for comptroller from the Eastern Shore, and a candidate for clerk of the Court of Appeals from southern Maryland.

School Work Leads State CWA Costs

$2,841,144 Is Spent on Labor; Materials Were $983,676.

Richmond, May 15 (AP).—Improvements made to public school buildings and grounds in Virginia by CWA funds absorbed a larger portion of CWA money than any other type of project, figures compiled by William A. Smith, VERA administrator, shows.

The figures showed that a total of $2,841,144 was spent on labor and $983,676 was spent on materials by the CWA for improvements to school buildings and grounds.

Streets were the second best beneficiary, a total of $1,652,410 having been spent on labor and $353,275 having been spent for materials for street projects.

Improvements to parks and playgrounds totaled $894,166 for labor and $186,367 for materials, while improvements to public buildings and equipment absorbed $786,010 for labor and $247,313 for materials.

Other projects on which large sums were spent included:

Sewers, $566,668 labor, $147,240 materials. Highways, $542,798 labor, $138,530 materials. Administrative, professional and clerical, $731,033 labor, $163,381 materials. Women's work, $515,589 labor, $18,044 materials. Sanitation, $475,700 labor, $24,813 materials. Drainage and malaria control, $364,801 labor, $35,651 materials.

Water supply and extensions, $260,995 labor, $50,933 materials. Improvement public grounds, $173,835 labor, $38,755 materials. Airports, $171,102 labor, $134,010 materials. Map making and shore survey, $172,770 labor, $3,737 materials. Agricultural survey, farm loans and rural rehabilitation, $60,953 labor, $23 materials. Physical examinations, $48,750 labor. Removing snow, $16,167 labor. Cemeteries, $141,155 labor, $30,300 materials. Miscellaneous, $242,955 labor, $36,075 materials.

Maryland U. Students Honor Hazen and Hart

Melvin C. Hazen, chairman of the Board of District Commissioners, will be "tapped" for membership in the University of Maryland Chapter of Omicron Delta Kappa, National leadership fraternity, at the chapter's semiannual exercises today.

Rear Admiral Thomas W. Hart, superintendent of the U. S. Naval Academy, also will receive the honorary membership. Both will deliver short addresses. Hazen is an alumnus of the university. The exercises will be held in conjunction with the annual installment of student government officers. Warring E. Tydings is the incoming president.

"New Deal" Is Indorsed In U. Va. Poll

Students, Faculty Also Assert They Would Fight for U. S.

Charlottesville, Va., May 15 (Spl.).—That University of Virginia students and faculty members overwhelmingly support the "New Deal" and would fight for their country in time of war, was expressed in the results of a straw vote conducted yesterday by College Topics.

The Administration was given a 3 to 1 vote of confidence and results showed that pacifists' activities have made small inroads on the institution that gave up its whole student body in '61 and became an armed camp in 1917.

Out of returns from more than 500 students and faculty members, 356 indorsed the "New Deal" and 112 opposed it.

Answers to the questions relating to war showed that 250 would bear arms only if the United States is invaded, and 179 would enlist in any war in which the United States is engaged.

Only 73 voted that they would not participate in the next war under any circumstances.

A small majority of voters favored complete international disarmament as a means of insuring world peace over a strong national armaments program.

Ritchie to Address Federal Employes

Federation Parley Opens at Annapolis Saturday.

Annapolis, Md., May 15 (Spl.).—Gov. Albert C. Ritchie and Mayor Walter E. Quenstedt will address the convention of Maryland State Federation of Federal Employes here Saturday.

Annapolis local, of which Charles Schlegel, chief clerk in the naval administration offices, is president, will be the host organization.

Delegates from Washington, D. C.; Pennsylvania and from this State will attend. Charles L. Weigand, president of the federation, will preside, and Luther C. Stewart and Miss Gertrude C. McNally, president and secretary, respectively, of the National federation, will discuss legislation affecting Federal workers.

State May Finish Curbing.

Richmond, May 15 (AP).—Highway Commissioner Henry G. Shirley yesterday told a delegation from New Market that the commission would be glad to complete curbing work on the road through that community if the necessary funds could be obtained. He said $9,000 would be required.

Russian Exiles, Other Lands 'Barred, Told to Quit Baltimore

Living in U. S. on Special Dispensation of Government Since 1929, Couple Warned They Must Leave or Face Deportation.

Baltimore, May 15 (Spl.).—Misfortune again has descended upon Georges Rodzevich, a White Russian, and his wife, daughter of Prince and Princess Engalitscheff, who have been living in Baltimore since 1929.

The Naturalization Service of the United States Department of Labor has announced that the couple must leave this country or face deportation. Their only hope is that Congress will pass a bill, now pending, which will give authorities power to exercise "limited but humane discretion" in cases such as theirs.

Their financial situation is described as "desperate" in a statement issued by the Naturalization Service. Rodzevich says he does not know what country he and his wife can go to.

The story of the Rodzeviches has been marked by wanderings in many lands since the Russian revolution in 1917. He and his wife fled from Russia when the Kerensky regime crashed, and they traveled in Serbia, Turkey, Italy, Belgium and France before finding a haven in the United States.

They came to Baltimore from Paris in 1929 to visit Prince and Princess Engalitscheff. The story of the Engalitscheffs is an interesting one itself. The prince has done art work in the city; his wife became a seamstress; and their sons obtained work as day laborers, concealing their identity.

Mr. and Mrs. Rodzevich had intended to remain only six months in the United States, but while they were in Baltimore France revised its immigration laws and made it virtually impossible for the Rodzeviches to return there. France refused them passports, and there was no other country to which they could go.

The United States authorities allowed them to remain here temporarily, but forbade them from working for pay. Their situation was further complicated when Prince Cyril Engalitscheff, brother of Mrs. Rodzevich and described as the chief support of the family, died.

When it thus became imperative for Mr. Rodzevich to obtain work the Government amended his papers and gave him the privilege of seeking employment. He is an artist, architect and interior decorator, and obtained a number of important commissions in the city. He obtained various extensions of time on his passport papers.

The latest blow came yesterday when the Government ordered him and his wife to leave the country or face deportation.

"Something is wrong," Mr. Rodzevich said. "My papers are all in order, and I have heard nothing from the immigration authorities. I have dealt directly with Washington, and I know perfectly well it can not be."

Miss Nancy B. Turner to Write Maryland's Tercentenary Ode

Baltimore, May 15 (Spl.).—Selection of Miss Nancy Byrd Turner, daughter of the Rev. Byrd Thornton Turner, to write the official Maryland Tercentenary ode, was announced here today by Daniel R. Randall, chairman of the Tercentenary Commission's poetry committee.

The ode will be read at the celebration of Maryland's 300th birthday at St. Marys City on June 16.

Miss Turner is a member of an old Virginia family. She was born in that State, and has lived at many places in Virginia and Maryland. Her father, a clergyman of the Protestant Episcopal Church here, has held charges at St. Marys City, St. Margaret's, and Wye Mills. Her adult life has been spent as a writer and editor of various magazines.

Her principal writing has been poetry, and her work has appeared in the Atlantic Monthly, Scribners, Harpers, Century, and the Bookman, as well as numerous other magazines in the United States and Great Britain.

"The most magic portion of my life," Miss Turner said, "by a strange coincidence had its background in St. Marys County. When I was five years old my father came from the hill country of Virginia to take charge of the church at St. Marys City. I had never seen a real river, and could not imagine what a beach would look like.

"The beach sand at my feet was a wonder, and the pungent scent of the shore is something I have never forgotten. And when I found that the sand was sown with thousands of exquisite shells, I thought I had died and gone to heaven.

"I am one of Pocahontas' innumerable granddaughters many times removed, coming down through the Belling - Randolph-Cary - Harrison lines. I am also a straight descendant from Thomas Jefferson's sister, and from King Carter, whose daughter, Anne, married President Benjamin Harrison."

Danville Dry Election Test Slated July 17

Judge Leigh Fixes Date After 1,252 Petition for Rum Vote.

Danville, Va., May 15 (Spl.).—With the filing in the corporation court here today of a petition containing signatures of 1,252 qualified voters, requesting the holding of a local option election, Danville became the first Virginia city in which a test of strength under the new liquor-control law has been ordered.

Judge Henry Leigh, of corporation court, set July 17 as the election date. Under the liquor-control law an election can not be held less than 60 days after filing of the petition with the judge of the corporation court.

While the petition contains the names of many advocates of the liquor-control program, dry initiative resulted in its circulation, and a steering committee of prominent drys is arranging for a mass meeting to be held here in the near future.

An organization, which also will be headed by prominent citizens in favor of the establishment of a dispensary here and cooperation in the liquor-control program, is being formed, and a close contest that will be watched with interest throughout the State is predicted.

Byron Boom For Congress Race Started

State Legislator May Run If Lewis Offers for U. S. Senate.

Hagerstown, Md., May 15 (Spl.).—State Senator William D. Byron, of Williamsport, was being mentioned today as a possible candidate for Congress in the Sixth Congressional District, should Representative David J. Lewis decide to accept an invitation to become a candidate on the Democratic ticket for the U. S. Senate seat now held by Phillips Lee Goldsborough.

Senator Byron, it is understood, will not enter the race should Representative Lewis decide to again seek the nomination for Congress, which many of his friends feel that he will do rather than become embroiled in any primary contest.

Before there was any indication of a three-cornered race for the gubernatorial nomination on the Democratic side, Mr. Lewis had indicated that he desired to remain in Congress to complete several major undertakings which he has sponsored, one of which is the unemployment insurance measure, of which he is coauthor with Senator Wagner, of New York.

Republican leaders throughout western Maryland have been free to admit that it will be difficult to defeat Lewis for Congress. Lewis got a large Republican vote at the election two years ago, when he ran far ahead of most of his ticket.

From the Ritchie camp, it has been indicated that one of two men are favored as the U. S. Senate running mate with the Governor—Representative Lewis or Maj. Gen. Milton Reckford, adjutant general of Maryland. It is felt by these same political observers that with Mr. Lewis' reluctance to enter the Senate race with any one faction, Gen. Reckford will eventually be selected.

Son, Two Daughters Survive Kensingtno Woman.

Funeral services for Mrs. Anne Dawson Williams, 76, who died Monday at Columbia Hospital, will be held at 2 p. m. today from her home, 25 Montgomery avenue, Kensington, Md. Burial will be in Monacacy Cemetery, Beallsville, Md.

She was the widow of Arthur Williams and mother of the late J. Dawson Williams, former State Senator from Montgomery County. She was a communicant of Christ Episcopal Church.

Surviving are a son, John T. Williams, of Kensington; two daughters, Mrs. Evelyn D. Lee, San Diego, Calif., and Miss Virginia O. Williams, of Kensington; and four grandchildren and a great-grandson.

Private at Fort Myer Found Dead From Shot

A bullet through his head and an Army service revolver by his side, the body of Victor V. Spokes, 19, of Philadelphia, a private in Battery B of Sixteenth Field Artillery, was found in the barracks at Fort Myer yesterday.

Battery mates said Spokes, who had been stationed at the fort since December, 1932, had not seemed despondent. A board of inquiry immediately was called.

Virginians Greet Legal Liquor Sale

Thirsty Crowds Line Sidewalks Eager to Buy.

Popular Whisky Brand Offered at $1.65 a Fifth.

By Paul W. Ferris.

Richmond, May 15.—Legal liquor—the first in Virginia since 1916—went on sale here this afternoon, after crowds had hung around the stores in the rain all day waiting to make their first purchases. The first store opened at 2 o'clock, and did a brisk business all afternoon.

Two others—those expected to do the biggest business of the lot—opened just before dark, and one remained open until 10 p. m. to take care of thirsty customers that formed lines into the streets. Another opened in the Negro section, and the fifth will be ready for business tomorrow. In view of the expected rush, the Alcoholic Beverage Control Board announced that the stores would reserve no hours this week, but closing times would go into effect the first of next week.

Beer Revenue Encouraging.

While the board rushed preparation to open its stores, Uncle Sam was quietly assisting in eliminating bootleg competition, it became known today, with announcement that three sets of Federal revenue agents are now at work in the State, and one, operating from Richmond, has already gathered in five men, six stills, 1,500 gallons of whisky and 16,000 gallons of mash. Other units are operating out of Norfolk and Roanoke.

Meanwhile, too, beer tax collections for April reported thus far total $51,043.78, largest of any month since September, 1933, the first month under the 3.2 beer law. Total excise tax collections thus far are $338,741.18 and license tax collections, $65,761.45, making total beer revenue receipts $404,502.63. It now is considered certain that estimates of beer revenue will be made or exceeded. With May and June receipts yet to come in, the receipts are within $25,000 of the estimated income for the period, September, 1933, to June 30, 1934.

The stores are offering 280 different brands of wine, whisky, gin, rum, brandy and cordials at prices to the public declared to be the lowest in America.

Prices Set Low.

Virginia's first price list quotes the less expensive whiskies at from 10 to 45 cents less than elsewhere. There also is a wider variety of bottom-priced liquors than is available in other States. The board also offers straight whiskys in the lowest price ranges, a brand at $1 and one at $1.25 per fifth and 65 and 75 cents per pint.

A very popular straight whisky retails here for $1.65 a fifth and $1.05 a pint which in Pennsylvania sells at $1.95.

34 Indictments Are Returned At Martinsburg

Berkeley Jury Charges Four in Slaying of Charles Kees.

Martinsburg, W. Va., May 15 (Spl.).—A total of 34 felony indictments was returned by the Berkeley County grand jury here today.

Joe Baer, aged mountain resident, was indicted for the slaying of Charles Kees, a young neighbor, near the Bear home late in March.

Three other men of the same neighborhood were named in a joint indictment involving the same slaying, specifically charging them with conspiracy to suppress evidence and obstruct justice.

An indictment was returned against Floyd and Frank Walker, brothers, of near Front Royal, Va., charged with attempted armed robbery of the E. Glen Lewis store at Daresville, near here, and attack upon Mr. and Mrs. Lewis.

Officers said they had a confession from the brothers. The pair were put to rout by Mr. and Mrs. Lewis, who were called to the store when the burglar alarm went off in the early morning ten days ago. One of the brothers was wounded by a shot from Lewis' gun. Four indictments were returned against the pair.

Harry Stotler and Franklin Mellotte, of Hagerstown, Md., were indicted for the robbery of Angelo Robucci, a quarryman of this county, whom they were bringing to his home north of here in a taxicab some weeks ago. They were indicted jointly and separately.

Most of the other indictments were for thefts. There was one for criminal assault and one for forgery.

The grand jury returned a true bill upon every presentment. No single misdemeanor indictments were returned.

Corn-Hog Cut Pays County $105,000

Farmers in Jefferson Get Tentative List.

Charles Town, W. Va., May 15 (Spl.).—Tentative figures for the Jefferson County corn-hog production control have been issued by County Agent B. Heath Holden.

Farmers are taking 2,671.8 acres out of corn production this year, with a corn adjustment payment of $30,000. The average corn production in this county is 19,000 acres.

The average yearly hog production in Jefferson County in 1932 and 1933 was 23,000 hogs marketed. This was reduced by 7,000, with a tentative adjustment payment of $75,000. The total corn-hog adjustment payments, according to present figures, will be $105,000.

Edgar E. Gibson Buried.

Stephens City, Va., May 15 (Spl.). Funeral services were conducted this afternoon for Edgar Emery Gibson, 70, Frederick County farmer, who died Sunday night following an illness of some months.

Radio Waves and Ripples

PEGGY DAVIS,

blithe little star heard Sundays with the Princess Pat Players at 3:30 p. m., is a descendant of another Peggy Davis, who starred on the London stage. Peggy is also heard in leading parts on other broadcasts from Chicago.

THREE little boys who grew up to be radio announcers. . . Jim McGrath, Don Douglas and Sid Ten Eyck. . .are going to prance around the circus lot today. And they won't carry pails of water to the elephants, either. They are under N. B. C. orders to carry microphones.

Early this morning they were out arranging for interviews with performers and it's a safe bet that with Jim McGrath's ingenuity, you who twirl dials will hear from 2:15 p. m. on about how long the zebra's stripes are and how lonely the man on the flying trapeze is.

N. B. C. microphones will cover every feature of the 5-ring mammoth show . . . that is, every point that Jim McGrath thinks of after he finishes with the snake charmer.

* * * *

THE lady in the fable who wore a flannel nightgown under her dress lest she spend the night far from her Virginia backwoods home and the cosmopolitan ambassador's wife become sisters under the skin tomorrow within the muted halls of the White House.

It's all because Mrs. Roosevelt has invited a much bewildered group of native folk singers and fiddlers to transplant their spontaneous, early American rhythms to plush carpets for the benefit of White House guests. The small group of men and women whose music you will hear through N. B. C. facilities at 1:35 p. m. are all real descendants of earliest American settlers. Practically all of these people have never been 20 miles from home; and the excitement of playing for the President and the First Lady just about has them all a-dither. Most of them have wept real tears of joy.

Numbers to be heard will include "The Farmer's Curst Wife," "Hell Broke Loose in Georgia," "Jack, He Went a-Sailin'," "Lady of the Lake," "Fine Times at Our House," "Mississippi Sawyer," "Polly, Put the Kettle On," "Haste to the Wedding," all variously rendered with fiddle, banjo and the peculiar beauty of fine, untrained voices.

Could you by some supernatural gift mingle with these folk in their natural habitat . . . sit amongst their rude cabins, smell their food cooking, watch their babies squirm and absorb something of the calm of their existence . . . you would then understand why simple hearts turn to music . . . music about "weddin's" and "putting the kettle on".

THE natural skepticism of WJSV minds recently prevented a new radio find from crashing the air. It happened something like this:

A woman called at their studios and said her dying mother in Providence, R. I., wanted to hear her daughter sing "The Old Spinning Wheel," over the radio before she expired. But she was told it wasn't much of song to sing to a dying mother. So she suggested "Tell Mother I'll Be There." Listening to her story with the utmost courtesy, studio officials told her to come back at 5 o'clock. She never came back.

A quick check of addresses tore holes in the sad, sad story. The woman, according to our informant, looked rather bedraggled, had frowsy blonde hair, was plump and middle-aged. Then it occurred to Ted Church, WJSV's veteran remember of things, that the same woman had applied for a hearing before. Ted says she was running for Congress and had come to WJSV at the special behest of the Secretary of War. Only this time she claimed she was a cousin of Lady Astor.

JAPAN'S astute Ambassador, Hiroshi Saito, today will deny that such a thing as "The Monroe Doctrine of Japan" exists, in an interview with Lowell Thomas at 5:45 p. m. over WMAL. Thomas will be in New York, and Saito at the Press Building here.

It will be handled like a telephone conversation, with Thomas putting questions from New York and Saito answering them from the Washington studio.

Whitecaps.

WRC — International broadcast from Leipzig, 12:15 p. m.; Samuel Guy Inman, Pan-American authority, speaking on "Which Way South America?" 2:30 p. m.; Pappy, Ezra, Zeke and Elton going on the air from Washington during their show at the Earle, 4:30 p. m.; Edward Tomlinson offering history, romance and beauty of Argentina in his other Americas program, 9:30 p. m.

Hagerstown Aids Starving Family Crossing Country

Hagerstown, Md., May 15 (Spl.). After resting here for a few days at the Federal Transient Bureau, a family of six, who set out several months ago from San Pedro, Calif., found living in a coal car in railroad yards here yesterday, will be sent on to their destination, Camden, N. J.

The father is Robert Brooks, 41, a cripple, and his wife is nursing a fractured arm. Their four children range in age from 3 to 12.

A Norfolk & Western Railroad employe who saw them in a car on a passing train notified authorities here. They had gone without food for two days. They hope to reach the home of Brooks' sister in Camden.

S. K. Wolfensberger Dies in Martinsburg

Martinsburg, W. Va., May 15 (Spl.).—Silas Keifer Wolfensberger, 51, veteran Baltimore & Ohio Railway employe, and life-long resident of this city, died unexpectedly at his home here yesterday.

He was active in fraternal circles here, particularly with the Odd Fellows, for whom he served as treasurer for ten years. Surviving are the widow, one daughter, Mrs. Charles Rainey, and one sister, Mrs. Allen G. Wellinger.

Andrus Rites Bring Tribute

Harrisonburg Business Halts During Funeral of Popular Citizen.

Harrisonburg, Va., May 15 (Spl.). A sorrowing community this afternoon paid tribute to one of its most popular citizens as George E. Andrus, secretary of the Harrisonburg Chamber of Commerce, was laid to rest in Woodbine cemetery.

More than 50 business establishments were closed during the hour of the funeral.

Services were held at the First United Brethren Church with the pastor, Dr. James W. Wright, officiating. Directors of the Chamber of Commerce were active pallbearers. The honorary pallbearers included officers, former directors, and business men.

Secretary Andrus' death Sunday afternoon from a throat infection came as a great shock to the community. He was confined to his home several days after returning from the annual convention of the United States Chamber of Commerce at Washington.

Before assuming his post here four years ago, Mr. Andrus did newspaper work at Hopewell and New Market. He was president of the Rotary Club at the latter place. He also was employed on a Baltimore newspaper.

His widow and a small daughter survive.

Mrs. Annie R. Haines Dies at Charles Town

Charles Town, W. Va., May 15 (Spl.).—Mrs. Annie R. Haines, wife of Clayton L. Haines, former newspaper editor and member of the West Virginia Legislature, died here yesterday.

She is survived by her husband. Services will be held tomorrow, with interment in Edge Hill Cemetery here.

BLACKIE BEAR

By D. SAM COX

The Creek Folks Plan a Trip

After Hound Dog had gone back to the kitchen, Blackie filled his pipe again, and then he leaned back in his big chair and smoked and smoked and smoked. Every once in a while he would laugh a little and lick out his tongue. He certainly did seem to be enjoying himself, and Dr. Coon sat right still and wouldn't break in on his thoughts.

To Blackie's mind, this story of Hound Dog certainly did sound like something. What if Uncle Joe's dog should be Hound Dog's brother! Hound Dog would just tell his brother all about where he was born and about the time when Uncle Joe took him away from his mama, when he was so little he couldn't remember it, and how their mama had begged Uncle Joe not to take him away. Wouldn't Hound Dog and Uncle Joe's dog be happy, and wouldn't they be the greatest sort of friends, and wouldn't Uncle Joe's dog tell Hound Dog to just come in and help himself to anything he wanted?

All that is what Blackie was thinking while he sat there, smoking his pipe and not saying a word. He didn't tell any of them what he was thinking about, but he did ask Jocko Monkey to get both the guns down and oil and clean them all up. Then he asked Grandpa Bear if he would like to take a little trip down the country, where he could get as much honey as he wanted, and where the neighbors kept plenty of nice fat chickens.

Well, you ought to have seen Grandpa Bear lick out his big red tongue! He got up and turned a somersault, just to show how much he felt like doing just anything, and then he went and slapped Blackie on the back and said: "My son, I haven't felt so young in ten years. Yes, sir, I want to go, and I want you to give me plenty to do."

Just here Benny ran in from the kitchen and said: "Oh, Daddy, Jay Bird went away early this morning and he said tell you he would go down to Bear Creek before he comes back. I forgot to tell you."

Blackie got up and stretched, and said to Grandpa: "Well, I feel it in my bones that there's a good time waiting for us down on the creek, and since our frolics may make us lose a little sleep for a few nights, I think I'll go to bed."

"And the cover is turned down for a couple of children I know, too," said Bettie, as she threw her knitting into the basket and called the children in from the kitchen to get ready for bed.

Roland Mackenzie Qualifies at Philadelphia for U. S. Open Golf

District Star Has 36-Hole 151 Total

Scores One Over Par on Delayed Six Holes to Earn Berth.

Manages to Qualify by a Stroke in Eastern Pennsylvania Test.

PHILADELPHIA, Pa., May 15 (Spl.).—Roland Mackenzie is going to get another chance to make good on the famous golf course where he first sprung into prominence ten years ago. The 27-year-old Washington professional, representing Congressional Country Club, became the final qualifier from this district for the 1934 National Open championship at Merion by playing six holes in one-over-par figures at Huntingdon Valley today for a 3-hole total of 151.

Mackenzie had been granted permission to finish his qualifying trial today when darkness forced him and his playing companions, Perry Hall, of Gulph Mills, and Ray Raynor, of Woodbury, to suspend activities on the thirtieth hole of the required 36 in Monday's sectional test.

Hall needed six pars for a two-round total of 152, but missed the mark by a single stroke. Had the Gulph Mills amateur landed among the 152's, a play-off would have been necessary, for the final three places of 16 available among four players tied at that figure.

Fails to Finish Round.

Raynor decided not to come up from Woodbury for the final six holes, realizing that he would have to collect four birdies and two pars to hit the 152 mark.

Those who were saved the trouble of competing in a play-off when Hall failed to get his six pars were "Wild Bill" Mehlhorn, playing out of Louisville, Ky.; George Sayers, of Merion, and oJhnny Schuebel, who, together with Joe Brennan, is putting Oak Terrace on the golfing map in bold face type.

MacKenzie's unusual experience in the sectional trial for the open has revived interest in this former "boy wonder," who is out to attain heights in the professional field that were denied him as an amateur. Merion, where he first sprung into prominence, is the logical place for him to regain the high road to fame and fortune.

Dodgers Rout Jinx Of Mooney, Win 6-5

Overthrow Cardinals After 5 Innings of Subjection.

St. Louis, May 15 (AP).—After Jim Mooney had held them in almost complete submission for five innings, the Brooklyn Dodgers began to come to life and pulled out a 6-to-5 triumph over the Cardinals in the final game of their first Western invasion.

In the first five frames the Dodgers rapped Mooney freely, but could score only one run, while the Cards, urged on by a hitting spree by Jack Rothrock, counted five times against Ray Benge. Brooklyn scored twice in the sixth when Sam Leslie was hit by a pitched ball and Al Lopez, Jimmy Jordan and Lonnie Frey connected for singles. Trey put over the winning tallies with another outbrust in the eighth while relief pitchers Ray Lucas and Owen Carroll blanked the Cards with three hits in the last four innings.

Bi-State Diamonders Staging a Close Race

Martinsville, Va., May 15 (Spl.).—The race for first-half honors in the Bi-State Baseball League, playing under organized ball colors this year, is becoming unusually close as the six teams begin their third week's competitive play. Six games have been played by most of the clubs toward their 40-game first-half schedule.

With good hitting and good pitching, Fieldale is leading the league with six victories. Young, Voss and Stegall are performing midseason pitching to keep their club in the running.

3,000 Pupils Take Part in Field Day

CHARLOTTESVILLE, Va., May 15 (Spl.).—More than 3,000 pupils from public schools of Albemarle County braved rain today to compete in the annual rally day program on Lambeth Field, University of Virginia, an event to be the largest athletic venture for public schools ever attempted in the counties of Virginia. Spectators swelled the gathering to 5,000.

The pupils were divided into seven classes, so that every county pupil could have the opportunity of representing his or her school in some event.

Dodge ball remained the most popular contest, with 630 students electing this sport. Seventy-three teams were entered in this bracket; 46 teams of ten members each in the block relay division, while playground ball engaged 45 others.

In addition to the athletic events, there was a parade of students with perfect attendance for the session, and another parade of five-pointers.

Yankees Sell Lyn Lary to Red Sox

Rumors Rife Concerning Other Deals Calculated to Strengthen Clubs.

Hornsby Spikes Reports That Melillo Leaves Browns in Trade.

By Alan Gould.

NEW YORK, May 15 (AP).—The perfunctory business of lopping off rookie heads to bring major league rosters within the 23-player limit today was interrupted by the sale of Lyn Lary, much-sought Yankee infielder, to the Boston Red Sox and the evidence of frantic efforts otherwise by most American League managers to strengthen their clubs for the attack on New York's big pennant lead.

Following the apparent return to form of their expensive left-hander, Bob Grove, the Red Sox were willing to hand over approximately $20,000 in cash, besides a rookie infielder, Fred Miller, in exchange for Lary. The Yankees previously had offers for Lary from at least three other clubs, including the Detroit Tigers, but besides putting a stiff price on his release, Manager Joe McCarthy also was anxious to get a pitcher in any deal for the infielder's service.

Satisfied With Pitchers.

Apparently McCarthy is now satisfied that his pitching staff will do for the balance of the season for he's not only agreed to part with Lary, a $50,000 investment, but also announced the release on option of Charley Devens, former Harvard ace right-hander, to the Newark Internationals. Devens, ill most of the spring, performed so well last year with Newark and the Yankees that he was figured a likely starting performer in the big leagues this year.

Meanwhile, rumors were rife concerning pending deals calculated to fortify the champion Washington Senators, Detroit Tigers and Cleveland Indians in their pursuit of the Yankees, who threaten to make another runaway of the American League race. On the National League side of the fence, the staggering New York Giants, acting like anything but world champions, were reported dickering for Babe Herman, slugging outfielder of the Cubs and a former Brooklyn favorite.

Hornsby Spikes Rumors.

Rogers Hornsby, manager of the St. Louis Browns, spiked reports he would consider parting with his star second baseman, Oscar Melillo, in any deal, but Walter Johnson, pilot of the Indians, admitted he would like to get Myril Hoag, substitute outfielder of the Yankees, and Harry Davis, a first baseman owned by Detroit but now playing with Toledo. Johnson said he turned down a chance to get Frank Doljack, Tiger outfielder.

Since swapping infielders with Washington, Ralph Kress for Bob Boken, Manager Jimmy Dykes of the White Sox is sitting tight, "waiting for something to come along" that will bolster the tail-end Chicagoans.

Two major league landmarks, Joe Judge, of the Red Sox, and Burleigh Grimes, of the Cardinals, received unconditional releases in the general rush to reduce rosters to the player limit. Judge has spent 19 years in the majors and Grimes, last of the spit-ballers, had just started his nineteenth season.

Sent to Newark.

The Yankees' latest acquisition, Muller, who came up last season from Seattle, won't even have a chance to wear a New York uniform, for the time being. He joined Devens and Norman Kies, young backstop, on the list of players optioned to the Newark farm.

The Cubs released Pitcher Lynn Nelson to Atlanta; the Browns returned Pitcher Jim Weaver to the Newark Internationals and the Brooklyn Dodgers sold Phil Page, southpaw, to Kansas City and Outfielder Glenn Chapman to Albany, while the Detroit Tigers released Pitcher Steve Larkin to Toledo. Weaver did not stay in the minors long, however, for the Chicago Cub immediately bought him from Newark.

Harvey Leads Rippy by Stroke

Scores 77 in First Day of Qualifying Round at Chevy Chase.

Mason Gets 79 as 160 Slash in Rain; 200 Tee-Off Today.

J. W. HARVEY, Jr., of Manor, shot a 77 yesterday to take a 1-stroke lead at the end of the first day's qualifying round of the Chevy Chase Club invitation golf tournament.

The Manor 6-footer, who was beaten by Harry Pitt in the play-off for the Belle Haven invitation Medal, paced some 160 starters, the majority of whom had to slosh through a heavy afetrnoon rain. This morning 200 additional golfers, including such stars as Harry Pitt, Roger Peacock and Gene Vinson, will tee off.

Gets a Birdie.

Harvey scored a 40 on the first nine, and negotiated the incoming side in 37, 8 over par for the day. He had seven 5s, eight pars and one birdie. Harvey's birdie came on the longest hole on the course, the 587-yard eighth. Here he reached the carpet in three bols, and ran down a long putt for his 4.

Claude Rippy, public links sensation, who was in the Indian Spring invitation finals, had a brace of 39's to trail Harvey by a shot, while W. Beverly Mason, jr., the tall host club star, finished with 41, 38—79, to become the third golfer to crack 80 for the day. Mason had a chance to tie Rippy for second place, but 3-putted the home green.

Nice Chip Shots.

While the rain took its toll of prospective qualifiers, a dark horse in the person of Sam Harvey, little known entry from Argyle, scored a 39—41—80 to gain fourth place. The Argyle golfer later stated that this was his second best score of his golfing career, and admitted he was lucky to make it under such unfavorable conditions. Harvey had six 1-putt greens on the first nine, and four on the second — and, strange as it seems, never once used his putter. Employing a chipper, Sam Harvey showe dthe boys how to jump over the puddles of water on the green and into the elusive cup. On the eighteenth green he chipped hole high into the cup from off the green for his 5.

Bradley Burrows, municipal golfer, scored a 44—37—81, and 16-year-old Harvey Johnson, an 82. Charlie Cole, of Kenwood, got an 84. M. Parker Nolan, of Indian Spring, could do no better than 85. Among th efavorites who did not turn in scores were W. D. ("Dub") Fondren, of Augusta, Ga., and Craig McKee, Indian Spring champion, both of whom had trouble fathoming the fairways and greens. There were plenty of other good golfers who picked up.

Hartinsville Gets Two Cuban Baseball Players

Martinsville, Va., May 15 (Spl.). Miracles, a pitcher and Noval, an outfielder, both Cubans, have been sent to the Martinsville club by the St. Louis operated Greensboro club of the Piedmont League. The two men arrived last week.

Miracles and Noval, who speak English but slightly, were signed by a Cardinal scout last year in Cuba. They were then sent to Greensboro for tryouts, but later transferred to the local club for further seasoning. Miracles participated in Friday's game against Mayodan while Noval played in Saturday's contest against Danville.

Holtz Pushes LaSalle To Track Meet Victory

Cumberland, Md., May 15.—With John Holtz scoring 23 points to overshadow his chief rival, Jack Sheirer, LaSalle Institute defeated Hyndman (Pa.) High, 55 to 49, in a dual track and field meet at the Cumberland Fair Grounds.

The Institute sprinter won the 100, 220, 440 and discus throw, placed second in the shot-put and ran on the winning sprint relay team. Sheirer copped the shot-put and high jump and took second in the discus to account for 13 points.

The teams battled on even terms throughout the afternoon and with 11 of the 12 events completed LaSalle held a 50-to-49 margin.

Cubs Battered From Lead by Giants

Bow, 10-3, as Hudlin Hangs Up Fifth Victory; Ott Hits Seventh Homer.

CHICAGO, May 15 (AP).—The New York Giants today showed some of the form that carried them to the 1933 worlds championship as they wound up thetr first tour of the West with a smashing 10-to-3 victory over the Cubs.

The triumps couldn't lift the Giants out of fourth place in the standing, as they started a game and a half behind the St. Louis Cardinals, but it returned the Cubs to second place after a day at the head of the parade. The loss dropped them behind the idle Pittsburgh Pirates.

Seventh Homer for Ott.

After losing the first two games in Chicago, the Giants came back today with a 15-hit attack that polished off Charley Root in four innings and continued when Bud Tinning took the hill. Mel Ott provided the blow that resulted in Root's downfall when he pasted his seventh home run of the season with two mates on base in the fourth. Joe Moore also hit a Giant homer while Dolph Camille hit a futile four-bagger for the Cubs, his second of the series.

Meanwhile Carl Hubbell limited the Cubs to seven hits after weathering a bad first inning and chalked up his fifth mound victory of the season against two defeats. He fanned five and gave no walks although he brushed Chuck Klein with a pitched ball.

Turner Makes Pact With Griffith

Slugfests Will Open at Stadium as Soon as Commissioners Act.

PREXY CLARK GRIFFITH, of the Washington Ball Club, and Impresario Joe Turner, of wrestling fame, reached complete accord yesterday on the details of the promotion of boxing bouts at Griffith Stadium under Turner's guidance. Following a lengthy conference, it was announced that the first of the Turner-promoted fisticuffing fiestas would be presented on the earliest date granted by the Boxing Commission.

Absence from the city of two of the District Commissioners prevented the District heads from considering the rules and regulations presented yesterday by the boxing solons. They will be studied at a special meeting of the Commissioners Thursday morning. Under the circumstances, it is doubtful if the Boxing Commission will be ready to grant dates for boxing programs before next week, which would not allow Turner time to line up a card for May 28, the date he originally requested, even though the Boxing Commission should accede to his request.

Turner plans to scale his admissions from $1 up to a $2 top.

Nats Entrain For Tour of Midwest

Cronin Expects Pitchers to Hit Stride, Says Race Still Young.

Regular Hurlers Drill Here Today While Club Opposes Reds.

By Shirley L. Povich,
Sports Editor of The Post.

CINCINNATI - BOUND WITH THE NATS, May 15.—Manager Joe Cronin herded his Washington ball players on a Westward-bound train tonight, for an exhibition game with the Cincinnati Reds tomorrow, but the West won't really begin for the Nats until Thursday, when they move into Cleveland, where they have serious business.

This serious business of the Washington club is the result of their low estate in the American League's vital statistics, which reveal the Nats in fifth place, six games behind the flying Yankees and retreating rapidly toward the nether regions of the league.

But the Nats are headed back toward their happy hunting grounds of last year. It was in the West that Cronin's team won the pennant by bowling over the hinterland clubs on their best road showing in history. In his first year at the helm Cronin transformed a perennially poor road team into the best road club in the league, and it was in St. Louis, the graveyard of the pennant hopes of former Washington clubs, that the Nats ascended into the lead they held at the finish.

Race Hasn't Started Yet.

As Cronin attacked a slab of steak cut on the lines and general dimensions of home plate, shortly after the Nats' train left the station, he found time to express himself anent the general situation of the Nats:

"This pennant race hasn't half started yet. Why, last year on June 1 we were eight games behind the lead and there was less reason to believe we'd ever get up there. Then we struck our stride and look what happened.

"This team goes better in the West, anyway. It's one of those unexplainable things, like a pitcher losing the hop on his fast one when he feels as strong as ever. But for some reason we play better baseball out West.

"And our pitching's getting better all the time. I guess perhaps it's because there was a lot of room for improvement, but we haven't been giving the pitchers many runs to work with, and I know we're a hitting ball club. Whitehill, Weaver and Crowder don't figure to keep running into all those base hits; they're better pitchers than that. I think we're going to start winning some ball games right away."

Failed to Mention Fielding.

Pollyanna Joe neglected to say that the Nats have been fielding of late like a last-place outfit, with himself and Buddy Myer as the chief culprits. But that has all the ear-marks of a temporary condition. It is extremely un-Nat-ural when the Nats boot a ball game away in the field.

The regular corps of pitchers was left in Washington last night for a workout tomorrow morning at Griffith Stadium before proceeding to Cleveland. Cronin has delegated Bobby Burke and Ray Prim, his two second-flight southpaws, to work the game in Cincinnati tomorrow against the Reds, who are enjoying

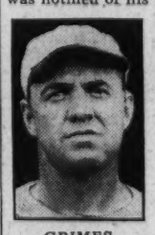
Grimes Released by Cardinals; Played With 6 Clubs Since 1918

ST. LOUIS, May 15 (AP).—Burleigh Grimes, the last of the major league spitball pitchers, was notified of his unconditional release today by President Sam Breadon of the Cardinals.



GRIMES.

Grimes, who performed the major duty in winning the world series in 1931 for the Cardinals, had been credited with two victories this year, both in a relief role and on successive days.

The release of Grimes, who will be 41 in August, was to get within the player limit of 23 by midnight tonight, Breadon said. His release will enable the club to keep Francis Healey, recently obtained from the Giants, as third-string catcher.

Since 1931, when he won 17 games for the Cardinals and lost only nine, the stubble-bearded veteran has not done so well. The Cardinals traded him to the Chicago Cubs, but he returned to the Red Birds last year as a free agent. Last year he won only three games while losing seven.

While the Grimes finances are said to be such that the wolf can't even be heard howling in the distance, the old campaigner is understood to be anxious to join another major league team. He is not interested, however, in minor league offers, and plans to retire to his well-equipped farm at New Haven, Mo., when his big league days are over.

Since entering the National League with the Pirates in 1918, Grimes has played with six teams —all of them but the Phillies and Reds. He won 268 games and lost 208 for an average of .572. He has been in four world series, winning three games and losing four.

General A. Shows Form Reversal in Victory as Jamaica Opening Meet Ends

The Heathen Captures Place

Our Reigh Accounts for First Purse Over Jabakheta.

Session Is Voted Most Successful Since Boom Days.

JAMAICA RACE TRACK, May 15 (AP).—Despite rainy weather and a mediocre card, a good-sized crowd visited the home of the Metropolitan Jockey Club as the first New York meeting under the New Deal came to a close. All hands voted this the most successful opening session since predepression days. The return of open betting was enough to offset such adversities as a lack of quantity and quality in a majority of the fields which made up the programs and the tardy arrival of seasonable weather.

Another featureless card was offered today, with the second race, a 6-furlong dash for platers 3 years old and upward attracting the most interesting field. James Kelly's General A., despite a poor effort last Saturday, when he was heavily played, suddenly regained his best form with a switch in jockeys from Decamillas to Sammy Renick, and scored in little more than a gallop by 4 lengths.

The Heathen Runs Second.

The betting fraternity disregarded the General's last race and made him a slight choice over The Heathen at 3 to 2. The Heathen was just as easily second, another 4 lengths before Mareve. General A. ran the distance in 1:12 4-5 over a good track.

The Heathen rushed into the lead but General A. quickly overtook the aged son of Donnacona and drew away with ease from the head of the stretch home. The Heathen had scant opposition for the place.

Racing through a fine rain as if much superior to nine other juvenile maidens, Our Reigh, 7-to-5 favorite, accounted for the first purse in hollow fashion. The son of Reigh Count—Anita Peabody took an early lead and increased his lead at every pole, scoring by five lengths in the good time of 0:59 3-5. Jobakheta was always next best, leading Igraine to the wire by six lengths to gain the place.

Dear Al: Belmont Park, May 15.

After a one-day stand over at the other track, Bennings, Inc., hustled over here tonight in time to drag out the mud books and try to separate this beautiful course from a few winners. To a race fan who has spent his career on mutuel tracks, the open betting hereabouts is confusing. However, you have only to believe you are in a bookmaking parlor back home and you soon get the knack of it. One improvement over the mutuels is the fact that when you bet a horse at 5 to 1 you know you are going to get 5 to 1. Many times down in Maryland, I have wagered on the displayed odds of 5 to 1 and pictured myself buying a suit of clothes, only to have a wad of come-back money or a plunging bet knock my horse down to 6 to 5; and I end up buying a handkerchief.

BILL.

First race—Stone Martin will find a soft course under his ancient hoofs tomorrow and although he tackles an excellent field, I believe he can get home first. Night Sprite was in rare form at Jamaica and will be ready if the top fellow makes mistakes. Pomponius likes the mud and is dangerous.

Second race—Rocky Run would have lost at Pimlico had Battleship stayed up on the last jump. However, the veteran hunter was making his first start on a race track course. He might improve enough with light weight tomorrow to lead Royal Falcon and Arch Light to the finish line.

Third race—Forever Young will draw Coucci for the saddle work, and, despite the fact that he has been assigned top weight, he should account for this purse. No Saint and Whoa Back are the best of the others.

Fourth race—This is one of the toughest picking assignments of the year. If the full list of overnight entries goes, a lot will depend on racing luck. The prospect of a muddy track also makes an accurate line on the field more difficult. Sergeant Byrne, Bonanza and Okapi appear best to me.

Fifth race—Nankin would have beaten a fair field at Pimlico last week except for running out at the turn. Has plenty of speed and has worked well. Mock Turtle and Never Change for the other awards.

Sixth race—Kievex displayed powerful form last week and is another Maryland horse that must be watched. Anarchy, stablemate of Cavalcade, and Speedmore to take care of the others.

Chart of Jamaica Races

MAJORT	118	4	8	10	10	10	10	Rose	40-1	15-1	6-1

OUR REIGH, showing unusual speed, was sent to the front with a rush soon after the start, drew away around turn, and was only galloping at end. JOBAKHETA followed pace and was next best. IGRAINE was hustled along from the start and ran a fair race. SECOND GUESS ran good race under weak handling. BETOKEN saved ground on turn.

SECOND RACE—Six furlongs. Purse, $1,000; claiming; price, $2,000. For 3-year-olds and upward. Start good. Won easily; place, same. Went to post at 3:04. Off at 3:08½. Winner, James Kelly's br. h. (6), by General Thatcher—Annagh. Trained by L. Williams. Value to winner, $750; second, $150; third, $75; fourth, $25. Time, 1:12 4-5.

FLOWERY	108	6	6	6	6	6	6	Pascuma	60-1	20-1	8-1

GENERAL A, showing startling improvement over recent race, quickly raced THE HEATHEN into submission, drew away easily on turn, and won under stout restraint. THE HEATHEN had plenty of speed, but was no match for the winner. MAREVE was hard ridden from the start. HAPPY SCOT was never able to improve his position. OUR ONE had early speed.

WEATHER, RAINING. TRACK, SLOPPY.

THIRD RACE—Six furlongs. Purse, $1,000. The Fulton. For 3-year-old maidens. Start good. Won driving; place, same. Went to post at 3:35. Off at 3:37. Winner, Mrs. John Hay Whitney's ch. c. (3), by Peter Pan—Wasp. Trained by W. J. Norton. Value to winner $750; second, $150; third, $75; fourth, $25. Time, 1:13 2-5.

PEBBLE STONE	110	5	7	7	7	7	7	Pas'ma	100-1	40-1	12-1

WHITE BIRD broke running, displayed keen speed in the going, saved ground all the way and stood long drive gamely. JOHN'S BIRTHDAY moved up gamely around the turn, closed fast, and was nearing winner down. BLACK FALCON slipped through on inside and just failed to get up. WILD REIGH held on well. WHITE CLOUD showed early speed.

FOURTH RACE—One mile and 70 yards. Purse, $1,000; claiming prices, $1,500 to $1,200. For 4-year-olds and up (nonwinners since April 21). Start good. Won driving; place, easily. Went to post at 3:56. Off at 3:59. Winner, G. C. Winfrey's b. g. (5), by Pennant—Perhaps So. Trained by owner. Value to winner, $750; second, $150; third, $75; fourth, $25. Time, 1:45 4-5.

Grace Bunting Hagerstown Winner

Wins Opening Feature; Riders Ambrose and Guither in Fight.

HAGERSTOWN, Md., May 15 (Spl.).—A fist fight between Jockeys Eddie Ambrose and Bob Gaither, which led to the pair's suspension for the remainder of the meeting, and a heavy rain that turned the track into a quagmire, marred the opening of the Hagerstown Fair Association's 10-day racing meet today. Despite the unfavorable weather a throng of several thousand fans was on hand to welcome the return of the thoroughbreds.

The dispute between Ambrose and Gaither followed the third race which was won by Gaither, who had the mount on usta Teacher. Ambrose, who finished a close second with Rollic, claimed a foul, but his protest was disallowed by the stewards.

Fight in Jockey's Room.

A scene in the jockeys' room followed with no appreciable amount of damage to either rider, with the exception of the disciplinary measure invoked by the stewards.

Grace Bunting captured the Harry E. Bester Memorial race, feature of the opening day card, and rewarded its backers with $19.50 for a $2 investment. The horse broke on top and led all the way. Serenabit was second, with Curling third. Light Action fell at the far turn, but ockey Feltner slipped off and escaped injury.

Dr. C. H. Conley, of Frederick, Md., Democratic candidate for Governor, presented the trophy put up by General Manager Harold F. Bester in honor of his father, to H. C. Vaughan, owner of Grace Bunting.

Morton and Doak Named Judges for Horse Show

Richmond, May 15 (AP).—Ray Morton, of Washington, and Maj. Sloan Doak, of Ridgewood, Md., will be judges of the two-day Deep Run Hunt Club horse show here May 25 and 26.

This announcement was made today by Robert H. Carter, of the committee arranging the club's spring show.

Cronin Confident As Nats Head West

all the comforts of the National League cellar during the present heat wave.

Taking advantage of excursion rates, Boss Clark Griffith yesterday shipped three of his rookies to distant points and transferred Johnny Kerr to a coach's status in paring the team down to the 23-player limit.

Two Head for Chattanooga.

After being shuttled back and forth between Chattanooga and Albany, Rookie Catcher Elmer Klumpp finally landed with Chattanooga, which put in a last-minute bid for his services after declining with thanks. Klumpp will be back in September when the lid is off on the player limit.

A trainmate with Klumpp on the Chattanooga special last night was Ed Linke, the Chicago fat boy, whose pitching in the general direction of the plate had been far too general and who goes back to the Lookouts for more seasoning. To Albany, another of Griff's farms, went Rookie Pitcher Mark Filley, who goes out of the big leagues with a record of having hurled exactly one-third of an inning.

Conspicuously absent from the Nats' hegira West is Luke Sewell who stayed in Washington to nurse his injured finger. He may join the team in New York for the crucial May 30 double-header.

Stocks Crawl Up 1.5 as Sales Volume Drops

Traders Remain Cautious; Turnover Total Cut to 892,720 Shares.

New York, May 15 (AP).—Stocks registered slow recovery in quiet trading today, as markets took on a brighter tone following a prolonged decline.

A cautious attitude remained in evidence. While the share market crept forward, continuing the abrupt turn upward in late trading of the preceding session, volume on the New York Stock Exchange dropped to 892,720 shares, the smallest since May 4.

Liquidation dried up, but traders, big and little, felt more comfortable on the sidelines pending a clearer view of business prospects and effects of Federal control of the exchange.

Support From Commodities.

Stocks got fair support from commodities, for grains, cotton, rubber and other actively traded staples scored moderate gains. Wheat closed more than a cent a bushel higher and cotton up 35 to 45 cents a bale.

Net gains of fractions to a point or more were recorded for such active issues as American Telephone, U. S. Steel common, Santa Fe, New York Central, Consolidated Gas, Chrysler, General Motors, J. I. Case and General Electric. The price average of 90 stocks closed 1.5 points higher, at 76.5, the best gain in a week.

American Can, which finished a point lower, was outstanding among the few issues which went counter to the main movement. Speculative buying was attracted to Armour of Illinois shares on fresh rumors the new recapitalization plan was about completed, the preferred spurting for a gain of more than 4 points.

Hesitancy of Traders.

Hesitancy of traders in following the rally was ascribed in part to uncertainty over outcome of the American Telephone & Telegraph dividend meeting tomorrow. American Telephone extended its recovery more than a point but reacted to lose most of the gain before the finish.

Action of the market itself, rather than outside news, furnished trading cues. Resistance offered to selling in the preceding session, particularly by the rails, encouraged further short-covering and a little timid buying.

Administration efforts to promote business recovery with a Nation-wide residential building and home renovation campaign directed attention to some building supply shares, but did seem to affect the general market appreciably.

The day's trade news afforded scant encouragement for the immediate future. Steel scrap prices continued to weaken, which was accepted as foreshadowing a letdown in steel operations, and complaints were heard of slackening tendencies in some other lines.

Optimistic market commentators argued the market, on its decline since April 20, had discounted seasonal recession in business as well as Federal stock exchange control. But even stanch bulls conceded the market was badly in need of a stimulant and looked fully toward Washington.

Rohey's Review

Finance Economics Business

Too Great Hopes Should Not Be Held for Home Renovation Campaign; Building Costs Are Far Out of Line With Other Prices.

By Ralph West Rohey.

Great hopes, obviously, are held by the Administration for the economic and social possibilities of the home renovation campaign. From the preliminary bits of evidence it appears, too, that an attempt will be made to instill into the minds of the public great hopes that this plan will give another spurt to business, will go far toward solving the unemployment problem by helping the heavy industries, and will make a major contribution to "the health and safety of the people" through repairing and modernizing those of our homes that are "in decadent condition and not fit for human habitation."

We are, in other words, if one may judge from the early signs, faced with another Nation-wide ballyhoo campaign—a campaign that will make it a patriotic duty for everyone to bring his home "up to the standard of the times." Estimates of the total amount that could be spent in this direction run into the billions, because, so we are told, the vast majority of the homes in the country are in need of repairs. There is, I should think, little room to doubt such a conclusion.

Houses in Need of Repair Is a Common Condition.

Even in periods of prosperity a large proportion of our homes are in need of repair. With a reasonably conservative definition of "in need of repair," I should think the total might run to 50 per cent. If one broadens his definition to include any home that is not "up to the standard of the times," the percentage necessarily would be much higher After all, it is said that there are more Ford cars than bathtubs in this country.

This, however, largely is beside the point. The important thing is whether the repairs can be made. This, it seems to me, depends upon two things: First, whether the owner has, or can get, the funds; secondly, whether prices are so high that the cost more than outweights the possible benefits in the mind of the owner.

Whether the owner has the funds depends upon his accumulated savings. Obviously the Administration's plan does not touch this in any particular, and by and large the public has much less than it did in, say, 1930-1929.

Whether the owner can get the funds should depend upon his earnings, since it is this that will determine whether he can carry the loan and amortize it at a reasonable rate. Theoretically the current scheme will not help in this particular. Practically, however, it may enable homeowners to get more funds by lowering the standards of credit. This will depend primarily upon the administration of the plan.

Building Costs Are Far Out Of Line With Other Prices.

In regard to prices, the situation definitely is against the plan. In the first place building materials from 1929 to their low point, February, 1933, declined only 27 per cent as contrasted with 61 per cent in the case of farm products, 46 per cent in the case of foods, and 37 per cent for all commodities. Building wages also were remarkably rigid. Even at the low, therefore, building costs were far out of line with the rest of the economy.

This, however, is only part of the story. Between February, 1933, and February, 1934, the last figures I have, the cost of lumber advanced 55 per cent, paint materials 17 per cent, brick and tile 16 per cent and cement 15 per cent. For the entire group of building materials covered by the Bureau of Labor Statistics, prices as of April 28 were only 9 per cent lower than in 1929, as contrasted with farm products being 44 per cent lower, foods being 33 per cent lower, and all commodities being 23 per cent lower. In other words, building costs still are greatly out of line with other prices.

None of this, of course, means that the home renovation campaign will not be successful to a degree. With enough ballyhoo and liberal enough credit standards it is probable that the plan could result in considerable spending. I do not believe, however, that the total is going to be $1,500,000,000 between now and the end of the year.

Bonds M[illegible] Four-T[illegible] In Dull Trading

First Gain Since May 4; Transfers Decrease to $11,077,000.

New York, May 15 (AP).—There was a reversal of sentiment in the bond market today and, despite an exceptionally small volume of transactions, secondary issues scored advances of 1 to 3 or more points.

The average for 60 domestic corporate loans held its first gain since May 4, closing up four-tenths of a point at 85.4.

Transfers, however, totaled only $11,077,000, par value, which was around the lowest level of the month thus far.

Federal Spending Plan.

While the labor situation, especially in the steel industry, was causing some concern, attention was attracted to new spending plans of the Government which are expected to aid various industries.

The rally in stocks also apparently was a factor in the recovery of many semi-speculative liens.

The rails made the best showing of the day. Among the most noticeable gainers in this group were issues of Denver & Rio Grande, Erie, Great Northern, Illinois Central, M-K-T, Missouri Pacific, N. Y. Central, Nickel Plate, New Haven, Alleghany Corporation, Baltimore & Ohio, Chicago Great Western, St. Paul, Chicago & North Western, Pennsylvania, Pere Marquette, Frisco, Southern Pacific, Southern and Western Maryland. Chicago & North Western refunding 5s held an advance of 8½ points.

Prime Groups Steady.

Although the prime investment groups were somewhat neglected, they maintained a steady tone.

The most substantial gainers among the utilities and industrials included bonds of Hudson Coal, International Paper, International Telephone, McCrory, McKesson, American & Foreign Power, American Rolling Mill, American Water Works, Certain-teed, Philadelphia Reading Coal & Iron, United Drug, U. S. Rubber and Warner Bros.

Further easing tendencies were shown by U. S. Government Securities, but the turnover in this department amounted to only about $1,600,000.

Foreign obligations were generally dull and mildly irregular. Some issues of Germany were fairly firm, but loans of Poland were down as much as 7¾ points. The Argentines were also heavy.

Curb's Prices Driven Higher Under Buying

General Advances Range Up to 1 Point; Sales, 149,000 Shares.

New York, May 15 (AP).—Quiet buying resulted in a further recovery in curb prices today. The list finished with general advances ranging from fractions to around a point. Wider gains were recorded among specialty shares.

Oils and utilities rose moderately. Alcohols were fairly firm, while metals were quiet and narrow. Trading was slow throughout the session, and the advance gradual.

Sherwin Williams was a firm feature, closing at 66¾, up 4¾ points. The advance here and in Pittsburgh Plate Glass, which climbed more than 3 points, was associated with the President's program for residential construction. A. O. Smith and Schiff Co. ended around 2 higher.

Stocks finishing major fractions to a point or so above yesterday's close included Aluminum Co. of America, American Gas & Electric, Electric Bond & Share, International Petroleum, Imperial Oil, Hiram Walker, Distillers Corporation-Seagrams, Fisk Rubber and Dow Chemical.

Transfers approximated only 149,000 shares, compared with 285,000 Monday.

Foreign Markets.

(Associated Press.)

London—A more cheerful tone prevailed on the stock market today. Transatlantic issues rallied, but closed under their best, and aircraft and rubber schares met with good support. Home rails were a feature of the session on traffic anticipations. Otherwise price movements were narrow, and the market closed quiet.

Paris—Uncertainty in Wall street and weakness in other markets depressed prices on the bourse, rentes and French stocks declining. South African gold-mining shares were strong. The closing was heavy.

Berlin—Resumption of transfer negotiations in the afternoon stimulated prices on the boerse throughout, and buying orders increased. The market closed more cheerfully.

N.Y. Central Cuts Deficit to $5,412,513

North American Company Earns $9,678,832 on Common Stock.

New York, May 15 (AP).—The annual report of the New York Central Railroad, made public today, shows an income deficit of $5,412,513 after charges for depreciation and retirements aggregating $14,639,373, compared with a deficit of $18,256,400 in 1932.

Operating revenues were $283,341,102, a decrease of $10,995,067 from the previous year and net railway operating income totaled $33,269,162, an increase of $12,456,175. Revenue freight handled amounted to 91,248,346 tons, an increase of 4,925,500 tons, and passengers carried numbered 45,018,512, a decrease of 5,762,676.

The consolidated income statement of the North American Co. and subsidiaries, for the 12 months ended March 31, shows $9,678,832 earned for the common stock after all charges, reserves and preferred dividends, equal to $1.19 a share on the average number of shares outstanding.

This is a decrease of more than 20 per cent from the $12,144,829 earned in the 12 months ended March 31, 1933, which was equal to $1.63 a common share, and was accounted for by a reduction in dividends received from nonsubsidiary companies, according to a statement issued to stockholders by J. F. Fogarty, president.

Weston Electrical Instrument Co. and subsidiaries report net profit in the first quarter of $43,979 equal to 16 cents a common share after provision for Class "A" stock dividends. This compares with a net loss of $47,298 in the first quarter of 1933.

Pacific Gas & Electric Co. today reported net profit for the first three months of the year amounting to $3,992,100, after all charges, but before dividends, a decrease of $1,291,502 from the corresponding period of 1933. After preferred dividends, the company earned 31 cents a common share, compared with 52 cents in the first quarter of 1933.

Net income of Reading Co. for the first quarter amounted to $2,485,225 after charges, equal to $1.27 a common share after provision for preferred dividends. This compares with new income of $288,817 in the first quarter of 1933, equal to 1 cent a common share.

U. S. Distributing Corporation, a subsidiary of the Pittston Co., reports consolidated net profit of $95,798 for the March quarter, equivalent to 95 cents a share on the 7 per cent preferred stock, compared with net loss of $42,708 in the first quarter last year.

Philip Morris & Co., Ltd., Inc., reports, for the fiscal year ended March 31, net profit of $503,661, equal to $1.21 a share on the capital stock. In the previous year the profit was $417,957, or $1 a share.

Creole Petroleum Corporation and affiliated companies report 1933 net profit of $4,106,099, equivalent to 59 cents a share on the capital stock, compared with $2,075,463, or 30 cents a share in 1932.

Eugene Holman has been elected president, succeeding E. J. Sadler. E. L. Estabrook was named vice president to succeed Holman and takes Sadler's place on the board.

Commodity Purchasing Policy

New York, May 15.—Purchasing recommendations as to various important commodities have been made by the Standard Statistics Co., of New York, as follows:

Barley—Caution is advocated in buying beyond nearby needs.

Brick—Protection against moderate forward requirements is suggested.

Burlap—Seasonal needs should be protected. Further purchases are advised only on price weakness.

Butter—Hand-to-mouth buying policies should be adhered to.

Cement—There is little incentive to buy ahead.

Cheese—Seasonal price factors dictate against forward purchases.

Coal, anthracite—Gradual accumulation of next season's requirements may be started now.

Coal, bituminous—It is advisable to cover needs well ahead.

Cocoa—Coverage of several months' forward needs is advocated.

Coffee—Buying on market weakness only is advised.

Copper—Needs six months ahead should be protected.

Corn—Accumulation against forward requirements is unnecessary.

Eggs—Buying need not extend beyond nearby requirements.

Flour—Pending clarification of wheat supply prospects, haste in anticipating flour needs is not advised.

Fuel oil—Industrial needs should be covered well in advance.

Gasoline—Supplies sufficient for the next few months should be on hand.

Hides—There is no need to extend purchases beyond current requirements.

Hogs—Prices are expected to show more strength than weakness during coming months.

Lard — Buying against future needs is suggested during weak markets.

Lead—Maintenance of several months' supplies is advocated.

Linseed Oil—Moderate advance needs should be covered.

Lubricating Oil—Seasonal requirements should be protected.

Lumber—Maintenance of several months' supplies is still advisable.

Oats—Advance purchases are not recommended.

Paper — Three months' supply should be maintained.

Paraffin—Further buying should await reactions.

Pig Iron—There is little necessity for making advance commitments.

Rayon, cellulose acetate — No more than immediate requirements need be protected.

Rayon, viscose—Three months' forward requirements on knitting yarns should be covered, but advance purchases of weaving yarns are not recommended.

Rosin—Continue to await setbacks in covering forward requirements.

Rubber—On minor recessions, requirements several months ahead should be protected.

Rye—As long as imports are unrestricted, large advance accumulations are unnecessary.

Scrap Steel—Forward buying is not advised.

Silk—On further price declines, requirements for several months should be bought.

Steel—There is no necessity for purchasing more than going requirements.

Sugar—Supplies sufficient to satisfy two or three months' needs are advised.

Tin—Requirements for three or four months should be covered.

Turpentine — Needs several months in advance should be protected. Only on price weakness should buying be extended.

Wheat—During the current period of crop scares, it is advisable to adopt a cautious policy.

Wool—Advance accumulation of supplies is not advised.

Zinc—It appears advisable to maintain several months' needs on hand.

Wool Markets.

Boston, May 15 (A.P.).—(U. S. Department of Agriculture.)—Several inquiries were recently received on strictly combing 4as and 50s, ¼ blood territory wool. Bids were mostly around 68c, secured basis, but these offers were not accepted by the larger houses offering territory wool. The bulk of the wool of this grade in territory lines was held at around 71@73, secured basis. Even though sales were not being closed, odd lots were apparently obtainable at around 69, because of the generally very slow demand.

Goods Markets.

New York, May 15 (A.P.).—Silk and rayon Greige goods prices have been maintained by the mills during the first week of the mill shutdown and the start of summer buying activities. Converters began to place contracts for fall delivery.

Printed sheers and printed pure dye silks appeared in better volume, but the raw silk market was quiet with spot prices unchanged.

Rayon yarn demand was limited to small lots of knitting numbers. Weaving and worsted showed little activity. Surplus continues quiet.

Gray cotton goods markets were quiet and prices unchanged. Finished goods and cotton garment markets were drawing on the closing days on many previously placed contracts. Prices were nominal to unchanged on most lines of staple fabrics.

Wheat Values Rise Again on Drought Ruin

Damage to Crops Increases Swiftly; Corn and Oats Climb.

Chicago, May 15 (AP).—Influenced by reports that a large part of drought-stricken crops Northwest were almost at the point of collapse, wheat prices today scored sharp gains.

At the maximum, the wheat market was up 2⅛ cents a bushel overnight, but profit-taking caused some reaction. Field observers said that with every day of continued lack of moisture the damage to spring wheat would become increasingly severe, and that in many places complete failure of plant life appeared probable in three to ten days.

Wheat closed firm, 1 to 1½ cents above yesterday's finish; corn ½ to ⅞ up, oats 1 to 1¼ advanced, and provisions showing a rise of 10 cents.

Starts the Movement

Upturns of wheat quotations started the moment that trading began. Throughout the day, the market was ruled not only by persistent drought in spring wheat States and in Canada but also by assertions from crop experts that more damage to domestic winter wheat Southwest would result should high temperatures come again before additional rains were received. Meanwhile, no moisture relief in the spring wheat area was indicated by any official forecast.

Notable absence of selling pressure rather than unusual activity on the buying side characterized the Chicago wheat market. A feature which attracted considerable notice was that Liverpool reported a strong and advancing tendency in the market there.

The reason given was scarcity of sellers, with continuance of drought advices from southeastern Europe, as well as from the spring crop belt in North America.

Floating Supply Decreased.

It was also pointed out that although stocks of wheat in Great Britain were sufficient for nearby requirements the floating supply to Europe had now decreased to the low figure of 29,200,000 bushels, compared with 41,176,000 a year ago.

Corn and oats were helped by wheat strength. Predictions were current that scantiness of receipts of corn would be intensified rather than lessened.

Provisions responded to upturns of grain values and to evidence of improved export demand for lard.

Latin America Is Chief Buyer Of U.S. Tires

The outstanding importance of Latin-American markets as outlets for American automobile tires is revealed in a study just completed by the Commerce Department's leather-rubber-shoe division.

Tire exports from the United States to that area during 1933, totaling 298,552 units, represented 40 per cent of the total 749,004 units imported during that period. The United Kingdom ranked second as a source of imports by supplying 23 per cent. Canada, Italy, France and Germany followed in the order named.

Approximately 96 per cent of the total automotive registration of Latin America is in nine countries—Argentina, Brazil, Chile, Colombia, Cuba, Mexico, Peru, Uruguay and Venezuela. The tire trade of these countries, therefore, would represent about that proportion of the total tire business in the entire Latin-American area.

The tire export trade of the principal tire manufacturing countries improved in Brazil, Chile, Colombia, Peru and Uruguay during 1933 but declined in Argentina, Cuba, Mexico and Venezuela. Of the countries named, Argentina alone has a tire manufacturing industry of sufficient size to care for an appreciable portion of its requirements. Automobile registration figures indicate that Argentina should require approximately 750,000 automobile tires annually for replacement. Imports into Argentina from all countries amounted to only 147,647 units in 1933 and 170,149 units in 1932.

Baltimore Grain Prices.

Baltimore, May 15.—WHEAT—Shipments from elevators, 10,406 bushels. Stock in elevators, 688,003 bushels. Opening prices: No. 2 red winter, garlicky, spot, domestic, 86½; May delivery, domestic, 86½. Receipts of wheat from nearby sections running light, and demand for No. 2 red winter variety, indifferent. Off grades especially hard to move.

CORN—Receipts, 2,747 bushels by car. Shipments from elevators, 2,198 bushels. Stock in elevators, 11,073 bushels. Receipts of corn from the nearby sections have recently been running freer. For yellow and mixed-colored mixed there is a fair domestic demand. Cob corn quoted at 3.60@3.85 per barrel for carloads prime nearby yellow on spot. Offerings ample for present needs. Demand limited. No. 2 yellow corn (old) arriving here by car billed at 65@66 per bushel with transit privilege.

OATS—Receipts, 1,099 bushels by car. Shipments from elevators, 1,156 bushels. Stock in elevators, 40,245 bushels. Supplies of oats show some increase here. Demand is fair in a jobbing way. Choice, heavyweight oats common and good premiums over the average run and lighter weights. No. 2 white oats, 49@54 per bushel, as to weight and location.

RYE—Nominal sales of oats by the local trade, according to the call, the local grade, according there on track there is an additional charge of 1½ cents per bushel for storage and elevation, which is paid by the buyer.

RYE—Shipments from elevators, 162 bushels. Stock in elevators, 288,135 bushels.

HAY—General hay market is quiet, timothy ample. On good timothy and clover mixed prices range from 12.00 to 14.00 per ton, the poorer grades of hay are hard to sell at any price. Market irregular on everything below 3 timothy.

Unified Voice Found Lacking In Business

Credit Chief Declares Policy of Profit Elimination Is Trade Suicide.

It is a severe indictment against business men that, throughout the first year of the New Deal, they have been unable to speak with a unified voice, Henry H. Heimann, executive manager of the National Association of Credit Men and until recently director of the U. S. Shipping Board Bureau, declared yesterday.

"The New Deal is of vital importance to business," he pointed out. "Fundamentally, it is of great importance that any legislation for business or new approach to our economic problem take into consideration the welfare of business.

"Civilization moves forward as business prospers because earnings are the foundation of economic progress. The elimination of the profit motive in business is suicidal theory; an agonizing dream resulting from an improper economic digestion.

"Reasonable return on a business investment needs no apology. Unreasonable return never survives competition. We hold those truths to be self evident. Business men must face the facts and have the courage to strike hard for principles we know are right.

"It is a severe indictment against business men that, throughout the New Deal, they have been unable to speak with a unified voice. Where can one turn to hear what business has to say? It is idle to complain of a lack of consideration for business when business interests can not agree among themselves as to their own representation. There is no continuity of business policy, no unified program, no coordinated planning."

Trade Failures Fall in Week; Far Below '33

New York, May 15.—Business failures for the first week of the month were fewer in number than the total for the week preceding.

Reports to Dun & Bradstreet, Inc., show 246 defaults in the United States for the week ended May 3, against 262 and 265, respectively, in the two preceding weeks.

In the same week of last year, there were 460 failures, while two years ago the number was 601. The comparison with the two preceding years shows the change for the better that has taken place since that time.

Improvement Noted.

There also has been an improvement as the current year has progressed. In the latest week, the decline from a year ago was equivalent to 46.5 per cent; for the four months of 1934 there has been a reduction of 50.2 per cent from the number reported in the same time for 1933.

Fewer failures occurred in the West and for the Pacific Coast States during the past week than for the week before, but in the East and South the number was unchanged.

Compared with a year ago, the reduction in the number was very large in the East and the South.

West's Total Drops.

For the West and Pacific Coast States quite a reduction also appeared. Failures where the liabilities in each instance amounted to $5,000 and over numbered 140 in the latest week, against 149 last week and 291 a year ago.

In the Dominion of Canada, a decrease appeared: a total of 40 failures was shown, against 43 last week and 43 a year ago.

Higher Tobacco Prices Forecast for Mayland

Baltimore, May 15 (Spl.).—Increased prices for Maryland tobacco this year are forecast by F. Brooke Matthews, State tobacco director, on a basis of early shipments sent to the State warehouses here.

The Maryland tobacco crop this year will be approximately 5,000 hogsheads less than normal, Mr. Matthews predicted. But the early shipments have brought as high as 48½ cents a pound, and he expects this figure will be increased during the next few weeks.

Lawyers Map National Drive Against Crime

Bar Combines Many Local Efforts Into Central Long-Range Plan.

A Nation-wide offensive against organized lawlessness will be launched by the American Bar Association at its next annual meeting, the executive committee, which met here last week, announced yesterday.

The movement is the result of reports received from bar associations throughout the country regarding steps now being taken to cope with the crime problem. Questionnaires sent to every State and local bar association in the United States on the subject of criminal law enforcement are being answered daily, it was revealed.

At its meeting the executive committee authorized a three-year program of coordination which will result in closer and more efficient cooperation between lawyers' organizations than has been possible heretofore.

Lawyers Shoulder Burden.

With the American Bar Association as the motivating center, it is planned to establish committees with official standing to work in the various communities and receive all possible aid from the National body. Laymen will be included in the committees and civic support for the work will be urged.

"There can not be the slightest doubt of the lawyers' responsibility to improve the administration of justice, and, at this time particularly, criminal justice," asserted Earle W. Evans, president of the American Bar Association in a statement on the program.

"We know the staggering cost of crime and we know that we are not adequately meeting the situation in regard to it at present.

Long-Range Plan Needed.

"The American Bar Association is assuming the leadership in a militant crusade to attack this problem. The battle is one which must be carried on on many fronts and no attempted solution which does not provide for a continued effort over a long time, built on the experience of the past, will have great effect.

"We have had too many reports and condemnations which were a flash in the pan. Scientific study must be followed up and recommendations must not be allowed to die.

"The American Bar Association is at this time planning a three-year program of work with State and local bar associations for the purpose of making their united efforts more successful than have been the scattered and sporadic attempts to solve our problem in the past.

"We ask the support of the public and the press in our great endeavor."

Choral Program Offers Madrigals

French, German and Dutch Songs Tomorrow.

Madrigals sung in French, German and Dutch will be a feature of the program to be given by the Washington Choral Society, under the direction of Louis A. Potter, at 8:15 p. m. tomorrow in Central High School auditorium. The Dutch number, "Baur, Baur, was tregst im Sacke," is by Orlando di Lasso, of the early Flemish school, and is an interesting example of the ecclesiastical style adapted to folk usage.

The madrigals will be sung by a group of eight selected from the 75 singers constituting the organization. Bach's cantata, "The Four Seasons," will open the program. The version used is that of J. Michael Diack, who has made some cuts in the score, omitted the solos, and interpolated three Bach chorales. On the program will be three compositions by Mary Howe, the distinguished Washington composer. The concert will close with Deems Taylor's cantata, "The Chambered Nautilus," with text by Oliver Wendell Holmes.

"I Just Took Poison," Victim Tells Firemen

"I've just swallowed poison," William Bladen, 50, of the 900 block of H street northwest, announced as he walked into the station of Engine Company No. 6 yesterday.

Firemen summoned the Rescue Squad, which took Bladen to Emergency Hospital. Physicians said last night his condition was undetermined.

The recent case of an American Indian girl of 12 years giving birth to a child is eclipsed by a case reported a few months ago in the British Medical Journal, in London.

In the case reported in London the mother was six years and eight months old. She was a Mohammedan girl living in Delhi, India. According to Hilda L. Keane, of the Victoria Zanana Hospital in Delhi, where the child was born, the mother was born on October 11, 1925. Her daughter was born June 7, 1932—four months before the mother's seventh birthday.

The age of the girl was given by her father when she entered the hospital several months before her child was born. It was further verified by hospital authorities from other records and by interviewing members of the family.

The baby weighed four pounds and three ounces at birth, was nursed by its mother for nine months at the end of which time it weighed more than 11 pounds. It was a Caesarean birth.

The white girl who is believed to hold the American record as the youngest mother is Mrs. Theodore Walsh, of Syracuse. She gave birth to a 7-pound baby daughter when she was only 12 years old.

Tomorrow: The International family.

THE NOTE SHE WROTE ME THAT STARTED IT— THE WEDDING CERTIFICATE THAT KILLED IT—AND THIS SUMMONS THAT BURIED IT— AH—HOW TRUE ARE THE WORDS OF THE POET— HOW DISTANT PROSPECTS PLEASE US—YET WHEN NEAR, WE FIND BUT DESERT ROCKS AND FLEETING AIR—"
OH, HAPPY DAY
BUT THE LAUGH I GET OUT OF THE WHOLE THING IS THE OLD LADY—HOW SHE DID WANT TO TAKE THAT HONEYMOON TRIP—FLOAT DOWN THE NILE ON A BARGE—SHE ADMIRED YOU FOR YOUR NOBLE CHARACTER—MONEY DIDN'T MEAN A THING TO HER—

Walt Mason, Himself

Ownerless.

I do not know whose flies I swat, whose brand the insects bear; I only know I take a shot at flies most anywhere. I see them sail across the line to trespass on my lot, and I don't argue rights, of mine. I simply swat and swat. And to my neighbor I might say, "Please keep your flies at home; they spoil my slumbers all the day, they camp upon my dome." And he might say, "Your blamed old flies a nuisance are to me; I find them crawling on my pies, and swimming in my tea." But none can tell my flies from his, they're all so much alike; we merely swat them as they whiz, and biff and soak and strike. If I should swat my neighbor's fowls, and leave them widely strewn, he'd come along with angry howls that might disturb the moon. I must admit that he would know the inmates of his pens; he'd know the way his roosters crow, the cackle of his hens. But if he came along and said, "You've butchered half my flies, and they were worth ten cents a head, with prices bound to rise," I'd take a seat upon my roof, and fiercely mutter "Shame," and ask him to produce the proof of such a foolish claim. No man can tell the flies apart, unless he's prone to lie, and we may make an early start and swat them hip and thigh.
